LBJ Issues Strongest Tax Plea

President Also Raps Divisive Ambitions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, withholding a commitment to campaign for his party's presidential nominee, struck out today at those who by "pursuing personal ambitions" divide the country.

And he told members of Congress to vote on his tax increase instead of trying to "blackmail someone."

United States is agreeable to starting preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris about May 10

Johnson said he would discuss the question of campaigning for the Democratic nominee "after the convention" next August "when we see what the situation is."

But, after the reference to "personal ambitions," Johnson said there are "too many people thinking too much of self and too few people thinking of country." He mentioned no names.

The President voiced concern about the danger of violence erupting from the planned Poor People's Campaign. The march on Washington by thousands of poor "contains many inherent dangers," he said. "We're concerned with them. We've made extensive preparations."

Wearing a portable microphone and frequently moving from behind the podium set up in the White House East Room, the President delivered his strongest plea yet for prompt action on his proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge.

"I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay," he said. He rejected sharp cuts in his budget, saying the time has come for "all members of Congress to be responsible," and stand up like men and vote. He added:

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone."

Johnson indicated the agreement on preliminary peace talks had not altered his March 31 decision not to seek re-election.

He skirted a direct answer when asked what qualities he wanted to see in the man who succeeds him in the White House, but said the question is not "nearly as much the individual's personality as it is his background and his training and his philosophy."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has been stressing his experience and training as he seeks the Democratic nomination. The other two candidates, Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy, have been critical of administration policies.

Johnson said he would not urge a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks, but added "We still have too much division in this country and too many people thinking too much of self and not enough of country."

He indicated his Cabinet members would either stay out of the political campaign or resign. 5,5,5

Johnson was asked, too, how he thinks Congress will respond to pressure from the Poor People's march on Washington.

He noted that 70 billion of recommendations on social matters are now pending and said "we are hopeful and we expect Congress will give due consideration to all these matters."

"We are now attempting to do everything that can properly be done to meet the needs of the country," he said, adding that citizens always have the right to present their views to the government as long as it is done "lawfully and properly."

Johnson said, "We hope the presentation will be nonviolent, although we are well aware no single individual can give assurances. It contains many inherent dangers. We're concerned with them. We've made extensive preparations."

He said every person in the nation's capital should be aware of the possibility of serious consequences flowing from any large assemblage of people in the seat of government.

Johnson was asked what he thinks the prospects are for his 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

"I think we have a long and difficult road ahead," he said, adding that if he were making up the budget now instead of last fall he would "perhaps add some to it" rather than cut it.

While critics are demanding billions of dollars in cuts, he called the budget "very lean" in view of increasing needs in Vietnam and the cities.

"The Congress has not been that cooperative," he said in noting business and labor support. He added that lawmakers talk about raising taxes but have done nothing and that spending restrictions in the Senate-passed increase "would really bring chaos to the government." His administration could not live with them, he said.

Noting the vote this week in the House Appropriations Committee to cut spending next year $4 billion and trim appropriations $18 billion, he said, "We do not agree with that viewpoint, we do not think it is the wisest course for this government," he said, adding that he is willing to accept it if it is the only way to get action from the House Ways and Means Committee on the tax increase

He said he was informed by the House Appropriations Committee that it is not likely to cut the budget by more than $1.5 billion.

Johnson said it is easy to demand figures that cannot be reached and to use this as an excuse to resist a tax increase.

He said, "I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay" in action on his requested surtax.

The President said if Congress doesn't like the budget, members should stand up like men and vote to cut it where they felt it could be done.

Johnson said, "I think the time has come for all the members of Congress to be responsible," to stand up for their country and pass a tax bill—the thing he said needs to be done more than anything else.

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone," Johnson said at the end of his discussion of taxes.

Back on politics, Johnson was asked whether there should be a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks, and replied "I would not urge that."

He added that "I do not think we do justice to the country" when those "pursuing our personal ambition" result in dividing the country.

"We still have too much division in this country and too many people thinking too much of self and not enough of country," Johnson said.

The President mentioned no names, but Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy have been critical of Johnson's policies in their campaigns for the Democratic presidential nomination. The third announced Democratic candidate is Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

City Water, Sewer Improvements Begin

Contracts have been let and construction has started on three projects designed to increase the efficiency of the water and sewer service in Sikeston.

Addition projects will be let for bids in the next 30 days, E. R. Inman, director of the Board of Public Works, said.

All contracts, which will total $2,092,000 in construction work, are expected to be under design by this summer, Inman said.

A total of $1,200,000 of the total cost will be paid by the city from the $600,000 general obligation bonds and the $600,000 water revenue bonds approved in 1965. The addition $892,000 will be paid in a federal grant.

Two of the projects started yesterday: C. B. Contracting Co. of Eldon started to install 12-inch water mains from Linn Street along Taylor street north to the city limits. Cost of the project is $192,365.

The Ray Clinton Construction Co. of Sikeston started work yesterday installing 15-inch sewer mains from the North Y to the north city limits, and from the west end city park west to Malone & Hyde and Gulf Chemicals. Cost of the project is $168,595.

Construction started last week on a 500,000-gallon elevated steel tank north of the E. P. Coleman Steam plant on Northwest Street. Cost of the project is $121,500. The contractor is Chicago Bridge and Iron Works of Chicago, Ill.

The three projects under construction are to be completed within 300 days, Inman said.

A contract for the construction of a sewage lift station to be built for $32,800 at Frisco and Maude streets has been let to the Ralph Boyer Construction Co. Work is expected to begin on it soon, Inman said.

More than $700,000 in contracts for additional sewer and water main construction in various parts of town will be let for bids in coming weeks. A contract for the expansion of the sewage treatment plant on South Ingram also will be let for bids within 30 days, Inman said.

A contract for the expansion of the water treatment plant on Center Street also will be let later.

U.S. Forces Crush Red Counterattack

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. forces crushed a North Vietnamese counterattack near Dong Na Thursday climaxing four days of fighting in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in which allied troops reported 1,303 of the enemy killed.

U. S. and South Vietnamese casualties totaled 108 men killed and 541 wounded in battles around Dong Ha and Hue, the allied commands said.

In the air war, the U. S. Command announced tonight a Navy report that an enemy MIG21 was shot down over the Gulf of Tonkin "appeared to be erroneous."

Asked for more details about circumstances surrounded the Thursday report, a U.S. spokesman said: "I have nothing further to add. I hope to have more information sometime Saturday.

U. S. Navy F4 Phantom crewmen from the carrier Ranger had reported shooting down a MIG, the first report of an enemy MIG shot down in 2½ months.

Fighting slacked off today after U.S. Marines and Army infantry reinforcements beat back a heavy enemy counter attack near the 3rd Marine Division headquarters at Dong Ha 11 miles below the eastern end of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese launched their counterattack Thursday afternoon and pushed the Marines back. Army troops were rushed in as reinforcements, artillery and U.S. planes pounded the North Vietnamese, and by nightfall "the enemy withdrew," a U.S. spokesman said. He added that the enemy made light probing attacks for two hours before contact was lost.

There was no word of new fighting by South Vietnamese forces who have been battling the North Vietnamese a mile or two from the Marines in the Dong Ha sector.

Saigon had its first major terrorist incident since the Communist lunar new year offensive in February.

Eighth Transplant Patient Passes First Critical Period

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A healthy heart replacing a badly diseased one has carried Joseph Rizor beyond a critical period and into his first postoperative day.

"The first 1½ hours are critical," said doctors at Stanford University Medical Center when they completed a 4½-hour transplant operation at noon Thursday. Rizor, 40, received the heart of a 43-year-old man.

Dr. Norman E. Shumway, 44, who headed the transplant team, said the condition of the stocky Salinas, Calif., carpenter was fair. Because of a lung condition, the patient was receiving artificial respiration to help him breathe, Shumway said.

The donor, whose family asked anonymity, died of brain damage doctors described as irreversible.

Rizor, eighth person in medical history to undergo at human heart transplant, entered the hospital in March after suffering a serious heart condition for seven years.

He wanted the surgery.

"I wish that were me," Rizor had said when he heard about the world's first heart transplant, which was done at Cape Town, South Africa, last Dec. 3.

Rizor was quoted by his wife, Eileen.

"At first I was shocked by the idea but time and the knowledge of how desperately my husband wanted to undergo the operation have made me realize that this may be his only chance to live," Mrs. Rizor said before the operation began at 7:30 a.m.

She said her husband "could make anything" but had been bedridden and unable to work for the past two years.

There are four children, Mark, 15, Michelle, 1 Jody, 7, and Christopher, 3. The couple was married almost years ago and moved to Salinas eight years ago.

Rizor's was the second transplant performed by the Shumway team. The first gave a new heart to Mike Kasperak, 54, year-old steelworker, last Jan. 6. The heart functioned well but Kasperak died after 15 days from internal bleeding and other complications.

Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard performed the historic first at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital. The patient, Louis Washkansky, 54, died of pneumonia 18 days after the surgery.

Barnard performed another heart transplant Jan. 2, and the patient, Philip Blaiberg, 54, is reported in good condition. Barnard discharged him from the hospital in mid-March.

Ninth Heart Transplant Made in Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A 47-year-old Arizona accountant received the heart of a 15-yearold married woman during a three-hour heart transplant operation today at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

It was the world's ninth transplant case and the first in Texas.

Hospital spokesmen described the condition of the recipient, Everett Clair Thomas, Phoenix, as satisfactory. They said his blood pressure became normal shortly after a single electric shock restored the regular beat of the donor heart.

The hospital did not identify the donor but relatives identified her as Mrs. Charlie L. Martin III, a Houston suburban resident who had been married only six months. The identification was made by the father-in-law, Charles L. Martin Jr.

The hospital said the donor died of a gunshot wound to the head.

The Baylor University medical team was headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley, chief of cardiovascular surgery at St. Luke's and a surgeon who has been honored by medical groups around the world for his development of heart and vascular surgical techniques.

Other members of the team were Dr. Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

St. Luke's and Baylor Medical are in the $100 million Texas Medical Center and St. Luke's is adjacent to Methodist Hospital, where a team headed by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, another world famous heart surgeon, has pioneered the use of artificial heart pumps.

DeBakey, 58, and Cooley have worked together frequently on development of new surgical equipment, techniques and procedures.

In Phoenix, Paul Thomas, 17, son of the recipient, said the family "had no idea dad would be getting a new heart when he left home five days ago."

"But I am happy about this, that my father may live," he said.

The son said his mother telephoned him from Houston shortly before midnight and "told us it (the transplant) was necessary."

The woman was brought to the hospital about 6 p.m. Thursday.

Shortly before midnight, Thomas was taken to the operating room and his chest opened.

The heart was found to have calcium deposits on one heart valve extending into the walls between two heart chambers and into the openings where blood vessels enter the heart.

The young woman was in an operating room next door and her heart was moved to the operating room.

A statement from the hospital said minor tailoring of the donor heart permitted it to be transplanted to Thomas.

The medical team from Baylor University College of Medicine included Dr. Benton Cooley, Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

The lower part of Thomas' heart was removed and the two lower chambers of the donor's sewn into place.

The technique used here was developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of Stamford University Medical School who only Thursday performed the eighth heart transplant.

Rockefeller Beams After First Day of Campaigning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pacing the aisle of a campaign bus in a sweat-soaked shirt, hitting it off well with the crowds-Nelson A. Rockefeller in his first full day of campaigning for the presidency seemed a man glad to be in the race at last.

After his announcement Wednesday that he was going after the Republican nomination, the New York governor hopped to Iowa Thursday for a day of campaign.

It was, he said, "one of the most exhilarating days of my life."

Rockefeller was interruped 16 times by applause in a speech before some 8,000 persons at the University of Iowa as he called for voting at age 18 and a lottery plan to pick draftees.

Later, on his way to a fund-raising dinner in Cedar Rapids - another friendly audience- he couldn't sit still in his campaign bus.

Shucking his coat, he kept prowling the length of the bus, his shirt clammy with perspiration, as he spun off ideas and swapped thoughts with a group of students in the back.

Rockefeller planned to return to New York today but didn't disclose where he would appear next in pursuit of the voter.

Richard M. Nixon, who has a head start of months on Rockefeller in the quest for the GOP nomination, touched again Thursday on the "black capitalism" concept he recently introduced.

In a nationwide radio address from Indianapolis, Ind., the former vice president said taxtax incentives and loan guarantees could help many Negreos to become owners of their businesses and "remove the ceiling from black aspiration."

Nixon is the only Republican on the ballot in Indiana's primary next Tuesday. But the Democratic contest that day continues to grow in import.

Aides of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., say that if he wins 30 per cent of the vote in the three-man competition he will interpret this as a signal to press on in his fight for the presidential nomination.

During a wide-ranging day of campaigning Thursday in Indiana, McCarthy seemed to be saying - or at least suggesting - that he expects to trail Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or McCarthy from getting their hands on the votes the Indiana delegation will take to the Democratic National Convention.

Texas Demos to Decide Which Candidate to Back

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texans decide Saturday how their delegates vote in the presidential nominating conventions, probably committing them to Gov. John Connally, a Democrat, and Sen. John Tower, a Republican, as favorite son contenders.

This will be done at precinct conventions in the evening, to be held at polling places after voting ends in the party primary elections.

Democrats are expected to accord Connally favorite son status as leader of the 104-vote delegation at their national convention in Chicago, possibly allowing for a quick switch to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The delegates probably will be pledged firmly to no one after Connally.

Support for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy D-N.Y., appears limited in the state. Backers of both want the Texas delegates freed of a unit rule requiring them to vote as a bloc, while Connally forces favor such a rule.

So-called "old guard" Republicans want to vote for Reagan on the second ballot.

Crossover Votes Likely to Play Key Role in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Crossover voting may play an important role in Indiana's presidential primary which dictates that write-in votes cannot be counted.

Party crossover voting may prove a big asset to Indiana Gov. Roger D. Branigin, running as a favorite son candidate against Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy on the Democratic ballot Tuesday. Richard M. Nixon is unopposed on the Republican ballot.

Crossing over is not difficult in Indiana, and because Nixon has no opposition and Branigin is personally popular with many Republicans, the governor could get substantial GOP support.

A voter requests the ballot of the party of his choice, and is subject to challenge only by a poll watcher of that party. If challenged, the voter must sign an affidavit that he voted for a majority of that party's candidates in the preceding general election and intends to do so again in the next general election.

Since the general election ballot is secret, there's no way to prove or disprove his affidavit.

Woman Hurt in Intersersection Crash

A woman was injured in a two-car collision at 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of highways 153 and 60 in Stoddard county.

A 1949 Ford truck, driven by Clyde Laird, 51, Essex, pulled off highway 153 into highway 60 and struck a 1966 Ford, driven by John McCullough, 39, Dexter, in the side, the state patrol reported.

The McCullough vehicle then struck a bridge banister.

Injured in the accident, was McCullough's wife, Lola McCullough, 38, who was treated by a Dexter physician for a side and stomach injury.

Start Set for May 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam agreed today to open preliminary peace talks in Paris next Friday or a few days thereafter.

President Johnson announced at a 10 a.m. news conference he had sent word to Hanoi that he accepts the time and place Hanoi had announced to the world two hours earlier.

Johnson said he was informed of the North Vietnamese agreement at 1 a.m. today. He then conferred with Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials and made his decision.

Hanoi announced its purpose in the talks would be "to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam North Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides."

Johnson ordered March 31 a partial halt in bombing of the North and called for peace talks. He offered to stop the rest of the bombing if Hanoi would show "restraint" in its military operations.

But U.S. officials report Hanoi since early March has greatly increased infiltration of men and weapons into South Vietnam.

Asked about this today Johnson said "we have been quite concerned" about the North Vietnamese expanding infiltration.

The President warned the Paris talks would be only the "first step" toward bringing the long and bloody war in Southeast Asia to a close.

"Let me sound a precautionary note," Johnson said after announcing his decision. "This is only a very first step, and there are many, many hazards and difficulties ahead."

"I have never felt it was useful for public officials to confuse delicate negotiations by detailing personal views" in advance, Johnson went on. So, he said, he would not discuss the question further now.

It was exactly a month ago today that North Vietnam and the United States publicly declared their readiness for such talks, thus signaling a potential breakthrough in the long effort to begin peace discussions.

The forthcoming discussions are expected to be only preliminary to what could be much-drawn-out negotiations.

For the preliminary contacts, the United States had proposed 15 Asian and European capitals for possible meeting places while North Vietnam had suggested Phnom Penh or Warsaw.

The Indonesians meanwhile, offered to send a cruiser to Tonkin Gulf as a meeting place.

The North Vietnamese broadcast today indicated an end to the stalemate. As received by U.S. monitors, Hanoi Radio said:

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam(government is of the opinion that formal talks between Hanoi and Washington should be undertaken immediately.

"It decides to send Minister Xuyan Thuy as its representative to hold formal talks with a representative of the U.S. government to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides.

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam government welcomes the fact that the French government is willing to let Paris be the site between the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the United States as declared by French (foreign) Minister Couve De Murville on 18 April 1968.

"The DRV government is of the opinion that Paris, just as Phnom Penh and Warsaw, is an appropriate venue for the formal and bilateral talks.

"These formal talks will begin on 10 May or a few days later."

Johnson has named veteran roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as the U.S. envoy for the preliminary talks.

Also tapped for this service if needed has been Llewelyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, who recently returned to Moscow after Washington consultations.

LBJ Issues Strongest Tax Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, withholding a commitment to campaign for his party's presidential nominee, struck out today at those who by "pursuing personal ambitions" divide the country.

"I think we have a long and difficult road ahead," he said, adding that if he were making up the budget now instead of last fall he would "perhaps add some to it" rather than cut it.

While critics are demanding billions of dollars in cuts, he called the budget "very lean" in view of increasing needs in Vietnam and the cities.

"The Congress has not been that cooperative," he said in noting business and labor support. He added that lawmakers talk about raising taxes but have done nothing and that spending restrictions in the Senate-passed increase "would really bring chaos to the government." His administration could not live with them, he said.

Noting the vote this week in the House Appropriations Committee to cut spending next year $4 billion and trim appropriations $18 billion, he said, "We do not agree with that viewpoint, we do not think it is the wisest course for this government," he said, adding that he is willing to accept it if it is the only way to get action from the House Ways and Means Committee on the tax increase

He said he was informed by the House Appropriations Committee that it is not likely to cut the budget by more than $1.5 billion.

Johnson said it is easy to demand figures that cannot be reached and to use this as an excuse to resist a tax increase.

He said, "I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay" in action on his requested surtax.

The President said if Congress doesn't like the budget, members should stand up like men and vote to cut it where they felt it could be done.

Johnson said, "I think the time has come for all the members of Congress to be responsible," to stand up for their country and pass a tax bill—the thing he said needs to be done more than anything else.

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone," Johnson said at the end of his discussion of taxes.

Back on politics, Johnson was asked whether there should be a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks, and replied "I would not urge that."

He added that "I do not think we do justice to the country" when those "pursuing our personal ambition" result in dividing the country.

"We still have too much division in this country and too many people thinking too much of self and not enough of country," Johnson said.

The President mentioned no names, but Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy have been critical of Johnson's policies in their campaigns for the Democratic presidential nomination. The third announced Democratic candidate is Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

City Water, Sewer Improvements Begin

Contracts have been let and construction has started on three projects designed to increase the efficiency of the water and sewer service in Sikeston.

Addition projects will be let for bids in the next 30 days, E. R. Inman, director of the Board of Public Works, said.

All contracts, which will total $2,092,000 in construction work, are expected to be under design by this summer, Inman said.

A total of $1,200,000 of the total cost will be paid by the city from the $600,000 general obligation bonds and the $600,000 water revenue bonds approved in 1965. The addition $892,000 will be paid in a federal grant.

Two of the projects started yesterday: C. B. Contracting Co. of Eldon started to install 12-inch water mains from Linn Street along Taylor street north to the city limits. Cost of the project is $192,365.

The Ray Clinton Construction Co. of Sikeston started work yesterday installing 15-inch sewer mains from the North Y to the north city limits, and from the west end city park west to Malone & Hyde and Gulf Chemicals. Cost of the project is $168,595.

Construction started last week on a 500,000-gallon elevated steel tank north of the E. P. Coleman Steam plant on Northwest Street. Cost of the project is $121,500. The contractor is Chicago Bridge and Iron Works of Chicago, Ill.

The three projects under construction are to be completed within 300 days, Inman said.

A contract for the construction of a sewage lift station to be built for $32,800 at Frisco and Maude streets has been let to the Ralph Boyer Construction Co. Work is expected to begin on it soon, Inman said.

More than $700,000 in contracts for additional sewer and water main construction in various parts of town will be let for bids in coming weeks. A contract for the expansion of the sewage treatment plant on South Ingram also will be let for bids within 30 days, Inman said.

A contract for the expansion of the water treatment plant on Center Street also will be let later.

U.S. Forces Crush Red Counterattack

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. forces crushed a North Vietnamese counterattack near Dong Na Thursday climaxing four days of fighting in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in which allied troops reported 1,303 of the enemy killed.

U. S. and South Vietnamese casualties totaled 108 men killed and 541 wounded in battles around Dong Ha and Hue, the allied commands said.

In the air war, the U. S. Command announced tonight a Navy report that an enemy MIG21 was shot down over the Gulf of Tonkin "appeared to be erroneous."

Asked for more details about circumstances surrounded the Thursday report, a U.S. spokesman said: "I have nothing further to add. I hope to have more information sometime Saturday.

U. S. Navy F4 Phantom crewmen from the carrier Ranger had reported shooting down a MIG, the first report of an enemy MIG shot down in 2½ months.

Fighting slacked off today after U.S. Marines and Army infantry reinforcements beat back a heavy enemy counter attack near the 3rd Marine Division headquarters at Dong Ha 11 miles below the eastern end of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese launched their counterattack Thursday afternoon and pushed the Marines back. Army troops were rushed in as reinforcements, artillery and U.S. planes pounded the North Vietnamese, and by nightfall "the enemy withdrew," a U.S. spokesman said. He added that the enemy made light probing attacks for two hours before contact was lost.

There was no word of new fighting by South Vietnamese forces who have been battling the North Vietnamese a mile or two from the Marines in the Dong Ha sector.

Saigon had its first major terrorist incident since the Communist lunar new year offensive in February.

Eighth Transplant Patient Passes First Critical Period

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A healthy heart replacing a badly diseased one has carried Joseph Rizor beyond a critical period and into his first postoperative day.

"The first 1½ hours are critical," said doctors at Stanford University Medical Center when they completed a 4½-hour transplant operation at noon Thursday. Rizor, 40, received the heart of a 43-year-old man.

Dr. Norman E. Shumway, 44, who headed the transplant team, said the condition of the stocky Salinas, Calif., carpenter was fair. Because of a lung condition, the patient was receiving artificial respiration to help him breathe, Shumway said.

The donor, whose family asked anonymity, died of brain damage doctors described as irreversible.

Rizor, eighth person in medical history to undergo a human heart transplant, entered the hospital in March after suffering a serious heart condition for seven years.

He wanted the surgery.

"I wish that were me," Rizor had said when he heard about the world's first heart transplant, which was done at Cape Town, South Africa, last Dec. 3.

Rizor was quoted by his wife, Eileen.

"At first I was shocked by the idea but time and the knowledge of how desperately my husband wanted to undergo the operation have made me realize that this may be his only chance to live," Mrs. Rizor said before the operation began at 7:30 a.m.

She said her husband "could make anything" but had been bedridden and unable to work for the past two years.

There are four children, Mark, 15, Michelle, 1 Jody, 7, and Christopher, 3. The couple was married almost years ago and moved to Salinas eight years ago.

Rizor's was the second transplant performed by the Shumway team. The first gave a new heart to Mike Kasperak, 54, year-old steelworker, last Jan. 6. The heart functioned well but Kasperak died after 15 days from internal bleeding and other complications.

Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard performed the historic first at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital. The patient, Louis Washkansky, 54, died of pneumonia 18 days after the surgery.

Barnard performed another heart transplant Jan. 2, and the patient, Philip Blaiberg, 54, is reported in good condition. Barnard discharged him from the hospital in mid-March.

Ninth Heart Transplant Made in Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A 47-year-old Arizona accountant received the heart of a 15-yearold married woman during a three-hour heart transplant operation today at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

It was the world's ninth transplant case and the first in Texas.

Hospital spokesmen described the condition of the recipient, Everett Clair Thomas, Phoenix, as satisfactory. They said his blood pressure became normal shortly after a single electric shock restored the regular beat of the donor heart.

The hospital did not identify the donor but relatives identified her as Mrs. Charlie L. Martin III, a Houston suburban resident who had been married only six months. The identification was made by the father-in-law, Charles L. Martin Jr.

The hospital said the donor died of a gunshot wound to the head.

The Baylor University medical team was headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley, chief of cardiovascular surgery at St. Luke's and a surgeon who has been honored by medical groups around the world for his development of heart and vascular surgical techniques.

Other members of the team were Dr. Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

St. Luke's and Baylor Medical are in the $100 million Texas Medical Center and St. Luke's is adjacent to Methodist Hospital, where a team headed by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, another world famous heart surgeon, has pioneered the use of artificial heart pumps.

DeBakey, 58, and Cooley have worked together frequently on development of new surgical equipment, techniques and procedures.

In Phoenix, Paul Thomas, 17, son of the recipient, said the family "had no idea dad would be getting a new heart when he left home five days ago."

"But I am happy about this, that my father may live," he said.

The son said his mother telephoned him from Houston shortly before midnight and "told us it (the transplant) was necessary."

The woman was brought to the hospital about 6 p.m. Thursday.

Shortly before midnight, Thomas was taken to the operating room and his chest opened.

The heart was found to have calcium deposits on one heart valve extending into the walls between two heart chambers and into the openings where blood vessels enter the heart.

The young woman was in an operating room next door and her heart was moved to the operating room.

A statement from the hospital said minor tailoring of the donor heart permitted it to be transplanted to Thomas.

The medical team from Baylor University College of Medicine included Dr. Benton Cooley, Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

The lower part of Thomas' heart was removed and the two lower chambers of the donor's sewn into place.

The technique used here was developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of Stamford University Medical School who only Thursday performed the eighth heart transplant.

Rockefeller Beams After First Day of Campaigning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pacing the aisle of a campaign bus in a sweat-soaked shirt, hitting it off well with the crowds-Nelson A. Rockefeller in his first full day of campaigning for the presidency seemed a man glad to be in the race at last.

After his announcement Wednesday that he was going after the Republican nomination, the New York governor hopped to Iowa Thursday for a day of campaign.

It was, he said, "one of the most exhilarating days of my life."

Rockefeller was interruped 16 times by applause in a speech before some 8,000 persons at the University of Iowa as he called for voting at age 18 and a lottery plan to pick draftees.

Later, on his way to a fund-raising dinner in Cedar Rapids - another friendly audience- he couldn't sit still in his campaign bus.

Shucking his coat, he kept prowling the length of the bus, his shirt clammy with perspiration, as he spun off ideas and swapped thoughts with a group of students in the back.

Rockefeller planned to return to New York today but didn't disclose where he would appear next in pursuit of the voter.

Richard M. Nixon, who has a head start of months on Rockefeller in the quest for the GOP nomination, touched again Thursday on the "black capitalism" concept he recently introduced.

In a nationwide radio address from Indianapolis, Ind., the former vice president said taxtax incentives and loan guarantees could help many Negreos to become owners of their businesses and "remove the ceiling from black aspiration."

Nixon is the only Republican on the ballot in Indiana's primary next Tuesday. But the Democratic contest that day continues to grow in import.

Aides of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., say that if he wins 30 per cent of the vote in the three-man competition he will interpret this as a signal to press on in his fight for the presidential nomination.

During a wide-ranging day of campaigning Thursday in Indiana, McCarthy seemed to be saying - or at least suggesting - that he expects to trail Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or McCarthy from getting their hands on the votes the Indiana delegation will take to the Democratic National Convention.

Texas Demos to Decide Which Candidate to Back

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texans decide Saturday how their delegates vote in the presidential nominating conventions, probably committing them to Gov. John Connally, a Democrat, and Sen. John Tower, a Republican, as favorite son contenders.

This will be done at precinct conventions in the evening, to be held at polling places after voting ends in the party primary elections.

Democrats are expected to accord Connally favorite son status as leader of the 104-vote delegation at their national convention in Chicago, possibly allowing for a quick switch to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The delegates probably will be pledged firmly to no one after Connally.

Support for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy D-N.Y., appears limited in the state. Backers of both want the Texas delegates freed of a unit rule requiring them to vote as a bloc, while Connally forces favor such a rule.

So-called "old guard" Republicans want to vote for Reagan on the second ballot.

Crossover Votes Likely to Play Key Role in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Crossover voting may play an important role in Indiana's presidential primary which dictates that write-in votes cannot be counted.

Party crossover voting may prove a big asset to Indiana Gov. Roger D. Branigin, running as a favorite son candidate against Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy on the Democratic ballot Tuesday. Richard M. Nixon is unopposed on the Republican ballot.

Crossing over is not difficult in Indiana, and because Nixon has no opposition and Branigin is personally popular with many Republicans, the governor could get substantial GOP support.

A voter requests the ballot of the party of his choice, and is subject to challenge only by a poll watcher of that party. If challenged, the voter must sign an affidavit that he voted for a majority of that party's candidates in the preceding general election and intends to do so again in the next general election.

Since the general election ballot is secret, there's no way to prove or disprove his affidavit.

Woman Hurt in Intersersection Crash

A woman was injured in a two-car collision at 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of highways 153 and 60 in Stoddard county.

A 1949 Ford truck, driven by Clyde Laird, 51, Essex, pulled off highway 153 into highway 60 and struck a 1966 Ford, driven by John McCullough, 39, Dexter, in the side, the state patrol reported.

The McCullough vehicle then struck a bridge banister.

Injured in the accident, was McCullough's wife, Lola McCullough, 38, who was treated by a Dexter physician for a side and stomach injury.

Start Set for May 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam agreed today to open preliminary peace talks in Paris next Friday or a few days thereafter.

President Johnson announced at a 10 a.m. news conference he had sent word to Hanoi that he accepts the time and place Hanoi had announced to the world two hours earlier.

Johnson said he was informed of the North Vietnamese agreement at 1 a.m. today. He then conferred with Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials and made his decision.

Hanoi announced its purpose in the talks would be "to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam North Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides."

Johnson ordered March 31 a partial halt in bombing of the North and called for peace talks. He offered to stop the rest of the bombing if Hanoi would show "restraint" in its military operations.

But U.S. officials report Hanoi since early March has greatly increased infiltration of men and weapons into South Vietnam.

Asked about this today Johnson said "we have been quite concerned" about the North Vietnamese expanding infiltration.

The President warned the Paris talks would be only the "first step" toward bringing the long and bloody war in Southeast Asia to a close.

"Let me sound a precautionary note," Johnson said after announcing his decision. "This is only a very first step, and there are many, many hazards and difficulties ahead."

"I have never felt it was useful for public officials to confuse delicate negotiations by detailing personal views" in advance, Johnson went on. So, he said, he would not discuss the question further now.

It was exactly a month ago today that North Vietnam and the United States publicly declared their readiness for such talks, thus signaling a potential breakthrough in the long effort to begin peace discussions.

The forthcoming discussions are expected to be only preliminary to what could be much-drawn-out negotiations.

For the preliminary contacts, the United States had proposed 15 Asian and European capitals for possible meeting places while North Vietnam had suggested Phnom Penh or Warsaw.

The Indonesians meanwhile, offered to send a cruiser to Tonkin Gulf as a meeting place.

The North Vietnamese broadcast today indicated an end to the stalemate. As received by U.S. monitors, Hanoi Radio said:

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam(government is of the opinion that formal talks between Hanoi and Washington should be undertaken immediately.

"It decides to send Minister Xuyan Thuy as its representative to hold formal talks with a representative of the U.S. government to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides.

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam government welcomes the fact that the French government is willing to let Paris be the site between the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the United States as declared by French (foreign) Minister Couve De Murville on 18 April 1968.

"The DRV government is of the opinion that Paris, just as Phnom Penh and Warsaw, is an appropriate venue for the forma and bilateral talks.

"These formal talks will begin on 10 May or a few days later."

Johnson has named veteran roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as the U.S. envoy for the preliminary talks.

Also tapped for this service if needed has been Llewelyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, who recently returned to Moscow after Washington consultations.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

The biggest issue in this presidential election year is law and order.

The reference is to the substance not to lip service.

Late in his administration–too late–President Lyndon B. Johnson endorsed law and order but it came after he chanted the songs of pressure groups, the nation's cities were burned and pillaged and Americans were killed and injured.

The next president must promise to provide the leadership to restore law and order. He must outline specifically how he will exercise this leadership.

Then if he is elected he must keep his pledge.

This is the minimum need of America.

The breakdown in law and order began in the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Sit down strikes were tolerated. Union workers occupied industrial plants illegally during strikes. There was no production. This process forced management to settle the strikes on the unions' terms.

It won federal government support because it was in behalf of what they considered a good cause and an excellent vote builder.

Lawlessness, usually condoned by federal officials, has now grown to the point where traffic is blocked, commerce is stopped, the educational process all all levels disrupted, private and public property destroyed, people are murdered and maimed, property is openly pillaged and vandalized, the military service is obstructed, aid and comfort is given the enemy and the crime rate soars.

America has become a land of mob rule, civil disobediance and anarchy all in the name of so-called good causes, which appeal to the conscience.

Lawlessness and intimidation are not only condoned they are rewarded and supported openly by the federal government.

In the attorney general's office sits an apologist for law and order–weak kneed Ramsey Clark. Federal employes have often formented disorders.

While he sits idly by mouthing platitudes this country's historic government by law submits to blackmailers, whose illegal operations are excused falsely as involving their right to dissent.

The nation faces its gravest crisis.

Americans can do something about it.

They have the privilege of speaking out and acting against law violaters and those who support their activities. They can write to members of congress in protest.

They can vote against the public officials, who have tolerated and appeased the nation's growing ranks of criminals, anarchists, arsonists, vandals and murders.

Their neglect could be fatal to the nation.

MAY AND VIOLETS

They are not necessarily synonymous, but it is hard to think of May without violets. And May Day, back when it was sentimental rather than socially significant, was always marked by May baskets brimming with violets. Springtime, May, young love and violets - they were all there, together, in those fragile paper baskets.

Spring brings earlier flowers, a few, but none better known or more widely distributed. More than 80 species of violets grow in the United States, in damp meadows, rich woodlands, upland pastures, at rural roadsides and on dry, sandy plains. In color they range from white through yellow to all shades of blue and purple; and their close cousins, the johnny-jump-ups or wild pansies, mingle these colors in the same blossom.

White violets have a rich, sweet fragrance. The blues and purples have only the woodsy, outdoors smell of spring. But all are rich with nectar, as the bees well know. Bumblebees are specially fond of the common blue violets that spread heart-shaped leaves and lift long- stemmed flowers almost everywhere. So are Saturday-free children. So are country grownups.

The old herbalists used violets for inflammations of the chest and lungs. Violets, they said, "specially comforteth the heart." They still do, as any Maytime wanderer will testify. Blue sky, warm sun and roadside violets are as comforting a discovery as any heart could ask of the burgeoning countryside.

It seems to me that I am hearing more and more favorable comment on the column which quoted Abe Lincoln on respect and enforcement of law than most any I have had lately. People of the state, if Macon County is any criterion, are strongly behind the law enforcement officers as they go about doing their duty.

Law enforcement officers are human and they may err, but usually they err under stress and many of us do the same thing, even though it is not an act in public areas.

I have been a member of a young man's Sunday School Class at the Baptist Church here, not because I try to kid myself in being young, but I once taught the class and I have a deep regard for the young men who make up the class membership.

Sunday the question of law enforcement crept into the discussion and I was pleasantly surprised at the stand these young men are taking. They decry some of the efforts of those who lead in the church to discredit law enforcement and believe, as do I, that the church is done a disservice when a member of the clergy gets mixed up in such matters.

Not only do these young men hold fast to law enforcement and to the backing of the law enforcement officers, but a former educational executive with whom I talked Sunday also feels the same way.

Law enforcement officers must never feel that they have no backing in doing their duty. They do and the good people of the state and the nation should speak out and say so.

From the government handout "Saudi Arabia Today," comes a fragment which matches the "coals to Newcastle" deal. The Saudis, a desert-dwelling people, are importing sand; only last month a freighter came from Finland bearing 3,200 tons of sand valued at $70,000.

But it was far from the desert variety, or the kind cliches used to put into spinach. It was special stuff for use in water refineries.

A man misses a lot if he keeps his nose in a book.

But he inherits the world because his horizons are so boundless.

He may miss a great deal in the immediate environment including much small talk and a great many television programs, which, to put it mildly, do not add to the sum total of human wisdom.

One of the things that always impressed us about reading was the disdain drunks have for it.

We formerly read the Reader's Digest from cover to cover on the buses and street cars.

Every drunk, who boarded these public conveyances, always became irritated by our reading habits.

Why this was so, we do not know, but it may have been because they were intoxicated and wanted to occupy the center of the stage.

Since drunks aren't completely rational, the human being, who doesn't follow their advice, may have at least acquired a small measure of wisdom.

Reading is a talent that isn't properly appreciated outside of the elementary school classes in which it is a major requirement.

There are talent contests for everything else including spelling.

Why not a talent contest for readers?

If there was a way to measure their knowledge and to demonstrate it dramatically, many more could be persuaded to read.

The country would benefit from having more informed citizens.

Even the act of voting isn't sufficient to preserve our form of government. It must be informed voting to be beneficial. One way to become informed is to read.

NEW YORK (AP) — Industry is working hard to make it soft for the nation's housewives.

Take disposable pans, for instance. Take 'em quick, before they overflow the kitchen and go clattering down the hall.

Somehow, they end up in the dishpan instead of the garbage pail and they come out so shiny and sturdy looking that my thrifty nature rebels at discarding such useful objects.

Useful for what, I have yet to discover. But still, I have the storage shelves of the stove stacked with them and the cabinets are so packed with aluminum foil dishes of every size and description that the whole pile comes crashing to the floor every time I open the door.

I'd have a little more room for the disposable pans, except that the drawers and closets in the house are all jammed with those lovely plastic bags clothes come back in from the cleaners. No telling when I'll need 250 or so garment covers, so I carefully fold them up and stuff them into any space not already occupied by little plastic strawberry baskets or slightly used disposable dustcloths.

When plastic roraws und plastic toothpicks made their debut my life took a turn for the worse. I know they're meant to be dumped instead of dunked after use, but I'm determined to revitalize them with detergent.

Then along came the neat little coffee cans, complete with a tight cover and beautiful designs that turned them into perfect canisters when empty. I couldn't manage to utilize them all with just flour and sugar and tea, so I started tossing beans and rice and pancake flour and black-eyed peas and hard candy and even oatmeal into them. But they are still multiplying faster than I can think up uses for them.

I never minded throwing out paper plates in the old days, when their rough surface absorbed the juice from the pickles and the grease from the spare ribs. But now that they're as smooth as china and seem almost as durable, I have to look the other way when I consign them to the garbage can.

Well, there's one bright side to the aluminum avalanche. I just baked a frozen pie in its own foil dish and I find that the container was perforated with tiny holes in order to make the crust brown right. I won't mind throwing that one out.

On second thought, perhaps I'd better keep it after all. It would make a dandy sieve.

YOUR SILENT PARTNER

"EVERY MERCHANT must recognize the fact that the most powerful single influence in any community is its newspaper," declared the head of a recent Media Study Group.

"The prosperity of a community depends upon the prosperity of its newspapers, thus enabling them to render such services from which the retail merchants derive indirect benefit. So the prosperity of any merchant depends upon how closely he links his business with the public mind through the newspapers.

"Newspapers are silent partners in every business within their community. They become an active partner in an individual business when it identifies itself through advertising.

"If more merchants had followed the example of the most successful merchants (in maintaining their advertising) throughout the depression, the volum of retail business would have been greater than it was."

The evening had been going along very well, but now, at the critical moment, the girl wouldn't let the fellow into her apartment. Her excuse was then: "My roommate's home."

Bitter, her date said, "In other words, I'm supposed to ignore this doormat that says 'Welcome'?"

"Of course, silly," she laughed. "There's hardly room enough for us on that!"

IN THE MAIL: "Please settle a question for us. Should the bottom button on a vest be buttoned or left unbuttoned?" Well, it's usually left unbuttoned for several reasons -- because that's been the accepted version for as far back as we can remember, and because the contour of the wearer, and the construction of the vest, makes it fit better with the bottom button unbuttoned. . . "I have never been able to buy a sport shirt with a collar that fits me like my regular shirts. Why not?" A sport shirt collar is not supposed to fit that perfectly - it should be casual, comfortable and easier-fitting.

READY TO COOL OFF LONG, HOT SUMMER

If there is a long, hot summer in 1968, it will not be for want of preparedness on the part of those who will have to deal with it.

Statements by any number of local and state and federal authorities make one wonder whether what is being talked about is the United States or South Vietnam, Chicago or Saigon. But if the Viet Cong's offensive in Vietnamese cities caught the government off guard, the only thing that will surprise it here is if our homegrown guerrillas remain relatively quiescent come warm weather.

The Army, for instance, has announced that it is stockpiling riot-control equipment in some half-dozen strategically located depots across the country. It is also prepared to airlift aid to any city where civil disorders break out.

So extensive is the planning that everything from maps of subway, sewer, water and electrical systems in potential trouble spots to the daily menus of National Guardsmen have been assembled.

Los Angeles police have created 15 four-man "Special Weapons and Tactics Teams" and are forming 30 more to deal with snipers and fire bombers. They will SWAT Watts if it rises again.

Nor is the planning confined only to the immediate future. Writing in National Guardsman magazine, Col. Frank B. Rigg, (USA, ret.) foresees guard units being required to be in action for months and even years in protracted urban guerrilla warfare -- "one of the nastiest forms of warfare known to mankind."

He visualizes such pleasant prospects as the roads into cities being blocked off, forcing soldiers to parachute into "skyscraper jungles" to fight their way down through buildings. Helicopters will make sudden landings with assault troops or hoover overhead dropping smoke bombs on mobs of rioters.

In Illinois, the sheriff of Cook County began enlisting volunteers in a 1,000-man civilian vigilante force (half white and half black) until his plan was stalled by court action.

In Ohio, the state legislature is debating a law that would exempt police and military personnel from any criminal liability for actions taken to quell a riot, though strenuous objections by civil libertarians make its passage doubtful.

All that is lacking to complete this dismal picture is for the government to announce that pacification teams will be sent in after urban "seize-and-hold" operations "to win the minds and hearts of the people" so that we may achieve peace in our time.

And who is this fearsome "enemy" who is throwing the country into the greatest panic since the Millerites awaited the end of the world in 1844? Evidently, only a handful of loud-talking, hard-core black powerists.

According to a report made for the President's Youth Opportunities Council, a survey of 11 cities found the dominant mood of the majority of Negro youths in city ghettos to be one not of anger but of tragic apathy. The report charges that summer programs in the past have been inspired out of fear of a minority of angry youths and "administered in a vain attempt to 'cool' the ghetto and thus maintain the status quo."

It all begins to sound just too much like Vietnam to be comfortable. In America, as in Vietnam, is this country's ultimate answer to everything to be nothing but raw force?

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

A survey of some recent United States government expenditures, made by Congressman H. R. Gross (R., Iowa). should cause the American citizen to inquire how necessary much of our government spending really is.

Officials of the Agency for International Development recently discovered that $400.000 of its appropriation was unspent. Instead of saving the money so that the next year's appropriation could be reduced, they devoted themselves to finding some way, any way, to spend the money. The final solution to the "problem" was to buy 1,000 television sets to "educate" natives in the jungle. No one seemed worried that the natives had no electricity and so could not use television.

Bureaucrats always seem willing to spend vast sums of money to teach people how to do things they already do quite well. One agency decided the United States government should give the Nationalist Chinese government $2.5 million to train Formosans and Japanese to grow vegetables, even though these peoples are among the best vegetable growers in the world. Similarly, the Office of Economic Opportunity gave the Zuni Indians a grant to improve their jewelry business, although they already make more than $2 million a year without government help.

Government employees seem peculiarly skilled at spending considerably more than necessary for common items. The Defense Department recently spend $312.50. for generator knobs worth $1.62, and $1.55 apiece for nuts and bolts available for 6c to the average citizen.

It is obvious that having almost unlimited sumes ool other people's money to spend has not made government bureaucrats economy-minded. HLH.

Ten centuries from now, says a scientist, man will have no teeth. Even so, it's doubtful that he'll be able to gum up things any more than he's doing now.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

ROCKEFELLER'S IN

On April 11 Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson flatly forecast that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would announce for the Republican nomination for president. On April 30 he did exactly that.

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Bobby Kennedy has glamor but has he maturity? People remember his early job with Joe McCarthy; Friends claim Bobby realizes his past mistakes.

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson today continue their diagnosis of the Presidential candidates, this time focusing on Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.)

WASHINGTON — Robert F. Kennedy is a man with a terrific Senate record, a lot of courage — sometimes bordering on gall — and a strong belief in the divine right of Kennedys. Though the 13 colonies discarded the divine right of kings 100 years before Bobby's Irish ancestors migrated to Boston, he still operates on the theory that the nearest relative should inherit the White House throne.

What the American voter will have to decide is whether he wants a president whose chief qualifications are brilliant ability — not always well directed — a lot of political know-how, access to a family fortune of $300,000,000 and the glamor of the Kennedy name. The voter will also have to decide whether Bobby has matured enough to profit from the mistakes of the past.

This judgment will have to be exercised particularly by liberal voters who tend to regard Bobby as their new knight in shining armor, but who regarded his late employer, Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, as the embodiment of evil.

Bobby latched onto McCarthy's staff as a result of the fact that old Joe Kennedy early had contributed $50,000 to the Wisconsin Senator's witch-hunting campaign and helped in a conference with the late Cardinal Spellman to plot McCarthy's course. Old Joe, therefore, was in a position to ask that his son be put on McCarthy's payroll. He was.

MCCARTHY EXPOSED

Significantly, this was at a time when most mature citizens had reason to realize that McCarthy was a fake. He had been thoroughly exposed for defending the Nazi storm troopers who massacred unarmed prisoners at Malmedy in the Battle of the Bulge. He had challenged the patriotism of Gens. George Marshall and Dwight Eisenhower. He had teamed up with anti-semitic rabble-rouser Gerald L. K. Smith in an investigation of Anna Rosenberg. He had slandered dozens of loyal Americans without evidence. He had called the Democratic party the "Party of Treason" and accused the Truman Administration of harboring 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department.

Bobby Kennedy now wants to be head of the Democratic party and receive the blessing of the Trumanites.

Sen. Kennedy's friends now argue that he was too young to pass judgment on Joe McCarthy, that he knows his mistake now that he has become a liberal. The truth is, however, that Bobby has never repudiated the demagogue from Wisconsin. When in July 1953 every Senator walked off McCarthy's committee in protest over his methods, Bobby remained on his staff. He finally quit three weeks later because he couldn't get along with Roy Cohn, then General Counsel.

Two years afterward, Bobby walked out of a banquet where he was being honored as one of the nation's ten "outstanding young men" because the main speaker, the late Edward R. Murrow, was critical of Joe McCarthy.

When McCarthy died in 1957, Kennedy not only attended the funeral in Washington but also flew to Appleton, Wis., for the interment.

Bobby's biggest investigation for McCarthy was into allied trade with Communist China during the Korean War. Kennedy was outraged over the fact that the British, Greeks and other allies were shipping supplies to the Chinese for possible use against American troops in Korea.

KENNEDY SWITCH

Yet when the same question came up 13 years later, Sen. Robert Kennedy voted against cutting off foreign aid to countries engaged in trade with North Vietnam. As the liberal lodestar, he was no longer indignant against shipments that might be used against American troops — in this case in Vietnam.

During his Communist-hunting days, Bobby also presented the case against Capt. Irving Peress, whose promotion to major gave the right wing a cause celebre. McCarthy had made Peress a national figure after Peress took the Fifth Amendment rather than answer questions about alleged Communist ties. From coast to coast, the right-wing claque cried, "Who promoted Peress?"

It was Bobby Kennedy who, at a Senate hearing, put the question to Peress which later reverberated around the nation via the right wing.

The late President Kennedy has been criticized for not sounding off against McCarthy as did other Democratic senators. In explanation JFK told James McGregor Burns: "I was rather in ill grace personally to be around hollering about what McCarthy had done in 1952 and 1951 when my brother had been on the staff in 1953. That is really the guts of the matter."

Perhaps this is why old Joe Kennedy bolstered up his third son. "He's a great kid. He hates the same way I do."

Has Sen. Kennedy now grown up enough to profit from the mistakes of the past? A future column will attempt to give the answer.

SOUTHERN STRATEGY

Southern Democrats are talking about uniting behind a regional favorite son, to bolster their bargaining position at the Presidential Convention. By standing together, they hope to be able to win the vice presidential nomination for their candidate.

The biggest problem, apparently, is to agree upon a favorite son. No poll has been taken, but a majority of southern leaders seem to prefer Gov. John Connally of Texas.

CRIME WATCH:

Unreported Two-Way Radio Network Covers Workers and Streets in 500 Cities.

CLEVELAND — Here they're on the Community Radio Watch.

Thousands of citizen volunteers, drivers of trucks, buses, taxis, delivery "wagons" equipped with two-way radios, look out for killers, muggers, roving gangs, looters, burglars, civil disorders, dangerous situations and fearful lone workers.

Here, as in a network of 500 other cities and communities — soon to escalate to 800—the radio watchers flash word to their dispatchers who in turn signal police, firefighters, sheriffs, hospitals, the Coast Guard and the military, if necessary.

Nobody wants to hurt anybody. But nobody wants to get hurt—on or off the job.

And it's time someone said it bluntly—lots of working people are being slugged, mugged, bruised, beaten, and even killed as they earn their daily bread.

You can't philosophize with the widows or the dead. There's crime in the streets and many unions and thousands of firms have banded together in a fantastic unreported do-it-yourself crime-fighting campaign to help harassed police departments, municipal leaders and one-man small town safety headquarters.

People are frightened. How can they not be? In San Francisco on the night of April 9, a single rifle shot killed bus driver Martin Whitted. A few minutes later his change maker was stolen.

A report from Houston reveals that bus robberies have tripled in each of the past few years. As of March 11, there had been 128 bus holdups this year according to Capt. L. C. Colley, head of the robbery squad.

At a recent House Postal Committee hearing, Jack Leventhal, president of the Brooklyn section of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO, told a grim story of regular mass holdup days. These fall on the first and 16th of each month when the carriers deliver thousands of welfare and pension checks.

This is a new trend. In the past the thieves would rifle individual letter boxes. Now, he said, they waylay the post office man and just snatch the loot in bulk.

One member of his local died after a brutal beating. Another died from a heart attack after pursuing a robber.

Leventhal's colleague, James Rademacher, a union vice president, reported the assaults, thievery, disdain for the uniform and disrespect for law and order have made the job of a letter carrier increasingly dangerous in many large cities.

Nor do other public service workers find it easier to work for a living. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. provides sleeping quarters for its night operators in Baltimore (when not on strike) to safeguard them, for it's not safe to leave the building at night.

Welfare workers always seem to be under siege. Municipal employes union records are filled with grim—and ghastly—reports of beatings, an occasional death, rape, and long sieges. Many sleep in their centers at night when work has kept them in after nightfall.

One welfare worker, a member of the State, County and Municipal Employes, almost lost an eye when an assailant thrust a lit cigarette into it.

Private business does not better. The new thievery hits free enterprise as well as public services. So some businessmen gathered one day in Cincinnati at the end of 1966, according to the records, and launched what is now known as the Community Radio Watch program.

It covers more than half the nation's cities with populations of 100,000 or more. Some 26,000 firms and scores of unions are involved in the two-way radio system. The "Watch" is sponsored by the Communications Division of Motorola Corp. It's the largest citizens anticrime operation of modern times.

The "Watch" is kept by railroad men as well as bus drivers and over the highway truck drivers.

It's helping. Some day, men and women will again be able to go about their business, day or night, earning their daily bread free from the young marauders, dope addicts, and thugs who are turning the main drags of our big cities into jungles.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

The biggest issue in this presidential election year is law and order.

The reference is to the substance not to lip service.

Late in his administration–too late–President Lyndon B. Johnson endorsed law and order but it came after he chanted the songs of pressure groups, the nation's cities were burned and pillaged and Americans were killed and injured.

The next president must promise to provide the leadership to restore law and order. He must outline specifically how he will exercise this leadership.

Then if he is elected he must keep his pledge.

This is the minimum need of America.

The breakdown in law and order began in the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Sit down strikes were tolerated. Union workers occupied industrial plants illegally during strikes. There was no production. This process forced management to settle the strikes on the unions' terms.

It won federal government support because it was in behalf of what they considered a good cause and an excellent vote builder.

Lawlessness, usually condoned by federal officials, has now grown to the point where traffic is blocked, commerce is stopped, the educational process all all levels disrupted, private and public property destroyed, people are murdered and maimed, property is openly pillaged and vandalized, the military service is obstructed, aid and comfort is given the enemy and the crime rate soars.

America has become a land of mob rule, civil disobediance and anarchy all in the name of so-called good causes, which appeal to the conscience.

Lawlessness and intimidation are not only condoned they are rewarded and supported openly by the federal government.

In the attorney general's office sits an apologist for law and order–weak kneed Ramsey Clark. Federal employes have often formented disorders.

While he sits idly by mouthing platitudes this country's historic government by law submits to blackmailers, whose illegal operations are excused falsely as involving their right to dissent.

The nation faces its gravest crisis.

Americans can do something about it.

They have the privilege of speaking out and acting against law violaters and those who support their activities. They can write to members of congress in protest.

They can vote against the public officials, who have tolerated and appeased the nation's growing ranks of criminals, anarchists, arsonists, vandals and murders.

Their neglect could be fatal to the nation.

MAY AND VIOLETS

They are not necessarily synonymous, but it is hard to think of May without violets. And May Day, back when it was sentimental rather than socially significant, was always marked by May baskets brimming with violets. Springtime, May, young love and violets - they were all there, together, in those fragile paper baskets.

Spring brings earlier flowers, a few, but none better known or more widely distributed. More than 80 species of violets grow in the United States, in damp meadows, rich woodlands, upland pastures, at rural roadsides and on dry, sandy plains. In color they range from white through yellow to all shades of blue and purple; and their close cousins, the johnny-jump-ups or wild pansies, mingle these colors in the same blossom.

White violets have a rich, sweet fragrance. The blues and purples have only the woodsy, outdoors smell of spring. But all are rich with nectar, as the bees well know. Bumblebees are specially fond of the common blue violets that spread heart-shaped leaves and lift long- stemmed flowers almost everywhere. So are Saturday-free children. So are country grownups.

The old herbalists used violets for inflammations of the chest and lungs. Violets, they said, "specially comforteth the heart." They still do, as any Maytime wanderer will testify. Blue sky, warm sun and roadside violets are as comforting a discovery as any heart could ask of the burgeoning countryside.

It seems to me that I am hearing more and more favorable comment on the column which quoted Abe Lincoln on respect and enforcement of law than most any I have had lately. People of the state, if Macon County is any criterion, are strongly behind the law enforcement officers as they go about doing their duty.

Law enforcement officers are human and they may err, but usually they err under stress and many of us do the same thing, even though it is not an act in public areas.

I have been a member of a young man's Sunday School Class at the Baptist Church here, not because I try to kid myself in being young, but I once taught the class and I have a deep regard for the young men who make up the class membership.

Sunday the question of law enforcement crept into the discussion and I was pleasantly surprised at the stand these young men are taking. They decry some of the efforts of those who lead in the church to discredit law enforcement and believe, as do I, that the church is done a disservice when a member of the clergy gets mixed up in such matters.

Not only do these young men hold fast to law enforcement and to the backing of the law enforcement officers, but a former educational executive with whom I talked Sunday also feels the same way.

Law enforcement officers must never feel that they have no backing in doing their duty. They do and the good people of the state and the nation should speak out and say so.

But it was far from the desert variety, or the kind cliches used to put into spinach. It was special stuff for use in water refineries.

But he inherits the world because his horizons are so boundless.

He may miss a great deal in the immediate environment including much small talk and a great many television programs, which, to put it mildly, do not add to the sum total of human wisdom.

One of the things that always impressed us about reading was the disdain drunks have for it.

We formerly read the Reader's Digest from cover to cover on the buses and street cars.

Every drunk, who boarded these public conveyances, always became irritated by our reading habits.

Why this was so, we do not know, but it may have been because they were intoxicated and wanted to occupy the center of the stage.

Since drunks aren't completely rational, the human being, who doesn't follow their advice, may have at least acquired a small measure of wisdom.

Reading is a talent that isn't properly appreciated outside of the elementary school classes in which it is a major requirement.

There are talent contests for everything else including spelling.

Why not a talent contest for readers?

If there was a way to measure their knowledge and to demonstrate it dramatically, many more could be persuaded to read.

The country would benefit from having more informed citizens.

Even the act of voting isn't sufficient to preserve our form of government. It must be informed voting to be beneficial. One way to become informed is to read.

YOUR SILENT PARTNER

"EVERY MERCHANT must recognize the fact that the most powerful single influence in any community is its newspaper," declared the head of a recent Media Study Group.

"The prosperity of a community depends upon the prosperity of its newspapers, thus enabling them to render such services from which the retail merchants derive indirect benefit. So the prosperity of any merchant depends upon how closely he links his business with the public mind through the newspapers.

"Newspapers are silent partners in every business within their community. They become an active partner in an individual business when it identifies itself through advertising.

"If more merchants had followed the example of the most successful merchants (in maintaining their advertising) throughout the depression, the volum of retail business would have been greater than it was."

Telephone us today and your partner will start working to bring you business.

The evening had been going along very well, but now, at the critical moment, the girl wouldn't let the fellow into her apartment. Her excuse was then: "My roommate's home."

Bitter, her date said, "In other words, I'm supposed to ignore this doormat that says 'Welcome'?"

"Of course, silly," she laughed. "There's hardly room enough for us on that!"

IN THE MAIL: "Please settle a question for us. Should the bottom button on a vest be buttoned or left unbuttoned?" Well, it's usually left unbuttoned for several reasons -- because that's been the accepted version for as far back as we can remember, and because the contour of the wearer, and the construction of the vest, makes it fit better with the bottom button unbuttoned. . . "I have never been able to buy a sport shirt with a collar that fits me like my regular shirts. Why not?" A sport shirt collar is not supposed to fit that perfectly - it should be casual, comfortable and easier-fitting.

READY TO COOL OFF LONG, HOT SUMMER

If there is a long, hot summer in 1968, it will not be for want of preparedness on the part of those who will have to deal with it.

Statements by any number of local and state and federal authorities make one wonder whether what is being talked about is the United States or South Vietnam, Chicago or Saigon. But if the Viet Cong's offensive in Vietnamese cities caught the government off guard, the only thing that will surprise it here is if our homegrown guerrillas remain relatively quiescent come warm weather.

The Army, for instance, has announced that it is stockpiling riot-control equipment in some half-dozen strategically located depots across the country. It is also prepared to airlift aid to any city where civil disorders break out.

So extensive is the planning that everything from maps of subway, sewer, water and electrical systems in potential trouble spots to the daily menus of National Guardsmen have been assembled.

Los Angeles police have created 15 four-man "Special Weapons and Tactics Teams" and are forming 30 more to deal with snipers and fire bombers. They will SWAT Watts if it rises again.

Nor is the planning confined only to the immediate future. Writing in National Guardsman magazine, Col. Frank B. Rigg, (USA, ret.) foresees guard units being required to be in action for months and even years in protracted urban guerrilla warfare -- "one of the nastiest forms of warfare known to mankind."

He visualizes such pleasant prospects as the roads into cities being blocked off, forcing soldiers to parachute into "skyscraper jungles" to fight their way down through buildings. Helicopters will make sudden landings with assault troops or hoover overhead dropping smoke bombs on mobs of rioters.

In Illinois, the sheriff of Cook County began enlisting volunteers in a 1,000-man civilian vigilante force (half white and half black) until his plan was stalled by court action.

In Ohio, the state legislature is debating a law that would exempt police and military personnel from any criminal liability for actions taken to quell a riot, though strenuous objections by civil libertarians make its passage doubtful.

All that is lacking to complete this dismal picture is for the government to announce that pacification teams will be sent in after urban "seize-and-hold" operations "to win the minds and hearts of the people" so that we may achieve peace in our time.

And who is this fearsome "enemy" who is throwing the country into the greatest panic since the Millerites awaited the end of the world in 1844? Evidently, only a handful of loud-talking, hard-core black powerists.

According to a report made for the President's Youth Opportunities Council, a survey of 11 cities found the dominant mood of the majority of Negro youths in city ghettos to be one not of anger but of tragic apathy. The report charges that summer programs in the past have been inspired out of fear of a minority of angry youths and "administered in a vain attempt to 'cool' the ghetto and thus maintain the status quo."

It all begins to sound just too much like Vietnam to be comfortable. In America, as in Vietnam, is this country's ultimate answer to everything to be nothing but raw force?

Ten centuries from now, says a scientist, man will have no teeth.

Even so, it's doubtful that he'll be able to gum up things any more than he's doing now.

H.L. Hunt Says

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

A survey of some recent United States government expenditures, made by Congressman H. R. Gross (R., Iowa). should cause the American citizen to inquire how necessary much of our government spending really is.

Officials of the Agency for International Development recently discovered that $400,000 of its appropriation was unspent. Instead of saving the money so that the next year's appropriation could be reduced, they devoted themselves to finding some way, any way, to spend the money. The final solution to the "problem" was to buy 1,000 television sets to "educate" natives in the jungle. No one seemed worried that the natives had no electricity and so could not use television.

Bureaucrats always seem willing to spend vast sums of money to teach people how to do things they already do quite well. One agency decided the United States government should give the Nationalist Chinese government $2.5 million to train Formosans and Japanese to grow vegetables, even though these peoples are among the best vegetable growers in the world. Similarly, the Office of Economic Opportunity gave the Zuni Indians a grant to improve their jewelry business, although they already make more than $2 million a year without government help.

Government employees seem peculiarly skilled at spending considerably more than necessary for common items. The Defense Department recently spend $312.50. for generator knobs worth $1.62, and $1.55 apiece for nuts and bolts available for 6c to the average citizen.

It is obvious that having almost unlimited sumes oof other people's money to spend has not made government bureaucrats economy-minded. HLH.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

ROCKEFELLER'S IN

On April 11 Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson flatly forecast that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would announce for the Republican nomination for president. On April 30 he did exactly that.

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Bobby Kennedy has glamor but has he maturity? People remember his early job with Joe McCarthy; Friends claim Bobby realizes his past mistakes.

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson today continue their diagnosis of the Presidential candidates, this time focusing on Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.)

WASHINGTON — Robert F. Kennedy is a man with a terrific Senate record, a lot of courage — sometimes bordering on gall — and a strong belief in the divine right of Kennedys. Though the 13 colonies discarded the divine right of kings 100 years before Bobby's Irish ancestors migrated to Boston, he still operates on the theory that the nearest relative should inherit the White House throne.

What the American voter will have to decide is whether he wants a president whose chief qualifications are brilliant ability — not always well directed — a lot of political know-how, access to a family fortune of $300,000,000 and the glamor of the Kennedy name. The voter will also have to decide whether Bobby has matured enough to profit from the mistakes of the past.

This judgment will have to be exercised particularly by liberal voters who tend to regard Bobby as their new knight in shining armor, but who regarded his late employer, Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, as the embodiment of evil.

Bobby latched onto McCarthy's staff as a result of the fact that old Joe Kennedy early had contributed $50,000 to the Wisconsin Senator's witch-hunting campaign and helped in a conference with the late Cardinal Spellman to plot McCarthy's course. Old Joe, therefore, was in a position to ask that his son be put on McCarthy's payroll. He was.

MCCARTHY EXPOSED

Significantly, this was at a time when most mature citizens had reason to realize that McCarthy was a fake. He had been thoroughly exposed for defending the Nazi storm troopers who massacred unarmed prisoners at Malmedy in the Battle of the Bulge. He had challenged the patriotism of Gens. George Marshall and Dwight Eisenhower. He had teamed up with anti-semitic rabble-rouser Gerald L. K. Smith in an investigation of Anna Rosenberg. He had slandered dozens of loyal Americans without evidence. He had called the Democratic party the "Party of Treason" and accused the Truman Administration of harboring 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department.

Bobby Kennedy now wants to be head of the Democratic party and receive the blessing of the Trumanites.

Sen. Kennedy's friends now argue that he was too young to pass judgment on Joe McCarthy, that he knows his mistake now that he has become a liberal. The truth is, however, that Bobby has never repudiated the demagogue from Wisconsin. When in July 1953 every Senator walked off McCarthy's committee in protest over his methods, Bobby remained on his staff. He finally quit three weeks later because he couldn't get along with Roy Cohn, then General Counsel.

Two years afterward, Bobby walked out of a banquet where he was being honored as one of the nation's ten "outstanding young men" because the main speaker, the late Edward R. Murrow, was critical of Joe McCarthy.

When McCarthy died in 1957, Kennedy not only attended the funeral in Washington but also flew to Appleton, Wis., for the interment.

Bobby's biggest investigation for McCarthy was into allied trade with Communist China during the Korean War. Kennedy was outraged over the fact that the British, Greeks and other allies were shipping supplies to the Chinese for possible use against American troops in Korea.

KENNEDY SWITCH

Yet when the same question came up 13 years later, Sen. Robert Kennedy voted against cutting off foreign aid to countries engaged in trade with North Vietnam. As the liberal lodestar, he was no longer indignant against shipments that might be used against American troops — in this case in Vietnam.

During his Communist-hunting days, Bobby also presented the case against Capt. Irving Peress, whose promotion to major gave the right wing a cause celebre. McCarthy had made Peress a national figure after Peress took the Fifth Amendment rather than answer questions about alleged Communist ties. From coast to coast, the right-wing claque cried, "Who promoted Peress!"

It was Bobby Kennedy who, at a Senate hearing, put the question to Peress which later reverberated around the nation via the right wing.

The late President Kennedy has been criticized for not sounding off against McCarthy as did other Democratic senators. In explanation JFK told James McGregor Burns: "I was rather in ill grace personally to be around hollering about what McCarthy had done in 1952 and 1951 when my brother had been on the staff in 1953. That is really the guts of the matter."

Perhaps this is why old Joe Kennedy bolstered up his third son. "He's a great kid. He hates the same way I do."

Has Sen. Kennedy now grown up enough to profit from the mistakes of the past? A future column will attempt to give the answer.

SOUTHERN STRATEGY

Southern Democrats are talking about uniting behind a regional favorite son, to bolster their bargaining position at the Presidential Convention. By standing together, they hope to be able to win the vice presidential nomination for their candidate.

The biggest problem, apparently, is to agree upon a favorite son. No poll has been taken, but a majority of southern leaders seem to prefer Gov. John Connally of Texas.

Inside Labor

CRIME WATCH:

Unreported Two-Way Radio Network Covers Workers and Streets in 500 Cities.

CLEVELAND — Here they're on the Community Radio Watch.

Thousands of citizen volunteers, drivers of trucks, buses, taxis, delivery "wagons" equipped with two-way radios, look out for killers, muggers, roving gangs, looters, burglars, civil disorders, dangerous situations and fearful lone workers.

Here, as in a network of 500 other cities and communities — soon to escalate to 800—the radio watchers flash word to their dispatchers who in turn signal police, firefighters, sheriffs, hospitals, the Coast Guard and the military, if necessary.

Nobody wants to hurt anybody. But nobody wants to get hurt—on or off the job.

And it's time someone said it bluntly—lots of working people are being slugged, mugged, bruised, beaten, and even killed as they earn their daily bread.

You can't philosophize with the widows or the dead. There's crime in the streets and many unions and thousands of firms have banded together in a fantastic unreported do-it-yourself crime-fighting campaign to help harassed police departments, municipal leaders and one-man small town safety headquarters.

People are frightened. How can they not be? In San Francisco on the night of April 9, a single rifle shot killed bus driver Martin Whitted. A few minutes later his change maker was stolen.

A report from Houston reveals that bus robberies have tripled in each of the past few years. As of March 11, there had been 128 bus holdups this year according to Capt. L. C. Colley, head of the robbery squad.

At a recent House Postal Committee hearing, Jack Leventhal, president of the Brooklyn section of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO, told a grim story of regular mass holdup days. These fall on the first and 16th of each month when the carriers deliver thousands of welfare and pension checks.

This is a new trend. In the past the thieves would rifle individual letter boxes. Now, he said, they waylay the post office man and just snatch the loot in bulk.

One member of his local died after a brutal beating. Another died from a heart attack after pursuing a robber.

Leventhal's colleague, James Rademacher, a union vice president, reported the assaults, thievery, disdain for the uniform and disrespect for law and order have made the job of a letter carrier increasingly dangerous in many large cities.

Nor do other public service workers find it easier to work for a living. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. provides sleeping quarters for its night operators in Baltimore (when not on strike) to safeguard them, for it's not safe to leave the building at night.

Welfare workers always seem to be under siege. Municipal employes union records are filled with grim—and ghastly—reports of beatings, an occasional death, rape, and long sieges. Many sleep in their centers at night when work has kept them in after nightfall.

One welfare worker, a member of the State, County and Municipal Employes, almost lost an eye when an assailant thrust a lit cigarette into it.

Private business does not better. The new thievery hits free enterprise as well as public services. So some businessmen gathered one day in Cincinnati at the end of 1966, according to the records, and launched what is now known as the Community Radio Watch program.

It covers more than half the nation's cities with populations of 100,000 or more. Some 26,000 firms and scores of unions are involved in the two-way radio system. The "Watch" is sponsored by the Communications Division of Motorola Corp. It's the largest citizens anticrime operation of modern times.

The "Watch" is kept by railroad men as well as bus drivers and over the highway truck drivers.

It's helping. Some day, men and women will again be able to go about their business, day or night, earning their daily bread free from the young marauders, dope addicts, and thugs who are turning the main drags of our big cities into jungles.

Peggy Porter Weds Stanley Robertson

Mrs. and Mrs. Stanley A. Robertson

BENTON -- The Methodist church was the setting April 20 for the wedding of Peggy Ann Porter and Stanley A. Robertson.

The Rev. Frank Black of Belle, assisted by Rev. Albert Gibbs, Benton, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli mums and daisies. Tree candelabra were placed on either side of the altar.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr., organist. Mrs. Wallace Alden was soloist.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. Her floor length gown was made of imported silk organza over taffeta. The high botique neckline and front of the gown was trimmed with motifs of lace entwined with seed pearls. Long tapered sleeves came to a point over the hands, accented with lace motifs.

The front of the skirt was A shaped. Soft gathering at the back of the waist floated into a full chapel-length train. Motifs of the lace also graced the bottom of the train. Her bouffant illusion veil was capped with organza floretts outlined with seed pearls and lily of the valley sprays. She carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Her maid of honor was Miss Diane Swinger of Benton. Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Fesler of St. Louis, and Mrs. Robert Crowell of Fayette. They wore identical floor-length gowns of yellow linen weave. The brief front yolk was outlined with lace daisies. The close fitted neckline was plain dipping to a deep V in the back. The dresses were accepted by floor-length floating panels. They wore a loop bow with nosetip veil to match the gowns. They carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Kathy Gail Woodfin, Cape Girardeau, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a short yellow linen dress gathered from a white rounded yolk trimmed in yellow daisies. Her bow and veil was identical to that of bridesmaids. She carried a basket of yellow daisies.

Gregory Robertson, Norfolk, Va., brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Dale Hotze, Normandy, and Richard Kandler, Chicago. Ushers were David Porter, Memphis, brother of the bride and Donald Skaggs, Crocker.

The reception was held in the lower auditorium of the church immediately following the ceremony. The serving table was covered with yellow cloth overlaid with a handmade white linen and lace cloth that has been in the bride's family for four generations. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and yellow daisies. Guests were served by Miss Linda Shaw, Charleston; Miss Mary Jane Strode, Kirkwood, Miss Pat Wendling, St. Louis; and Mrs. David Porter, sister-in-law of the bride, of Memphis. Miss Sandra Behring, Fredericktown, attended the guest book.

Peggy Porter Weds Stanley Robertson

Mrs. and Mrs. Stanley A. Robertson

BENTON -- The Methodist church was the setting April 20 for the wedding of Peggy Ann Porter and Stanley A. Robertson.

The Rev. Frank Black of Belle, assisted by Rev. Albert Gibbs, Benton, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli mums and daisies. Tree candelabra were placed on either side of the altar.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr., organist. Mrs. Wallace Alden was soloist.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. Her floor length gown was made of imported silk organza over taffeta. The high botique neckline and front of the gown was trimmed with motifs of lace entwined with seed pearls. Long tapered sleeves came to a point over the hands, accented with lace motifs.

The front of the skirt was A shaped. Soft gathering at the back of the waist floated into a full chapel-length train. Motifs of the lace also graced the bottom of the train. Her bouffant illusion veil was capped with organza floretts outlined with seed pearls and lily of the valley sprays. She carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Her maid of honor was Miss Diane Swinger of Benton. Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Fesler of St. Louis, and Mrs. Robert Crowell of Fayette. They wore identical floor-length gowns of yellow linen weave. The brief front yolk was outlined with lace daisies. The close fitted neckline was plain dipping to a deep V in the back. The dresses were accepted by floor-length floating panels. They wore a loop bow with nosetip veil to match the gowns. They carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Kathy Gail Woodfin, Cape Girardeau, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a short yellow linen dress gathered from a white rounded yolk trimmed in yellow daisies. Her bow and veil was identical to that of bridesmaids. She carried a basket of yellow daisies.

Gregory Robertson, Norfolk, Va., brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Dale Hotze, Normandy, and Richard Kandler, Chicago. Ushers were David Porter, Memphis, brother of the bride and Donald Skaggs, Crocker.

The reception was held in the lower auditorium of the church immediately following the ceremony. The serving table was covered with yellow cloth overlaid with a handmade white linen and lace cloth that has been in the bride's family for four generations. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and yellow daisies. Guests were served by Miss Linda Shaw, Charleston; Miss Mary Jane Strode, Kirkwood, Miss Pat Wendling, St. Louis; and Mrs. David Porter, sister-in-law of the bride, of Memphis. Miss Sandra Behring, Fredericktown, attended the guest book.

The new Mrs. Robertson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs Hess Porter, of Benton, and is completing her junior year at Central Methodist College Fayette. Robertson is the son o Col. and Mrs. R. S. Robertson Quantico, Va. He attended Central Methodist College and i now serving in the navy, Grea Lakes, Ill.

Wearing cotton may be one way to keep well! Medical researchers have discovered that viruses do not live as long on cotton as they do on other fabrics. While a virus may live for three months on some fabrics, it will only last about three days on cotton. If the cotton fabric is treated with a wash and wear chemical, the virus only lives one day.

Cards Bow to Astros; NL in Spitball Trouble

HOUSTON (AP)—John Bateman and Denny LeMaster spell trouble to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The trouble amounted to a 4-0 loss Thursday night at the hands of the Houston pair who seem to be especially effective against the world champs. LeMaster hurled a 3-hit shutout and Bateman cracked a homer.

It was the 12th career shutout for LeMaster and he remarked, "Five or six of them have been against the Cardinals."

Bateman, who collected his homer with none on base in the fourth inning, hit only two round-trippers all of last year and both came against the Cardinals. Bateman was walked intentionally three times in the two-game series which ended Thursday night.

"I don't know what it is," said Cards' manager Red Schoendienst. "But every time Bateman goes up there something happens. He's really tough on us."

LeMaster now holds a 2-3 record on the season. For Nelson Briles, now 4-1, the Cardinals' pitcher, it was his first loss since last August and halted a 14-game winning streak.

The Cardinals play at San Francisco today with Steve Carlton (2-0) of St. Louis set to face the Giants' Juan Marichal (3-1). Houston entertains Atlanta.

Nolan Ryan has some advice for John Boozer. Pickle brine. It keeps you out of spitball trouble with the umpires.

The Great Spitball Controversy erupted again Thursday night in the midst of the New York Mets' 3-0 victory over Philadelphia.

Phillies' reliever John Boozer was beginning his warmups in the seventh inning and was amazed to hear umpire Ed Vargo yell, "ball one."

"How can he be charged with a ball on a warmup pitch?" screamed Manager Gene Mauch. "He went to his mouth inside the 18-foot circle of the mound," said Vargo, "and that's a ball anytime."

A discussion ensued, with Mauch ordering Boozer to spit on his hand twice more and Vargo calling balls two and three and ejecting the by-now bewildered pitcher.

Mauch inquired what would happen if Dick Hall, who replaced Boozer, should commit the same offense.

"I'll forfeit the game to the Mets," said Vargo, ending the discussion. So by the time Bud Harrelson of the Mets finally got up, the count was 3-0.

Ryan, the winning pitcher who allowed just three hits in the seven innings he pitched, said he stays out of trouble because of the pickle brine prescribed by trainer Gus Mauch to treat blisters on his pitching hand.

"I don't like pickles," said Ryan, who was lifted after throwing 136 pitches and striking out 10. "But the brine is doing the job. I keep dipping my finger in a jar of the stuff.

"Only trouble is I don't like the smell. It bothers me, especially when I bring my hand to my mouth. Outside the 18-foot circle, of course."

In other National League games Thursday, Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 2-1 in 17 innings, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Chicago shut out Pitt burgh 1-0 and Cincinnati downed San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Boston beat California 4-1, Baltimore took New York 7-3 and Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2.

Bob Bailey drove in two runs with singles 11 innings apart as the Dodgers won the longest game they have played since moving to Los Angeles 10 years ago. The Braves tied the game in the ninth on Felix Millan's run-scoring infield single.

Denny Lemaster threw a three-hitter at the league-leading Cardinals and the Astros broke Nelson Briles' consecutive victory string of 13. He had won four this season and nine at the end of the 1967 campaign. Briles singled in the sixth for the first St. Louis hit.

Joe Niekro scattered six hits and Ernie Banks homered for the only run of the game off Jim Bunning in the Cubs' victo y. The victory ended a three-game Pirate winning streak and a three-game Chicago losing string.

Johnny Bench came up with a bases-loaded single with two out in the 11th to break open the Cincinnati-San Francisco game and before the inning was over the Reds had scored twice more. Willie McCovey and Jim Hart each hit his fifth homer for the Giants.

No-hit Tom Phoebus said he didn't have very much Thursday night but the surging Baltimore Orioles have plenty to show for it today.

In his first start since his nohitter last Saturday, the stocky right-hander yielded six hits and whipped the New York Yankees 7-3, becoming the first American League pitcher to win four games.

In the only other contests, Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2 on Tony Oliva's 10th-inning single and Boston trimmed California 4-1. Detroit's league lead shrank to a half-game over Baltimore and one game over Minnesota.

In the National League, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Cincinnati whipped San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 1-0, New York defeated Philadelphia 3-0 and Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 1 in 17 innings.

Celts Regain NBA Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boston's Celtics once again rule the National Basketball Association roost after what Bill Russell terms "one of the greatest victories of all the championships we've won."

The 6-foot-9 player-coach referred not only to Thursday night's 124-109 triumph in the Forum, home of the Lakers, but to the playoffs over-all.

For Russell it meant the first title as a coach for after Boston won eight straight under Red Auerbach. The Celtics were beaten out last year by the Philadelphia 76ers.

Big Bill figures this one of the finest seasons because "this Celtic team is not one of the most talented that I have been on."

Literally, however, they blew the Lakers off the court in the first half to build a 20-point advantage at 70-50. John Havlicek, who wound up with 40, and Bailey Howell, with 30, led the assault.

Los Angeles played poorly in the finale which gave Boston the series by a 4-2 count, the sixth time in the modern reign of the Celtics that the Lakers have been their final victims.

Boston built a 35-28 first-quarter advantage before the 17,398 in the new Forum and then surged to a 20-point lead early in the second stanza.

Elgin Baylor missed a free throw and incredibly failed on a stuff shot moments later. Havlicek was fouled in the back court, sank two free throws so instead of Los Angeles collecting three points, the Celtics had two. In the space of scant minutes they scored 15 points to a pair for Los Angeles.

Late in the third period, Los Angeles closed to within 11 points at 82-71 and again at 8473.

"I thought we were going to do it when they got down to those 11, but they shot right up," commented Laker Coach Bill van Breda Kolff.

In the American Basketball Association, the New Orleans Bucs and the Pittsburgh Pipers will engage in their showdown battle for the championship Saturday night in Pittsburgh. The best-of-7 series is tied at three victories for each team.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes

The old paraphrased idea that "fish are where you find them" has been worked to death. Most folks agree with the adage; many promptly ignore it once they get in a boat. When you see a guy flailing the same area for a long period without any encouragement by the fish, you're witnessing neglect angling's basic tenant.

Instead of waiting for fish to come to you, go looking for them. Fish are not evenly distributed throughout a lake or river, they note, and time spent looking pays off better than that just sitting and waiting.

While trolling is usually the best all-around fish-finder, other techniques may be equally good . . . depending on season, waters and species.

If you're a casting man, work the points for bass during the day, hopping to the next one down the shoreline when the first fails to produce after being explored. At night, work these same points again, but also probe back into the coves.

For white bass, alias sandies or barfish, crank up the outboard and literally go looking. Cruise along at a good clip until you find a school creating mayhem with shad on the surface. Cut the motor and cast right into the middle of the activity.

Dry fly fishermen look for surface boils; muskie addicts look for weeds; crappie fans troll deep to discover hidden brush. Even on the vastness of the ocean, coastal charter skippers keep their eyes "peeled" for circling gulls working over a school of bait—game fish are nearby.

Keep moving! Keep your attention glued for the telltale signs that indicate likely fish hangouts. Then fish.

Looking is the key to much fishing.

The Houston Mavericks of the American Baksetball Association purchased 6-foot-10 Tom Hoover from the Denver Rockets Thursday.

Ron Holmberg, Highland Falls, N. Y., moved into the quarter-finales of the Atlanta Invitational Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 7-5 victory Thursday over Bitsy Grant Jr., Atlanta.

Outfielder Frank Robinson has returned to Baltimore after being discharged from a California hospital, but still is confined to his home while recovering from an attack of mumps.

Barring further complications, he is expected to begin working out early next week.

He was hospitalized after playing a game April 20 in Anaheim, Calif.

Dogs Win District

Sikeston moved out to within three games of the state high school basketball title with a 13-5 district title victory over Hayti North at VFW stadium yesterday.

It heads toward Broseley where it faces power packed West Plains in regional competition.

Headed by the mighty bat of Mike Garner and the pitching of Bruce Farris, the Bulldogs make quick work of the Indians after they had taken the lead in the first.

The Bulldogs failed to advance past their sub-district tournament last year, suffering a loss to Oran, which later fell at the hands of the West Plains squad.

Sikeston's last appearance in the state tournament bracket was in 1966 when it battled its way to the semifinals before bowing to perenial champion Retinour.

Coach N. P. McDaniel will be no stranger to West Plains fans or players because of recent employment at the school as coach.

The West Plains team made it to the regionals by defeating Fisk in its district game by an overwhelming score of 21 to 4.

Sikeston looked a little tired yesterday after a long hot double header with the Charleston Blue Jays the day before but managed to do away with the Hayti team with little trouble.

Farris started on the mound for the Dogs and pitched the complete game. Several times it looked as if Farris might need help from Sikeston's top notch bullpen but he managed to get out of jams by striking out two to three batters in a row. He struck out 13 men in the ball game, a high for any Dog pitcher this year.

Hayti scored first by looping three singles over the heads of the Bulldog infielders. Farris bore down to strike out the final two batters of the inning to put out the fire.

Sikeston came back in its half of the inning to drive out four hits and score four runs. Garner, Roger McDaniel, Webb Edwards and Pat Hart hit for the Dogs. Garner started the inning off by blasting his third home run in two days way over the left field fence. It was his fourth homer of the year.

Hayti came fighting back in the second to tie the game 4-4. It did this with the help of three walks and two hits.

Sikeston was not going to let up on the visitors. It came back with three more runs in the bottom of the second. Garner and McDaniels each got their second hits of the day in this inning with Garners' being a double.

Hayti scored its last run in the third when it drilled out two hits and with the ai

Hayti scored its last run in the third when it drilled out two hits and with the aid of several mistakes and sloopy fielding on Sikeston's part pushed acrossits fifth run.

The Bulldogs let Hayti know in the bottom of the third that they wanted this game badly as they banged out three more hits and scored three runs to open the game up 10-5. Sorrells, Felker, McDaniel, Edwards, and the pitcher Farris got hits for the Bulldogs.

Farris bore down for Sikeston and White for Hayti on the mound controlling both teams well until the bottom of the sixth. Then Sikeston could be held no longer.

The Dogs boomed out three more hits and ran across the plate three more runs to run the score to what it would be at the end of the game 13-5. Sorrells, Garner and McDaniels got the hits for Sikeston.

Leading the Dogs at the plate was the team's second leading hitter, Roger McDaniel, with a four for five afternoon. Stan Sorrells and Garner each had three hits apiece. Webb Edwards had two hits. Bruce Farris, Pat Hart and Ed Felker had the other hits for the Dogs.

The victory moved the baseballers record to nine wins and three losses.

Garner and McDaniel with their fine day at the plate continued to lead the Dogs 1-2 in hitting by raising the averages to 5.95 and 5.53.

Cards Bow to Astros; NL in Spitball Trouble

HOUSTON (AP)—John Bateman and Denny LeMaster spell trouble to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The trouble amounted to a 4-0 loss Thursday night at the hands of the Houston pair who seem to be especially effective against the world champs. LeMaster hurled a 3-hit shutout and Bateman cracked a homer.

It was the 12th career shutout for LeMaster and he remarked, "Five or six of them have been against the Cardinals."

Bateman, who collected his homer with none on base in the fourth inning, hit only two round-trippers all of last year and both came against the Cardinals. Bateman was walked intentionally three times in the two-game series which ended Thursday night.

"I don't know what it is," said Cards' manager Red Schoendienst. "But every time Bateman goes up there something happens. He's really tough on us."

LeMaster now holds a 2-3 record on the season. For Nelson Briles, now 4-1, the Cardinals' pitcher, it was his first loss since last August and halted a 14-game winning streak.

The Cardinals play at San Francisco today with Steve Carlton (2-0) of St. Louis set to face the Giants' Juan Marichal (3-1). Houston entertains Atlanta.

Nolan Ryan has some advice for John Boozer. Pickle brine. It keeps you out of spitball trouble with the umpires.

The Great Spitball Controversy erupted again Thursday night in the midst of the New York Mets' 3-0 victory over Philadelphia.

Phillies' reliever John Boozer was beginning his warmups in the seventh inning and was amazed to hear umpire Ed Vargo yell, "ball one."

"How can he be charged with a ball on a warmup pitch?" screamed Manager Gene Mauch. "He went to his mouth inside the 18-foot circle of the mound," said Vargo, "and that's a ball anytime."

A discussion ensued, with Mauch ordering Boozer to spit on his hand twice more and Vargo calling balls two and three and ejecting the by-now bewildered pitcher.

Mauch inquired what would happen if Dick Hall, who replaced Boozer, should commit the same offense.

"I'll forfeit the game to the Mets," said Vargo, ending the discussion. So by the time Bud Harrelson of the Mets finally got up, the count was 3-0.

Ryan, the winning pitcher who allowed just three hits in the seven innings he pitched, said he stays out of trouble because of the pickle brine prescribed by trainer Gus Mauch to treat blisters on his pitching hand.

"I don't like pickles," said Ryan, who was lifted after throwing 136 pitches and striking out 10. "But the brine is doing the job. I keep dipping my finger in a jar of the stuff.

"Only trouble is I don't like the smell. It bothers me, especially when I bring my hand to my mouth. Outside the 18-foot circle, of course."

In other National League games Thursday, Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 2-1 in 17 innings, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Chicago shut out Pittsburgh 1-0 and Cincinnati downed San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Boston beat California 4-1, Baltimore took New York 7-3 and Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2.

Bob Bailey drove in two runs with singles 11 innings apart as the Dodgers won the longest game they have played since moving to Los Angeles 10 years ago. The Braves tied the game in the ninth on Felix Millan's run-scoring infield single.

Denny Lemaster threw a three-hitter at the league-leading Cardinals and the Astros broke Nelson Briles' consecutive victory string of 13. He had won four this season and nine at the end of the 1967 campaign. Briles singled in the sixth for the first St. Louis hit.

Joe Niekro scattered six hits and Ernie Banks homered for the only run of the game off Jim Bunning in the Cubs' victo y. The victory ended a three-game Pirate winning streak and a three-game Chicago losing string.

Johnny Bench came up with a bases-loaded single with two out in the 11th to break open the Cincinnati-San Francisco game and before the inning was over the Reds had scored twice more. Willie McCovey and Jim Hart each hit his fifth homer for the Giants.

No-hit Tom Phoebus said he didn't have very much Thursday night but the surging Baltimore Orioles have plenty to show for it today.

In his first start since his nohitter last Saturday, the stocky right-hander yielded six hits and whipped the New York Yankees 7-3, becoming the first American League pitcher to win four games.

In the only other contests, Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2 on Tony Oliva's 10th-inning single and Boston trimmed California 4-1. Detroit's league lead shrank to a half-game over Baltimore and one game over Minnesota.

In the National League, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Cincinnati whipped San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 1-0, New York defeated Philadelphia 3-0 and Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 1 in 17 innings.

Celts Regain NBA Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boston's Celtics once again rule the National Basketball Association roost after what Bill Russell terms "one of the greatest victories of all the championships we've won."

The 6-foot-9 player-coach referred not only to Thursday night's 124-109 triumph in the Forum, home of the Lakers, but to the playoffs over-all.

For Russell it meant the first title as a coach for after Boston won eight straight under Red Auerbach. The Celtics were beaten out last year by the Philadelphia 76ers.

Big Bill figures this one of the finest seasons because "this Celtic team is not one of the most talented that I have been on."

Literally, however, they blew the Lakers off the court in the first half to build a 20-point advantage at 70-50. John Havlicek, who wound up with 40, and Bailey Howell, with 30, led the assault.

Los Angeles played poorly in the finale which gave Boston the series by a 4-2 count, the sixth time in the modern reign of the Celtics that the Lakers have been their final victims.

Boston built a 35-28 first-quarter advantage before the 17,398 in the new Forum and then surged to a 20-point lead early in the second stanza.

Elgin Baylor missed a free throw and incredibly failed on a stuff shot moments later. Havlicek was fouled in the back court, sank two free throws so instead of Los Angeles collecting three points, the Celtics had two. In the space of scant minutes they scored 15 points to a pair for Los Angeles.

Late in the third period, Los Angeles closed to within 11 points at 82-71 and again at 84-73.

"I thought we were going to do it when they got down to those 11, but they shot right up," commented Laker Coach Bill van Breda Kolff.

In the American Basketball Association, the New Orleans Bucs and the Pittsburgh Pipers will engage in their showdown battle for the championship Saturday night in Pittsburgh. The best-of-7 series is tied at three victories for each team.

The old paraphrased idea that "fish are where you find them" has been worked to death. Most folks agree with the adage; many promptly ignore it once they get in a boat. When you see a guy flailing the same area for a long period without any encouragement by the fish, you're witnessing neglect angling's basic tenant.

Instead of waiting for fish to come to you, go looking for them. Fish are not evenly distributed throughout a lake or river, they note, and time spent looking pays off better than that just sitting and waiting.

While trolling is usually the best all-around fish-finder, other techniques may be equally good . . . depending on season, waters and species.

If you're a casting man, work the points for bass during the day, hopping to the next one down the shoreline when the first fails to produce after being explored. At night, work these same points again, but also probe back into the coves.

For white bass, alias sandies or barfish, crank up the outboard and literally go looking. Cruise along at a good clip until you find a school creating mayhem with shad on the surface. Cut the motor and cast right into the middle of the activity.

Dry fly fishermen look for surface boils; muskie addicts look for weeds; crappie fans troll deep to discover hidden brush. Even on the vastness of the ocean, coastal charter skippers keep their eyes "peeled" for circling gulls working over a school of bait—game fish are nearby.

Keep moving! Keep your attention glued for the telltale signs that indicate likely fish hangouts. Then fish.

Looking is the key to much fishing.

The Houston Mavericks of the American Baksetball Association purchased 6-foot-10 Tom Hoover from the Denver Rockets Thursday.

Ron Holmberg, Highland Falls, N. Y., moved into the quarter-finales of the Atlanta Invitational Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 7-5 victory Thursday over Bitsy Grant Jr., Atlanta.

Outfielder Frank Robinson has returned to Baltimore after being discharged from a California hospital, but still is confined to his home while recovering from an attack of mumps.

Barring further complications, he is expected to begin working out early next week.

He was hospitalized after playing a game April 20 in Anaheim, Calif.

Dogs Win District

Sikeston moved out to within three games of the state high school basketball title with a 13-5 district title victory over Hayti North at VFW stadium yesterday.

It heads toward Broseley where it faces power packed West Plains in regional competition.

Headed by the mighty bat of Mike Garner and the pitching of Bruce Farris, the Bulldogs make quick work of the Indians after they had taken the lead in the first.

The Bulldogs failed to advance past their sub-district tournament last year, suffering a loss to Oran, which later fell at the hands of the West Plains squad.

Sikeston's last appearance in the state tournament bracket was in 1966 when it battled its way to the semifinals before bowing to perenial champion Retinour.

Coach N. P. McDaniel will be no stranger to West Plains fans or players because of recent employment at the school as coach.

The West Plains team made it to the regionals by defeating Fisk in its district game by an overwhelming score of 21 to 4.

Sikeston looked a little tired yesterday after a long hot double header with the Charleston Blue Jays the day before but managed to do away with the Hayti team with little trouble.

Farris started on the mound for the Dogs and pitched the complete game. Several times it looked as if Farris might need help from Sikeston's top notch bullpen but he managed to get out of jams by striking out two to three batters in a row. He struck out 13 men in the ball game, a high for any Dog pitcher this year.

Hayti scored first by looping three singles over the heads of the Bulldog infielders. Farris bore down to strike out the final two batters of the inning to put out the fire.

Sikeston came back in its half of the inning to drive out four hits and score four runs. Garner, Roger McDaniel, Webb Edwards and Pat Hart hit for the Dogs. Garner started the inning off by blasting his third home run in two days way over the left field fence. It was his fourth homer of the year.

Hayti came fighting back in the second to tie the game 4-4. It did this with the help of three walks and two hits.

Sikeston was not going to let up on the visitors. It came back with three more runs in the bottom of the second. Garner and McDaniels each got their second hits of the day in this inning with Garners' being a double.

Hayti scored its last run in the third when it drilled out two hits and with the ai

Hayti scored its last run in the third when it drilled out two hits and with the aid of several mistakes and sloopy fielding on Sikeston's part pushed acrossits fifth run.

The Bulldogs let Hayti know in the bottom of the third that they wanted this game badly as they banged out three more hits and scored three runs to open the game up 10-5. Sorrells, Felker, McDaniel, Edwards, and the pitcher Farris got hits for the Bulldogs.

Farris bore down for Sikeston and White for Hayti on the mound controlling both teams well until the bottom of the sixth. Then Sikeston could be held no longer.

The Dogs boomed out three more hits and ran across the plate three more runs to run the score to what it would be at the end of the game 13-5. Sorrells, Garner and McDaniels got the hits for Sikeston.

Leading the Dogs at the plate was the team's second leading hitter, Roger McDaniel, with a four for five afternoon. Stan Sorrells and Garner each had three hits apiece. Webb Edwards had two hits. Bruce Farris, Pat Hart and Ed Felker had the other hits for the Dogs.

The victory moved the baseballers record to nine wins and three losses.

Garner and McDaniel with their fine day at the plate continued to lead the Dogs 1-2 in hitting by raising the averages to 5.95 and 5.53.

Curtis Proposes Bill to Assist Jobless Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobless veterans would be aided by the U. S. Employment service to find positions requiring skills learned in the military under a bill proposed today by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo.

"By matching the military training in civilian-type skills with private industry, the bill will alleviate some of the dislocations due to the current military buildup," Curtis said.

The Missouri congressman said the program would collect data on civilian related military skills and job openings, improve the matching process of a veteran and employer and give financial aid to veterans to help them interview and relocate for a job.

"I estimate that 80 to 90 per cent of the skills taught in the military have their civilian counterpart," Curtis said.

"But the type of assistance needed most by a veteran returning to a high unemployment area is mobility and assistance in obtaining a meaningful job," he said.

County Not Liable for Crime Injuries

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled today a county doesn't have to pay the medical bills of an indigent who is injured during the commission of a crime.

The opinion, requested by Richard J. Blanck, Cooper County prosecutor, said hospital bills cannot be taken as costs in a criminal case.

In another opinion Anderson advised Edison Kaderly, Barton County prosecutor, the monthly water bills of Public Water Supply District No. 2 in Barton County are subject to the state sales tax.

Other opinions held:

A nursing home district in Shannon County is a political subdivision of the state and there is no statutory authority for its dissolution.

County general revenue funds may be used to buy road machinery, repair or maintain roads and bridges not in a special road district.

A third class county prosecutor is required to represent the county board of education.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Hurdles, Yes, but Don't Write Off Humphrey Yet

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Vice President Hubert Humphrey has taken only a few weeks to demonstrate a kind of political durability that even Richard Nixon may envy.

On the eve of President Johnson's March 31 announcement of his intent not to run again, virtually any militant Democratic liberal you would wish to name would have dismissed the vice president as "poor old Hubert," a sad sack who had deserted the cause by supporting the President on the war and was, therefore, politically dead.

Others in and out of the party thought—and some of these still do—that Hubert Humphrey, flaming liberal of old, had just gone out of style somewhere between 1964 and today.

Now that the vice president has confounded nearly everybody by his fresh display of political vitality, the militants in his party are in danger of being reduced to almost comical frustration.

They like to claim full credit for having pushed Johnson out of the race. But it would be a wicked twist for them if the consequence of that withdrawal should be the nomination of Humphrey, the pitiful "mouthpiece" who insisted on making impassioned, 45-minute speeches in defense of the President, instead of the brief, cool, subtly dissenting recitals they wanted to hear.

It would be a little bit hilarious, too, if Old Man Hubert managed this year to put together a huge pack of national convention delegates despite the sober charges of his detractors that he has "no appeal to the young."

There is no proof, of course, that Humphrey's present happy political state will endure through the convention testing time at Chicago in August.

The pitfalls for the vice president are numerous.

This reporter's recent coast-to-coast telephone check of Democratic party sentiment produced a great volume of verbalizing for Humphrey. But it left quite unclear how much of this warm, friendly sound will comfort him with delegates in August.

He gets the benefit today of many politicians' dislike for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Interviews with many Democratic sources disclose that Humphrey the 1968 contender is not yet being dealt with realistically.

Only a few of those now talking him up face the fact that his absence from the coming primaries could put him in a weakened campaign posture by July.

There is no way to gauge, moreover, the extent to which Humphrey is serving as a kind of political way-station, where politicians wait it out to see what events may bring.

A few professionals are even daring to say that some of their number wanted Humphrey in the picture simply to give them bargaining power with Kennedy.

Only in the South, which once was off limits to Humphrey the liberal, is today's talk obviously convertible into delegate strength.

But, given his durability and 1968's tendency to surprise all forecasters, it would be foolish indeed to predict that the wide surface interest in him now will not prove to have real roots in August.

Addition to Be Built On Cape Airport

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Construction is tentatively set to begin in early fall on about an $80,000 addition to the municipal airport terminal but all will depend upon when work on the 6,500-foot runway project ends, the city council and the airport announced.

City Manager Paul F. Frederick said work should end by June 1. Federal auditors come in for their check before a reimbursement check can be given the city. This money will be used on the expansion program and also a new water system at the airport.

The board and council heard another report on the runway lighting project which has been the major holdback for months.

Work was scheduled to have been completed Feb. 1.

J. T. Seesing, airport co-manager, said he had talked with Paul Bruner of Bruner Electric Co., lighting subcontractor, last week. Bruner again promised the projecg would be completed in about two weeks, dependong on weather, Mr. Seesing said. This would place completion next week.

On March 5, Bruner said the airport board construction would be completed in about two weeks, depending upon weather.

Most lights have been installed along the runway, but construction of a power house still remains, board members reported.

Lack of lightning has kept aircraft from using the new runway at night.

For each day the job isn't completed, a $100 penalty is imposed on the general contractor, Gammon, Barter and Zeller Construction Co.

The penalty stands at $10,000 today. Frederick vowed to follow through on the penalty.

The city plans to partially finance the terminal addition with the federal government's reimbursement, its part in the project.

Frederick said this amount is expected to be about $50,000 to $60,000. But he cannot be certain, he said.

About $20,000 will be spent on a new water system and the remaining amount will be used on expansion. The city plans to borrow the remainder.

Expansion will about double the present size of the terminal. There will be increased space for the Federal Aviation Agency, Ozark Airlines, Sun Airlines, the restaurant and Cape Central Airways.

The restaurant will be moved to the southwest corner.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Municipal Opera will be 50 years old this summer and Edward William Werner recently purchased tickets for the 50th straight year at the "Muny."

Werner recalled that he asked his wife, Hattie, to the first production, "Robin Hood." He said it rained, they received a rain check, and he asked her back the next night. A year later they married. Warner, 80, and his wife, 83, have missed few performances at the outdoor theater in Forest Park throughout the years.

Curtis Proposes Bill to Assist Jobless Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobless veterans would be aided by the U. S. Employment service to find positions requiring skills learned in the military under a bill proposed today by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo.

"By matching the military training in civilian-type skills with private industry, the bill will alleviate some of the dislocations due to the current military buildup," Curtis said.

The Missouri congressman said the program would collect data on civilian related military skills and job openings, improve the matching process of a veteran and employer and give financial aid to veterans to help them interview and relocate for a job.

"I estimate that 80 to 90 per cent of the skills taught in the military have their civilian counterpart," Curtis said.

"But the type of assistance needed most by a veteran returning to a high unemployment area is mobility and assistance in obtaining a meaningful job," he said.

County Not Liable for Crime Injuries

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled today a county doesn't have to pay the medical bills of an indigent who is injured during the commission of a crime.

The opinion, requested by Richard J. Blanck, Cooper County prosecutor, said hospital bills cannot be taken as costs in a criminal case.

In another opinion Anderson advised Edison Kaderly, Barton County prosecutor, the monthly water bills of Public Water Supply District No. 2 in Barton County are subject to the state sales tax.

Other opinions held:

A nursing home district in Shannon County is a political subdivision of the state and there is no statutory authority for its dissolution.

County general revenue funds may be used to buy road machinery, repair or maintain roads and bridges not in a special road district.

A third class county prosecutor is required to represent the county board of education.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Hurdles, Yes, but Don't Write Off Humphrey Yet

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Vice President Hubert Humphrey has taken only a few weeks to demonstrate a kind of political durability that even Richard Nixon may envy.

On the eve of President Johnson's March 31 announcement of his intent not to run again, virtually any militant Democratic liberal you would wish to name would have dismissed the vice president as "poor old Hubert," a sad sack who had deserted the cause by supporting the President on the war and was, therefore, politically dead.

Others in and out of the party thought—and some of these still do—that Hubert Humphrey, flaming liberal of old, had just gone out of style somewhere between 1964 and today.

Now that the vice president has confounded nearly everybody by his fresh display of political vitality, the militants in his party are in danger of being reduced to almost comical frustration.

They like to claim full credit for having pushed Johnson out of the race. But it would be a wicked twist for them if the consequence of that withdrawal should be the nomination of Humphrey, the pitiful "mouthpiece" who insisted on making impassioned, 45-minute speeches in defense of the President, instead of the brief, cool, subtly dissenting recitals they wanted to hear.

It would be a little bit hilarious, too, if Old Man Hubert managed this year to put together a huge pack of national convention delegates despite the sober charges of his detractors that he has "no appeal to the young."

There is no proof, of course, that Humphrey's present happy political state will endure through the convention testing time at Chicago in August.

The pitfalls for the vice president are numerous.

This reporter's recent coast-to-coast telephone check of Democratic party sentiment produced a great volume of verbalizing for Humphrey. But it left quite unclear how much of this warm, friendly sound will comfort him with delegates in August.

He gets the benefit today of many politicians' dislike for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Interviews with many Democratic sources disclose that Humphrey the 1968 contender is not yet being dealt with realistically.

Only a few of those now talking him up face the fact that his absence from the coming primaries could put him in a weakened campaign posture by July.

There is no way to gauge, moreover, the extent to which Humphrey is serving as a kind of political way-station, where politicians wait it out to see what events may bring.

A few professionals are even daring to say that some of their number wanted Humphrey in the picture simply to give them bargaining power with Kennedy.

Only in the South, which once was off limits to Humphrey the liberal, is today's talk obviously convertible into delegate strength.

But, given his durability and 1968's tendency to surprise all forecasters, it would be foolish indeed to predict that the wide surface interest in him now will not prove to have real roots in August.

Addition to Be Built On Cape Airport

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Construction is tentatively set to begin in early fall on about an $80,000 addition to the municipal airport terminal but all will depend upon when work on the 6,500-foot runway project ends, the city council and the airport announced.

City Manager Paul F. Frederick said work should end by June 1. Federal auditors come in for their check before a reimbursement check can be given the city. This money will be used on the expansion program and also a new water system at the airport.

The board and council heard another report on the runway lighting project which has been the major holdback for months.

President of Missouri Cotton Producers Urges Continuation of 1965 Farm Act

WASHINGTON — This is the text of a statement made by R. K. Swindle, Senath, president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, before the House agriculture committee Thursday.

My name is R. F. Swindle. I am a cotton farmer of Senath, Missouri in South Dunklin County. I live on and operate a farm of 600 acres of which has a 200 acre cotton allotment. I am president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association which represents ccotton producers and allied industry in Southeast Missouri.

My appearance here is in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, which has headquarters in Portageville, Missoouri. The Missouri Cotton Producers Association was chartered May 11, 1949, shortly after our friend and Congressman Paul C. Jones came to Congress.

Here with me in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association is Executive Vice President, James N. Conner, Kennett, Missouri.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association represents c cotton producers, ginners, banks, warehouses, cooperatives, cotton merchants, implement and fertilizer dealers and cottonseed crushers.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association is a non-profit organization, marketing no commodities. Its financial support is derived from producer and membership dues.

It is indeed a great privilege for me to have this opportunity to submit to you our recommendation nd support for the continuation of the Agricultural Act of 1965 which expires at the end of 1969. The cotton producers as well as agri-businesses would be in dire circumstances without it, not only in Missouri, ut throughout the cotton belt due to adverse weather conditions for the last 2 years.

In view of the fact that 1968 is an election year, a re-organization of the Congress will take place in 1960. This will delay acgion on any new legislation, including a farm program to replace the Food and AGricultural Act of 1965. The Department of Agriculture should be in a position to announce provisions of the commodity programs no later than July 196. President Johnson in his message to the Congress on February 27,27, recommended that hearings begin at the earliest possible date. He pointed out that farmers, like all businessmen, should be in a position to make plans well in advance. The only way this can be assured is through the enactment of legislation in 1968.

Looking to the future for cotton and cottonproducers and considering current circumstances and conditions, we feel that a long-term program which offers the best general provisions of the present cottonprogram offers the best and most practical approach toward meeting today's needs and tomorrow's possibilities.

It is imperative, however, that any program or modifications of present legislation would permit more flexibility in export pricing policies and in the operation of the domestic allotment provision. It is also imperative that rules, regulations, and procedures be oriented toward the following objectives:

1. To maintain cotton producer income on an individual basis by recognizing varying conditions between farms and producers and to permit the individual producer to choose acreage and price support levels to suit his personal situation.

2. To enable cotton to meet the price competition of man-made fibers in the domestic market.

3. To enable U.S. cotton to meet the price competition of foreign growths in world markets.

4. To hold government expenditures within reasonable bounds.

5. To utilize normal channels of trade.

We continue to stand opposed to any legislative or administrative action that would place mandatory eligibility limits on any producer's participation in government price support or payment programs. In our opinion, any limitation of eligibility would demoralize markets, neutralize the effectiveness of production controls, and destroy the concept of orderly marketing for all producers, regardless of the size of their individual operations.

We assert that no industrial corporation has had tariff benefits limited because of the size of the business, nor has any tax write-off, or any other subsidy been limited to industry, labor, or business because of size.

This Association fears that if a precedent of limiting price support eligibility is once established, it will be progressively lowered so that farmers producing the bulk of the cotton crop and other farm commodities will be subjected to gross discrimination and eventually be eliminated from price support programs.

We assert that no industrial corporation has had tariff benefits limited because of the size of the business, nor has any tax write-off, or any other subsidy been limited to industry, labor, or business because of size.

This Association fears that if a precedent of limiting price support eligibility for all farm commodities produced in cooperation with production control programs.

We vigorously urge that loan and payment programs continue to provide equal eligibility for all farm commodities produced in cooperation with production control programs.

We strongly recommend no change in the formula used for calculating the national marketing quota and are against any move toward reducing or abandoning the minimum national cotton acreage allotment of 16 million acres, plus the provision for small farms.

We recommend the establishment of a National Securityy Reserve of foods, feeds and fibers to bolster the defensive strength of the United States and the free world, to meet natural disasters, to provide a cushion against unwarranted increases in consumer price levels, and to shift a portion of the cost of maintaining such reserves from agriculture to the general public, where it rightfully belongs.

In the case of cotton, we suggest that it would be prudent to have a National Security Reserve equal to at least one year's off-take. Cotton can be stored for long periods with limited deterioration, and quality rotational operations could be fitted into existing domestic and export sales programs with a minimum of difficulties.

the maintenance and release of the Reserve could be tied to both National Security needs and market demands to permit orderly management. The general operational approach would have to be conducted within limiting guides, which would assure that the market would be fully insulated from the reserve stocks.

As a first step toward the establishment of a National Security Reserve, we recommend than an exhaustive study be made of the potential significance of and the need for such a reserve, which would include dterminations of justifiable levels of stocks, managements guides, cost-benefits ratio, and allocation of costs relative to benefits accruing to the general welfare, defense, and agriculture.

We strongly recommend a better and more equitable method for determing projected yields. Due to adverse weather conditions the last 2 years, Missouri's projecged yield for 1968 was lowered by 34 pounds. We recommend a new formula for calculating projected yields when you have 2 years of advser weather affecting cottonproduction, that the lowest year of production be deleted from the formula being used.

We recommend a continuation of an adequate flexibility to allow the adjustment of production to keep in line with total market needs as presently being administered by Secretary of Agriculture for 1968.

We are indebted to the Secretary of Agriculture, Orville Freeman, for initiating a public relations program designed to correct some of the misconceptions that have been lated against farmers and agriculture during the past several years.

In conclusion, the cotton producers in Missouri public relations program designed to correct some of the misconceptions that have been circulated against farmers and agriculture during the past several years.

In conclusion, the cotton producers in Missouri have shown that they do want to grow cotton.

I would like to call your attention to the following: In 1966, the cotton producers of Missouri voted in the research and promotion referendum with the highest percentage in any major cotton producing state with an 88.6 per cent favoring research and promotion and this year, second to California, Missouri farmers has the lowest diversion with a 10 per cent diversion.

Gentlemen, I would like to thank you for granting me the opportunity to present the recommendations made by the Missouri Cotton Producers Association in the interest of the Missouri farmers for the continuation f the AGricultural Act of 1965.

Cape Dismissals

KANSAS CITY AP — The dismissal of eight instructors at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau was described in an address here Tuesday night as an apparent threat to academic freedom in Missouri.

Although the teachers demanded to know the reasons for their dismissals authorities at the Cape Girardeau college refused them, state Sen. John Downs, D-St. Joseph, said.

Downs, speaking at Rockhurst College, said "It is a sad situation when an employe who deals in products can guarantee himself a continuous record of employment, and those who deal in the ideas and in the training of young minds may be dismissed with an inferential cloud hanging over their heads."

The senator, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said there is a remedy of 50 years standing in state laws that should be applied in this case.

Rep. Earl S. Mackey, D-Cape Girardeau, has petitioned Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to recommend a legislative review of the dismissals.

Viet Foes 'Bleeding' U.S. With Gold Drain Tactics

BANGKOK (NEA)

Some interesting sidelights on the gold crisis come to view in this ancient capital of Thailand.

For some time the Communist Chinese have been buying gold on the world markets and shipping it in to mainland China by ship and plane. No one knows how great these imports are. But this correspondent has talked with men who have seen some of these shipments first hand. This has been going on at a time when the Chinese were hard-pressed for foreign exchange to buy food and were therefore seeking credits.

The French, closely co-operating with the Communists in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, have been converting into gold a good portion of the funds they're making in legal and illegal trading with and for the Communists.

A small but significant part of the dollar drain resulting from the war in Vietnam is due to these French profits. Conservative estimates from banking and trading sources put the French dollar "take" from Southeast Asia at upwards of $200 million a year.

One major objective of the current North Vietnamese drive in Laos is to achieve economic disruption, which might have to be met with increased dollar aid, adding a new pressure on U.S. currency.

Ho Chi Minh and his defense minister, Gen. Nguyen Giap, have been saying for some time that one of their major objectives in Vietnam is to force a strong increase in U.S. troops, equipment and supplies, upping the already heavy dollar drain of this war.

The Russians and the French may be attempting to convince the Arab countries with large sums on deposit in London that it would be wise to transfer all or part of these balances. Such transfers could put dramatic new pressure on both the pound and the dollar.

These and other economic moves by Communist countries and their allies should be studied in the context of past statements by Ho and Giap.

A major point in Communist subversive insurgency doctrine is economic subversion of the enemy. In Red doctrine, economic warfare is considered far more important than guerrilla or conventional military actions.

Ho and Giap have asserted time and again that a strong enemy such as the United States can be defeated by dissipating its strength. By stimulating already-existing economic pressures on a wide number of fronts, the Ho-Giap doctrine holds, the United States can be so hurt domestically that it will be tempted to cut its losses by hedging on its foreign commitments in Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, Latin America, the Middle East and Africa.

For the short term, for the years just ahead, the United States will have to take much more stringent economic measures than those announced thus far. It will not be enough to curb foreign investment and travel, raise taxes a little and up the Federal Reserve's discount rate.

President of Missouri Cotton Producers Urges Continuation of 1965 Farm Act

WASHINGTON — This is the text of a statement made by R. K. Swindle, Senath, president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, before the House agriculture committee Thursday.

My name is R. F. Swindle. I am a cotton farmer of Senath, Missouri in South Dunklin County. I live on and operate a farm of 600 acres of which has a 200 acre cotton allotment. I am president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association which represents ccotton producers and allied industry in Southeast Missouri.

My appearance here is in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, which has headquarters in Portageville, Missoouri. The Missouri Cotton Producers Association was chartered May 11, 1949, shortly after our friend and Congressman Paul C. Jones came to Congress.

Here with me in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association is Executive Vice President, James N. Conner, Kennett, Missouri.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association represents c cotton producers, ginners, banks, warehouses, cooperatives, cotton merchants, implement and fertilizer dealers and cottonseed crushers.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association is a non-profit organization, marketing no commodities. Its financial support is derived from producer and membership dues.

It is indeed a great privilege for me to have this opportunity to submit to you our recommendation nd support for the continuation of the Agricultural Act of 1965 which expires at the end of 1969. The cotton producers as well as agri-businesses would be in dire circumstances without it, not only in Missouri, ut throughout the cotton belt due to adverse weather conditions for the last 2 years.

In view of the fact that 1968 is an election year, a re-organization of the Congress will take place in 1960. This will delay acgion on any new legislation, including a farm program to replace the Food and AGricultural Act of 1965. The Department of Agriculture should be in a position to announce provisions of the commodity programs no later than July 196. President Johnson in his message to the Congress on February 27,27, recommended that hearings begin at the earliest possible date. He pointed out that farmers, like all businessmen, should be in a position to make plans well in advance. The only way this can be assured is through the enactment of legislation in 1968.

Looking to the future for cotton and cottonproducers and considering current circumstances and conditions, we feel that a long-term program which offers the best general provisions of the present cottonprogram offers the best and most practical approach toward meeting today's needs and tomorrow's possibilities.

It is imperative, however, that any program or modifications of present legislation would permit more flexibility in export pricing policies and in the operation of the domestic allotment provision. 2. To enable cotton to meet the price competition of man-made fibers in the domestic market.

3. To enable U.S. cotton to meet the price competition of foreign growths in world markets.

4. To hold government expenditures within reasonable bounds.

5. To utilize normal channels of trade.

We continue to stand opposed to any legislative or administrative action that would place mandatory eligibility limits on any producer's participation in government price support or payment programs. In our opinion, any limitation of eligibility would demoralize markets, neutralize the effectiveness of production controls, and destroy the concept of orderly marketing for all producers, regardless of the size of their individual operations.

We assert that no industrial corporation has had tariff benefits limited because of the size of the business, nor has any tax write-off, or any other subsidy been limited to industry, labor, or business because of size.

This Association fears that if a precedent of limiting price support eligibility is once established, it will be progressively lowered so that farmers producing the bulk of the cotton crop and other farm commodities will be subjected to gross discrimination and eventually be eliminated from price support programs.

ARMED FORCES

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS TO BE 26 YEARS OLD IN MAY AS 10,000 MEMBERS

SERVE COUNTRY

December 7, 1941, millions of Americans were stunned as radios broadcast the news that pearl Harbor had been attacked by the Japanese. The United States suddenly found itself embroiled in a second World War. As hundreds of thousands of men were sent overseas to tackle the responsibilities of combat, the stage was set for establishment of a new corps of elite non-combatants.

Actual operations for the new WAAC began modestly when the first classes, composed of some 770 women, tarted training. The "experiment" of employing women to work with the ARmy became an immediate success. By its first anniversary the WAAC boasted some 60,000 members, filling more than 150 different jobs at all major Army commands in the United States, North Africa and England.

In September 1943 Congress passed legislation which dropped the work "Auxiliary." The Women's Army Corps now functioned as a vital part of the Army.

WAC members arrived first in England, where they served with valor. Many were awarded Purple Hearts for injuries received in German bombings. On the continent they marched close behind the fighting forces, working with switch-boards and office supplies abandoned by the Germans. Many moved from NOrth Africa into Italy, following the ARmy up the peninsula. In the Southwest Pacific they served in New Guinea, Australia and the Philippines. By the end of World War II the corps had reached its peak strength of 100,000 end its members were assigned to almost every non-combatant branch of the Army in every active overaseas theater as well as at home. Of their service it has been said, "In a world where new frontiers were hard to find, WAC members found one; in an age where pioneers and their problems were a memory, they had been pioneers."

June 12, 1948 brought passage of egislation permanently integrating women into the regular Army. Since then, wherever our country's men have gone to defend freedom -- as in Korea and Vietnam -- the members of the WAC have gone. Today, as the Women's Army Corps celebrates its 26th anniversary, its member are serving shoulder to shoulder with our country's male soldiers in the continental United States and in Hawaii, Alaska, Germany, Luxemburg, Okinawa, Japan, Korea, Vietnam, Puerto Rico and Panama.

Army servicewomen today have the same privileges, the same opportunities for promotion, the same pay scale and the same benefits as their male counterparts. Members of the Women's Army Corps have earned these privileges and benefits by their labor, their devotion and their outstanding achievements in the service of the United States.

Those wishing further information on the history of the Women's Army Corps as well as requirements for membership, opportunities, pay, and the like should contact SFC Stage and SSC Mooney, U. S. Army recruiter, whose officers are located at 704 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. WAC selection officers and counselors will be glad to arrange appointments with interested young women and their families.

Woman Objects to Losing Job Due to Federal Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 22year-old woman charged Thursday that her security clearance was revoked and that she was forced to resign from an Army job on the basis of reports that she was immoral—reports which, she said, she was not permitted to see.

Carolyn Lea Tatnall, a photographic information technician with the Army Map Service, said she was told by a government security officer the reports had come from neighbors in her apartment building. She said in an interview that she could find no one in the building who would admit to having talked to government investigators.

An Army spokesman denied that Miss Tatnall was forced to resign, but confirmed revocation of her security-clearance.

"I don't understand it," she said. "I'm not promiscuous."

On Feb. 19, Miss Tatnall said, she underwent a 2 1/2-hour interrogation session at the Pentagon. She said she was asked, among other things: Are you a homosexual? Have you ever had an abortion? Do you take birth control pills? She said she was told she would have to answer the same questions the following week in a lie detector test.

Miss Tatnall was never called back for the test, she said, but on April 2 a security officer and a representative from the personnel section of the Army Map Service told her that her security clearance had been revoked.

Miss Tatnall quoted the security officer as saying, "Based on the security reports that you are immoral and not of character to handle classified material, we are not only refusing you a top secret clearance, but we are also revoking any previous clearances that you have had. From now on you are not authorized to work with classified materiel of any sort."

She said he told her that "in mid-March the investigators went to your apartment and received a derogatory report on you ... They came up with seven derogatory reports from that one building to confirm it. Do you give wild parties in your apartment? Apparently you shout and have violent fights and drinking sessions. Does someone else have a key to that apartment?"

Miss Tatnall said she replied that she didn't know of seven people who would say such things, that she has had only one party—a birthday party—in the six months she lived in the apartment and that she invited the neighbors so they wouldn't be disturbed by the noise and that her boyfriend had a key so he could feed her fish and her cat when she went home to Philadelphia on weekends.

She was told the following day by her superior, she said, that unless she resigned she would be fired. Miss Tatnall said she resigned and left work April 19.

Harold P. Dunning, personnel chief at the Army Map Service, said there had been a "routine background investigation" of Miss Tatnall but claimed no knowledge of any Pentagon interview.

There was no comment from the Pentagon.

Cunning said that Miss Tatnall was told that as a result of the background investigation her security clearance was being revoked "but I'm sure nobody told her to resign or be fired. I wouldn't permit anyone on my staff to talk to an employe like that."

Vandalism to Highway Signs And Markers Costs Quarter Million Dollars Annually

It was 8:45 p.m., Saturday, April 13.

A young Jackson county resident and his wife were crusing along Supplementary Route FF (Truman Road) east of Independence. Skies were cloudy but the road was dry.

Suddenly, Katherine Vaughn, the driver's wife, screamed. Her cry was drowned out by squealing tires as Charles Vaughn pressed hard on the brake pedel of his '64 Chevrolet hardtop. The car skidded across Missouri Route 7, ramming the bank on the opposite side.

Interviewed later at Independence Sanitarium, where he and his wife were taken by ambulance, Vaughn said, "I was going down Truman Road around 55 miles per hour. I didn't see any sign indicating an intersection."

An investigation determined that vandals had removed the stop sign earlier in the evening.

An investigation determined that vandals had removed the stop sign earlier in the evening.

Fortunately, the Vaughns' were not seriously injured, but this seemingly harmless "orank" could have cost them their lives.

Sign vandalism last year cost Missouri highweay users about a quarter of a million dollars. "This is money that could have been spent to build better highways," pointed out Leland Fletcher, Highway Department Maintenance and Traffic Engineer.

Department traffic engineers say that about 40 percent of all sign replacements in the state are due to vandalism. It takes nearly half of the Department's annual sign budget to repair or replace highway signs and markers that have been damaged, destroyed, altered or stolen.

Joe Mickes, assistant engineer of Maintenance and Traffic, said recently, "You wouldn't believe what these vandals do to some signs. They will go to any length and great pains to damage, demolish, alter or remove a highway sign or marker."

Lately there has been a rash of shooting of highway signs. "Last week," MMickes said," a District 5 maintenance crew was installing new route markers on Route E in Cole county. Almost as fast as the crew moved on to the next section vandals poured shot after shot into the new signs."

One Route E marker had 16 bullet holes in it. About 20 signs were damaged. At a cost of about $20 per sign, this little "target practice," cost highway users almost $400.

"Another 'real fun' prank," Mickes went on," is changing speed limit signs, say a 30-mile-per-mile sign to 80 miles per hour. I wonder, Mikes said, "how funny it would be to see an out-state motorist, unfamiliar with the road, take that 30-miles-an-hour curve at 80?"

Then, too, there is the danger of an unsuspecting traveler cruising along, perhaps at the posted 60 miles-an-hour speed limit, when his headlights pick up a sign warning him of a sharp curve to the left up ahead. Then suddenly the road swings right.

"We have no way of knowing," Mickes said, "how many accidents are cuased because of vandalized signs. There is just no way of keeping records. But I.d bet a month's pay" Mickes said, "that many 'lost control' accidents can be blamed on sign vandals."

Recently a Highway Patrol trooper checked a 20-mile stretch of Interstate Route 44 and found 19 vandalized signs in a row. These were large, 11½ feet by 13½ feet, reflectorized signs. They cannot be repaired and must be replaced at a cost of about $7.50 per square foot. That's more than $1,000 each.

Some vandals are caught and prosecuted. Most are not. But State Highway Commission attorneys and local law officials have declared war on the sign vandals and are keeping an even more watchful eye out for them. And they urge citizens to report cases of such vandalism.

Vandalism to highway signs and markers under Missouri statutes is a misdemeanor, punisable by a fine not to exceed $500 or one year in jail or both.

"The money these sign vandals cost is a ridiculous and unnecessary waste of the taxpayer's money," said Fletcher.

"But even more important than the money," he pointed out, "is the chance sign vandals take with the lives of others. HIghway signs are put up to inform motorists of conditions ahead, perhaps a dangerous one," he said. "If the information on the sign has been altered, destroyed, or removed, there is no warning."

Missouri Heritage

By LEW LARKIN in the Kansas City Times

A cannon boomed. People lining the bank waved gaily and cheers echoed over the water. The men in the three boats on the Mississippi waved back, and let out a yip or two.

This happening 163 years ago tomorrow near St. Louis, marked the beginning of a perilous expedition into the unknown of Northwest United States.

Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, like Columbus, weren't exactly certain where they might end up and, like Columbus, they had faith, courage and vision. Before their return 28 months later the nation was grieving their loss.

Thomas Jefferson had selected Lewis, his private secretary, to lead the expedition and told him to choose a second in command. Lewis chose William Clark, younger brother of George Rogers Clark of Revolutionary war fame, and insisted that Clark have equal authority in the enterprise.

About the middle of the summer in 1803, Lewis left Washington for Pittsburgh, and on the last day of August began the descent of the Ohio river. He enlisted several volunteers at military stations along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and had about 30 men when he arrived at the Dubois, or Wood, river, which empties into the Mississippi from the east near St. Louis.

Clark joined them and they erected cabins for a winter stay at Camp Dubois, January 15, 1804, Clark wrote to a friend, "My situation is as comfortable as could be expected in the woods and on the frontier. The country back of me is beautiful beyond description; a rich bottom well timbered from one to three miles wide, from the river to the prairie, which runs nearly parallel to the river from about three miles above me to Kaskaskia, Ill. and is from three to seven miles wide."

At Camp Dubois 28 rugged frontiersmen, many from Missouri were enlisted. Lewis and Clark named four sergeants; the rest of the 45-man expedition were privates. The men underwent rigorous training in military discipline. Their marksmanship was sharpened, though few needed it. They were taught survival in the wilderness if they became lost and as much Indian lore, customs and traditions as they could absorb. Nobody really knew what kind of Indians they would encounter.

Their stores were bought in St. Louis, clothing, guns, ammunition, food, knives, axes and other articles. When the leaders found themselves a little short of medicine, Dr. Antoine Saugrain, the only resident physician, prepared numerous potions, many from the herbs he grew in his garden. He also fashioned rather crude thermometers and barometers, using mercury from old mirrors.

It was a clear day when the expedition headed by the 29-year-old Lewis and 33-year- old Clark shoved off. The 55-foot keelboat, sail flopping, and the two smaller pirogues, loaded with six tons of supplies and ammunition, rippled the quiet waters as they pulled away.

The youngest of the expedition was George Shannon, 16 years old. John Colter later would win fame as a trail blazer and scout. Francis Labiche and George Drulyard went along as interpreters.

There were Joseph Field and Reuben Field, brothers from Kentucky, Who "acquitted themselves with much honor," Lewis reported? John Shields, who had unusual "skill and ingenuity in repairing guns," Lewis noted, and many others.

May 14 slips by now in Missouri unnoticed, but it marked a most auspicious occasion. Many members of the part not Missourians, liked Missouri so well that they stayed here after returning. Shannon, who lost a leg in 1806 on another expedition, is buried near Palmyra, Mo. William Clark's grave is in Bellefontaine cemetery in St. Louis. John Colter is buried on a high hill in Franklin County overlooking the Missouri river he loved so well. John Ordway and York are buried in Missouri, and 10 others are believed to have been buried in this state.

All members returned safely except Charles Floyd, 22-year-old Kentuckian, who died of a disease along the way. The Sergeant Floyd, survey boat on the Missouri river operating out of Kansas City, was named in his honor.

Man In The Streets Speaks

On April 20, Avon Books will publish a $1.25 paperback edition of "Division Street: America," the book that chronicles life today in the American city. In "Division Street: America," Studs Terkel, a well - known Chicago radio personality reports to us from an American city by conducting interviews with people who live there – including public- housing dewllers, policemen, homeowners, advertising executives, homemakers, the unskilled, the retired, the young and the socially prominent.

For his interviews, Mr. Terkel chose the city that he knows best – Chicago. But, as he points out: "Although there is a Division Street in Chicago, the title of this book is metaphorical. My Division Street is the division within each man, the division that divides us one from another in our society – something the city has done so horrendously." To prove this, Mr. Terkel let the people speak for themselves.

The people of Division Street recorded 700 yours of tape with Studs Terkel, and the interviewer noticed that they needed little prompting on issues that concerned them. They told him that urban renewal is not a panacea, but "poor removal." Their feelings ran strongest on the subject of race relations. One of the most dramatic contrasts in the book is between the Negro father who wants to move out of the slums so that his children can grow up on a street with a tree on it, and the white homeowner who lives in constant fear that he will have to share that tree. In discussions of Vietnam, religion, the Bomb, the pill, police brutality and job opportunity, the comments reveal fear, resignation, but also some courage and guarded optimism.

Studs Terkel says that since the handcover publication of "Division Street: America" by Pantheon Books, there has been one general reader reaction to the book: "Most readers say they are enlightened by it; many say it makes them feel hopeful. They realize that beneath all the issues and the politics everybody just wants to keep face and be recognized as a person."

Perhaps the strongest testimony to the universality and the timeliness of "Division Street: America" is the excellent reception that the book has received throughout the country and even outside of America. The New York Times reviewer called it "Remarkable – the impact is shattering" The London Times reviewer said, "This book is a treasure house and if not all its lessons are for our comfort, that is good for us."

Historic Textbooks Collected at M.U.

Along with the disappearance of Missouri's little red school-houses has continued the disappearance of "readers" and other early-day textbooks.

The library staff of the University of Missouri aware of the value of these texts for reference and research, has established an historic textbook collection. This is now on permanent display.

Particular efforts are being made to secure copies of elementary and secondary school textbooks published before 1915.

Records indicate that the first Colonial schoolteachers had to use whatever books were at hand. Usually these were Bibles, although occasionally there were copies of books by Addison, Goldsmith, or others. Also used were homemade wooden boards on which the alphabet and numbers were carved.

To provide their own texts, early American teachers became the country's first authors of schoolbooks. Noah Webster was among the first outstanding textbook-writing teachers.

Many educators now consider it of increasing importance to collect and preserve textbooks as evidence of past and current educational achievement. However, many institutional libraries continue to discard old editions of textbooks when new editions are published.

There are only two known copies of the earliest New England Primer, which developed from the Hornbrook and Battledore, the earliest American schoolbooks. The 1727 Boston edition is now in the New York Public Library, and the 1735 copy is in the Henry F. Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif. It is believed that some two or three million copies of other editions of the Primer were printed, although not more than 3,000 are known to exist today.

The list of textbooks for the UMC Library collection was compiled from a rare book bibliography and a list from the Missouri Department of Education. This list of approved Common School textbooks was in the Report of the Superintendent of Commons Schools (1841-1913). Some of the authors familiar to educators are McGuffey, Ray, Murray, Webster, Pinneo, Tracy, Monteith, and McNally.

Col. and Mrs. Lewis H. Kensinger of Palo Alto, Calif., UMC alumni, are representative of many friends of the University who have developed the hobby of hunting and purchasing historic textbooks for the collection.

For persons interested in contributing to the collection, the Library has available a list of approved books which are desired.

Command Sergeant Major Chevron

Insignia Adopted for Top NCOs

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Command sergeants major now will wear distinctive chevrons identifying them as the senior noncommissioned officers in the U.S. Army.

The new insignia has been created from the chevron currently worn by all sergeants major by adding one marking — a gold laurel wreath surrounding the star.

Army Chief of Staff General Harold K Johnson introduced the new insignia by presenting the first one to Sergeant Major of the Army William O. Wooldridge in a ceremony at the Pentagon March 22.

A command sergeant major is the principal enlisted assistant and chief enlisted advisor to commanders at levels from battalion through Headquarters, Department of the Army. Other sergeants major, who will be called staff sergeants major, will continue to wear the regular insignia.

The command sergeant major program was initiated last summer to centralize the selection, assignment and career management of these top NCOs at Department of the Army level.

Army officials estimate that there are some 1,500 command sergeant major positions in the Army. Men in these slots are being brought under the new program in three stages.

Already 192 men in these positions at combat brigade level and higher have been selected for the program. By July 30, 1968, it is expected that sergeants major in the top positions in all commands at battalion level and above will be in the program.

To qualify for the program, a sergeant major must be nominated by his commander to fill a command sergeant major position. All sergeants major are eligible, regardless of military occupational specialty (MOS).

A DA selection board reviews the records of men nominated, and those accepted are awarded a distinctive command sergeant major MOS, OOZ. Command sergeants major carry their dates of rank as E-9s.

'A Lawful Society'

Law Day, U.S.A., is among the newest of America's annual days of celebration. It was marked first on May 1, 1958, yet in only 10 years it has become a significant national event, reaffirming each year the country's dedication to the rule of law and the heritage of freedom.

Throughout the nation, Law Day, 1968, will be celebrated with local ceremonies and observances. In the U.S. Army, activities within each major command will mark the day. For Law Day has a special significance to men in uniform. As both citizens and protectors of the United States, military personnel have a dual responsibility under the law.

In his proclamation setting aside May 1 as Law Day, 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson emphasized the citizen's role. He urged all Americans to join in the observance of Law Day by making a personal commitment to:

- Obey the law.
- Respect the rights of others.
- Aid law-enforcement officers.
- Uphold the judgments of the courts.

This personal commitment is in keeping with the theme of this year's celebration, "Only a lawful society can build a better society." The President explained it this way:

"The law we recognize and respect . . . is a process of continuous growth that allows the creation of new rights for all men through a deliberative, democratic process. It is a system that permits existing rights to be protected, injustices to be remedied and disputes to be resolved, without recourse to self-defeating violence."

Here the serviceman's other role enters. For he is dedicated to the preservation of a society in which the rule of law can thrive. (ANF)

Command Sergeant Major Chevron

Insignia Adopted for Top NCOs

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Command sergeants major now will wear distinctive chevrons identifying them as the senior noncommissioned officers in the U.S. Army.

The new insignia has been created from the chevron currently worn by all sergeants major by adding one marking — a gold laurel wreath surrounding the star.

Army Chief of Staff General Harold K. Johnson introduced the new insignia by presenting the first one to Sergeant Major of the Army William O. Wooldridge in a ceremony at the Pentagon March 22.

A command sergeant major is the principal enlisted assistant and chief enlisted advisor to commanders at levels from battalion through Headquarters, Department of the Army. Other sergeants major, who will be called staff sergeants major, will continue to wear the regular insignia.

The command sergeant major program was initiated last summer to centralize the selection, assignment and career management of these top NCOs at Department of the Army level.

Army officials estimate that there are some 1,500 command sergeant major positions in the Army. Men in these slots are being brought under the new program in three stages.

Already 192 men in these positions at combat brigade level and higher have been selected for the program. By July 30, 1968, it is expected that sergeants major in the top positions in all commands at battalion level and above will be in the program.

To qualify for the program, a sergeant major must be nominated by his commander to fill a command sergeant major position. All sergeants major are eligible, regardless of military occupational specialty (MOS).

A DA selection board reviews the records of men nominated, and those accepted are awarded a distinctive command sergeant major MOS, OOZ. Command sergeants major carry their dates of rank as E-9s.

'A Lawful Society'

Law Day, U.S.A., is among the newest of America's annual days of celebration. It was marked first on May 1, 1958, yet in only 10 years it has become a significant national event, reaffirming each year the country's dedication to the rule of law and the heritage of freedom.

Throughout the nation, Law Day, 1968, will be celebrated with local ceremonies and observances. In the U.S. Army, activities within each major command will mark the day. For Law Day has a special significance to men in uniform. As both citizens and protectors of the United States, military personnel have a dual responsibility under the law.

In his proclamation setting aside May 1 as Law Day, 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson emphasized the citizen's role. He urged all Americans to join in the observance of Law Day by making a personal commitment to:

- Obey the law.
- Respect the rights of others.
- Aid law-enforcement officers.
- Uphold the judgments of the courts.

This personal commitment is in keeping with the theme of this year's celebration, "Only a lawful society can build a better society." The President explained it this way:

"The law we recognize and respect . . . is a process of continuous growth that allows the creation of new rights for all men through a deliberative, democratic process. It is a system that permits existing rights to be protected, injustices to be remedied and disputes to be resolved, without recourse to self-defeating violence."

Here the serviceman's other role enters. For he is dedicated to the preservation of a society in which the rule of law can thrive. (ANF)

Hayti Congregation to Send Minister Abroad

HAYTI — The congregation of the First Baptist Church is sending its pastor, the Rev. A. W. Clodfelter, on a three-week tour of the Near East which will begin June 9.

B. A. Cross, Hayti merchant and chairman of the committee planning the trip for the pastor, reports, "Events in the past year have drawn the attention of every nation. Since these events have deep Biblical significance, First Baptist Church is sending its pastor on this study tour which will include nine countries. The members of this church feel that this study is comparable to at least a full year in a Bible school and we consider this an investment in the present and future service of our pastor."

A native of Southeast Missouri, the Rev. Mr. Clodfelter was graduated from Advance high school; earned a bachelor of arts degree from Howard Payne College, Brownsville, Tex.; received his bachelor of divinity from Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City and his Masters in Theology at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Most of his pastoral service has been in the Bootheel where he has served two years as assistant pastor of First Baptist church, Cape Girardeau; two years at First Baptist church, Chaffee; and is now in his ninth year as pastor of Hayti's First Baptist church.

He is married to the former Miss Vira Louise Sanders of Lytle, Tex., who is a graduate of Howard Payne College and also holds a master of religious education degree from the Louisville Seminary. They have four children.

Volunteers to Study On Organization Need

Volunteers from Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties were picked to gather information on the need and feasibility of establishing a tri-county mental health association in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Dr. Emmett Hoctor, former superintendent of state hospital number four at Farmington, who is in charge of outpatient care at the hospital was the principal speaker.

The organization, if effected, will aid in establishing community acceptance for emotionally disturbed persons. Emotionally disturbed persons are not mentally retarded, but have thought disorders to the degree that it hinders their ability to hold a job or be reasonably happy.

The volunteers are charged with gathering statistics on the need for psychiatric care in the three counties, the resources available now, and how problems involving emotionally disturbed persons are handled now.

A mental health association is now serving Dunklin, New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

The volunteers are expected to report their finding in another called meeting in a month, or more. If the need for such an organization is apparent from their findings, an organization will be established and board members will be elected in following meetings.

Also mentioned as a possible need in the area is an outpatient psychiatric clinic, which might function one day a week. Such an arrangement is now serving Cape Girardeau and other area towns, but not Sikeston or Charleston.

Dr. Hoctor said the trend in treating emotionally disturbed persons today is toward community psychiatry. Instead of committing these persons to institutions, he suggested they be treated in their own community and that leading members of the community be educated to their needs.

About 40 persons attended. Volunteers to aid in the survey include, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gemeinhardt, Sikeston, and Agnes Cunningham, Mississippi county.

Former Eichmann Associate Sentenced

BAMBERG, Germany (AP) Franz Rademacher, a former associate of Adolf Eichmann, was sentenced today to five years in prison for aiding in the murder of 3,300 Jews in World War II.

But Rademacher was set free after a Bamberg criminal court credited the 62-year-old former Third Reich legation councillor with four years and two months he already had served in pre-trial custody and in postwar internment by the Americans. The remaining 10 months of the sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for four years.

Both the defense, which had asked for acquittal, and the prosecution, which had demanded a 15-year prison term, announced they would appeal.

The former diplomat represented the Foreign Ministry at conferences at which the Jews' fate was decided, according to the evidence at the trial.

Mildewed Tile Floor Is Worrisome for Her

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Years ago we added a den to our very nice house and just recently extended this room to make it longer. I had white-and-gold cushion tile put down by the yard. In a matter of a month the floor started to mildew and now it is nearly all black. I am heartsick and the floor man said there was nothing I could put down as the slab is sweating from the bottom up. Surely someone among your many readers will have an answer for me.—EDNA

DEAR POLLY—We have glass doors over our fireplace opening and I always dreaded cleaning them. One day I decided to try oven cleaner on them. The one I used is a foam cleaner that is sprayed on and left for a few minutes. Wipe with paper towels, and what an easy job it is. Before I used this, if I let the doors go for two or three weeks, I often had to use a razor blade to remove the baked-on soot.—MRS. N. T.

DEAR GIRLS—Mrs. C. L. M. wrote concerning Marion's Pointer about curing her child of biting anything and everything by having her bite into a cake of soap. She said that years ago her father was warden in a penitentiary and rebelling prisoners would make themselves sick by chewing soap and then taking water so as to appear to be frothing at the mouth. Once they had serious consequences following such an episode.

Washing a child's mouth out with soap has been a punishmen for many of us, when children, for telling a lie but a manufacturer of soaps says that because of the many types of soap on the market, it could be harmful if they were EATEN and a child might vomit from eating PURE soap. Perhaps you mothers might substitute the following cure that came from a reader who sent no address.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Marion another way to cure her child of biting. Whenever the child starts to bite someone or something, try biting them back. I know this works—when I was little I bit another girl because she carrying me and I wanted to walk. She told my father and he bit me back. After that I never bit another person.—DEBBIE

Ann Landers

To Preserve Family Next Move Up to Mother-in-Law

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my husband's father passed away. My mother-in-law, who had always treated him like dirt, suddenly became the most grief-stricken woman of the 20th Century. She cried, screamed, fainted, fasted, threw herself on everybody --- especially her eldest son, my husband.

The biggest mistake of his life was saying to her at the funeral, "Don't worry, Mother, you will never be alone. You can count on us." She took him up on it right there and then and moved into our home the following week.

She couldn't bear to part with her dining room set so mine had to go. Her new freezer and refriegerator, which we could have used, went to her daughter. She had such strange sentimental attachments to her pictures, vases, throw rugs, and other assorted pieces of trash that she had to bring them along. Our once lovely home now looks like a second-hand junk shop.

I could stand it if all she ruined was the looks of our home, but she is ruininy my health and my marriage and our relationship with our children. Although this woman has a lovely large room she is never in it. She sits in on every conversation and voices her opinion on matters which do not concern her.

When I call my husband, SHE answers. When I call my children, SHE answers. When I speak to her she doesn't hear me. Please tell me what to do. My mother-in-law is driving me nuts. --- SINKING FAST

Dear Sinking: It doesn't sound like a drive to me, lady. It sounds like a putt. And small wonder. Two years is a long time to be imprisoned in your own home.

There is only one solution to your problem -- find your mother-in-law another place to live. And don't say you can't afford it. It's cheaper than sending you to a mental hospital -- or maintaining separate roofs for you and your husband after you've filed for a divorce.

Dear Ann Landers: My 20-year-old daughter is expecting her husband back from Vietnam in May. She has not seen him in over a year. Unfortunately, she is pregnant and the baby is due just about the time her husband is scheduled to come home. He knows nothing of his wife's condition.

For financial reasons Maryanna is getting her maternity care at a military base. I understand from what I have read in the papers that the Red Cross notifies the men overseas when they become fathers. I have begged my daughter to write her husband and tell him of her condition but she refuses to do so. I just hate to have the Red Cross representative tell my son-in-law he is a father when he knows the child can't possibly be his.

Is there any way we can stop the Red Cross from relaying the message? Thank you for your assistance. --- TROUBLE IN THE FAMILY

Dear Family: Your daughter ought to discuss this problem with the chaplain of the hospital where she will have the baby. She could explain the circumstances and ask him to intercede on behalf of the young man. It would be a shattering blow if he received the news in that manner.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Horns Not Only Mark of Buck Deer

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Mark went deer hunting and shot the biggest deer he had ever seen. His joy was short lived, however, when he was collared by a game warden for breaking the law by shooting a fawn.

"You're mad," Mark screamed with disbelief. "That's no fawn. That's the biggest buck you ever laid your eyes on."

"Size has nothing to do with it," was the game warden's quiet and businesslike answer. "While it may be a buck in all other regards, it has no horns. That makes it a fawn since, under the law, a fawn is specifically defined as a deer with horns less than three inches long. Therefore, you legally shot a fawn unlawfully."

Hauled into court, Mark and the deceased animal were presented to the Judge.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mark to the letter of the law and convict Mark of shooting a fawn?

This is how the Judge ruled: NO! The Judge held that the game warden was making a tiny tempest in a tinier teapot; that besides embarrassing Mark, the game warden had slandered the buck which was equipped with all the accountrements of virile masculinity and, in strictly female company, would have had to bow to no critic.

Despite the absence of horns, concluded the judge, the fallen deer was biologically a full grown buck and was neither a baby nor a sissy. (Based upon a 1956 U. S. District Court Decision)

The Prayer from The Upper Room

As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God. (John 1:12)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, help us to have faith that we may be blessed with Thy power to become Thy children. So fill us with Thy spirit that we may be Thine ambassadors in this world. Amen.

Hayti Congregation to Send Minister Abroad

HAYTI — The congregation of the First Baptist Church is sending its pastor, the Rev. A. W. Clodfelter, on a three-week tour of the Near East which will begin June 9.

B. A. Cross, Hayti merchant and chairman of the committee planning the trip for the pastor, reports, "Events in the past year have drawn the attention of every nation. Since these events have deep Biblical significance, First Baptist Church is sending its pastor on this study tour which will include nine countries. The members of this church feel that this study is comparable to at least a full year in a Bible school and we consider this an investment in the present and future service of our pastor."

A native of Southeast Missouri, the Rev. Mr. Clodfelter was graduated from Advance high school; earned a bachelor of arts degree from Howard Payne College, Brownsville, Tex.; received his bachelor of divinity from Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City and his Masters in Theology at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Most of his pastoral service has been in the Bootheel where he has served two years as assistant pastor of First Baptist church, Cape Girardeau; two years at First Baptist church, Chaffee; and is now in his ninth year as pastor of Hayti's First Baptist church.

He is married to the former Miss Vira Louise Sanders of Lytle, Tex., who is a graduate of Howard Payne College and also holds a master of religious education degree from the Louisville Seminary. They have four children.

Volunteers to Study On Organization Need

Volunteers from Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties were picked to gather information on the need and feasibility of establishing a tri-county mental health association in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Dr. Emmett Hoctor, former superintendent of state hospital number four at Farmington, who is in charge of outpatient care at the hospital was the principal speaker.

The organization, if effected, will aid in establishing community acceptance for emotionally disturbed persons. Emotionally disturbed persons are not mentally retarded, but have thought disorders to the degree that it hinders their ability to hold a job or be reasonably happy.

The volunteers are charged with gathering statistics on the need for psychiatric care in the three counties, the resources available now, and how problems involving emotionally disturbed persons are handled now.

A mental health association is now serving Dunklin, New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

The volunteers are expected to report their finding in another called meeting in a month, or more. If the need for such an organization is apparent from their findings, an organization will be established and board members will be elected in following meetings.

Also mentioned as a possible need in the area is an outpatient psychiatric clinic, which might function one day a week. Such an arrangement is now serving Cape Girardeau and other area towns, but not Sikeston or Charleston.

Dr. Hoctor said the trend in treating emotionally disturbed persons today is toward community psychiatry. Instead of committing these persons to institutions, he suggested they be treated in their own community and that leading members of the community be educated to their needs.

About 40 persons attended. Volunteers to aid in the survey include, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gemeinhardt, Sikeston, and Agnes Cunningham, Mississippi county.

Former Eichmann Associate Sentenced

BAMBERG, Germany (AP) Franz Rademacher, a former associate of Adolf Eichmann, was sentenced today to five years in prison for aiding in the murder of 3,300 Jews in World War II.

But Rademacher was set free after a Bamberg criminal court credited the 62-year-old former Third Reich legation councillor with four years and two months he already had served in pre-trial custody and in postwar internment by the Americans. The remaining 10 months of the sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for four years.

Both the defense, which had asked for acquittal, and the prosecution, which had demanded a 15-year prison term, announced they would appeal.

The former diplomat represented the Foreign Ministry at conferences at which the Jews' fate was decided, according to the evidence at the trial.

Mildewed Tile Floor Is Worrisome for Her

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Years ago we added a den to our very nice house and just recently extended this room to make it longer. I had white-and-gold cushion tile put down by the yard. In a matter of a month the floor started to mildew and now it is nearly all black. I am heartsick and the floor man said there was nothing I could put down as the slab is sweating from the bottom up. Surely someone among your many readers will have an answer for me.—EDNA

DEAR POLLY—We have glass doors over our fireplace opening and I always dreaded cleaning them. One day I decided to try oven cleaner on them. The one I used is a foam cleaner that is sprayed on and left for a few minutes. Wipe with paper towels, and what an easy job it is. Before I used this, if I let the doors go for two or three weeks, I often had to use a razor blade to remove the baked-on soot.—MRS. N. T.

DEAR GIRLS—Mrs. C. L. M. wrote concerning Marion's Pointer about curing her child of biting anything and everything by having her bite into a cake of soap. She said that years ago her father was warden in a penitentiary and rebelling prisoners would make themselves sick by chewing soap and then taking water so as to appear to be frothing at the mouth. Once they had serious consequences following such an episode.

Washing a child's mouth out with soap has been a punishmen for many of us, when children, for telling a lie but a manufacturer of soaps says that because of the many types of soap on the market, it could be harmful if they were EATEN and a child might vomit from eating PURE soap. Perhaps you mothers might substitute the following cure that came from a reader who sent no address.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Marion another way to cure her child of biting. Whenever the child starts to bite someone or something, try biting them back. I know this works—when I was little I bit another girl because she carrying me and I wanted to walk. She told my father and he bit me back. After that I never bit another person.—DEBBIE

To Preserve Family Next Move Up to Mother-in-Law

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my husband's father passed away. My mother-in-law, who had always treated him like dirt, suddenly became the most grief-stricken woman of the 20th Century. She cried, screamed, fainted, fasted, threw herself on everybody --- especially her eldest son, my husband.

The biggest mistake of his life was saying to her at the funeral, "Don't worry, Mother, you will never be alone. You can count on us." She took him up on it right there and then and moved into our home the following week.

She couldn't bear to part with her dining room set so mine had to go. Her new freezer and refriegerator, which we could have used, went to her daughter. She had such strange sentimental attachments to her pictures, vases, throw rugs, and other assorted pieces of trash that she had to bring them along. Our once lovely home now looks like a second-hand junk shop.

I could stand it if all she ruined was the looks of our home, but she is ruininy my health and my marriage and our relationship with our children. Although this woman has a lovely large room she is never in it. She sits in on every conversation and voices her opinion on matters which do not concern her.

When I call my husband, SHE answers. When I call my children, SHE answers. When I speak to her she doesn't hear me. Please tell me what to do. My mother-in-law is driving me nuts. --- SINKING FAST

Dear Sinking: It doesn't sound like a drive to me, lady. It sounds like a putt. And small wonder. Two years is a long time to be imprisoned in your own home.

There is only one solution to your problem -- find your mother-in-law another place to live. And don't say you can't afford it. It's cheaper than sending you to a mental hospital -- or maintaining separate roofs for you and your husband after you've filed for a divorce.

Dear Ann Landers: My 20-year-old daughter is expecting her husband back from Vietnam in May. She has not seen him in over a year. Unfortunately, she is pregnant and the baby is due just about the time her husband is scheduled to come home. He knows nothing of his wife's condition.

For financial reasons Maryanna is getting her maternity care at a military base. I understand from what I have read in the papers that the Red Cross notifies the men overseas when they become fathers. I have begged my daughter to write her husband and tell him of her condition but she refuses to do so. I just hate to have the Red Cross representative tell my son-in-law he is a father when he knows the child can't possibly be his.

Is there any way we can stop the Red Cross from relaying the message? Thank you for your assistance. --- TROUBLE IN THE FAMILY

Dear Family: Your daughter ought to discuss this problem with the chaplain of the hospital where she will have the baby. She sould explain the circumstances and ask him to intercede on behalf of the young man. It would be a shattering blow if he received the news in that manner.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Mark went deer hunting and shot the biggest deer he had ever seen. His joy was short lived, however, when he was collared by a game warden for breaking the law by shooting a fawn.

"You're mad," Mark screamed with disbelief. "That's no fawn. That's the biggest buck you ever laid your eyes on."

"Size has nothing to do with it," was the game warden's quiet and businesslike answer. "While it may be a buck in all other regards, it has no horns. That makes it a fawn since, under the law, a fawn is specifically defined as a deer with horns less than three inches long. Therefore, you legally shot a fawn unlawfully."

Hauled into court, Mark and the deceased animal were presented to the Judge.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mark to the letter of the law and convict Mark of shooting a fawn?

This is how the Judge ruled: NO! The Judge held that the game warden was making a tiny tempest in a tinier teapot; that besides embarrassing Mark, the game warden had slandered the buck which was equipped with all the accountrements of virile masculinity and, in strictly female company, would have had to bow to no critic.

Despite the absence of horns, concluded the judge, the fallen deer was biologically a full grown buck and was neither a baby nor a sissy. (Based upon a 1956 U. S. District Court Decision)

The Prayer from The Upper Room

As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God. (John 1:12)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, help us to have faith that we may be blessed with Thy power to become Thy children. So fill us with Thy spirit that we may be Thine ambassadors in this world. Amen.

Award-Winning AP Columnist Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) - James Marlow, who for 25 years wrote the award-winning column "The World Today" for The Associated Press, died Thursday. He was 64 and had been in poor health for some time.

Marlow, a newspaperman for 41 years, wrote his column from Washington. It was an unusual one.

The column did not predict. It did not pretend to pass on "inside" information. It was neither pretentious nor pontifical.

Instead, the writer tried to explain events, to put them in context in an interesting and factual way. This required exhaustive research; Marlow read more than 45 books for a series analyzing Winston Churchill's impact on history.

He pioneered in interpretive writing.

Marlow was born in the Hell's Kitchen section of New York on Aug. 2, 1903, of Irish workingclass parents. He had barely a brush with college, attending Fordham in the Bronx for less than a year. He was a relentless reader, beginning as a boy when tuberculosis kept him out of school two years.

He went to work for the AP in New Orleans in 1937 after 10 years on newspapers there. He began his career as a police reporter and his favorite stories were always of those days.

Marlow's Washington column ran five days a week, a pace few columnists attempt. Because he tried to be current he wrote at the last moment, but invariably he kept his deadline.

This was late at night.

He claimed the pressure did not bother him. "You get used to it," he said.

Earlier in the day, Marlow paced the floor of the AP office, tested his ideas on editors and copy boys, read, researched and paced some more. He was an easy conversational mark for anyone, especially the young.

Lunch was always chopped beefsteak, apple pie and coffee and always in the same cafeteria. It is not the kind of place that attracts politicians, lobbyists, public relations men or executives.

He read and fished for relaxation. He worked hard for the American Newspaper Guild, was a leader in the successful drive to unionize AP editorial employes in the late 1940s.

Marlow's highly stylized writing emphasized an eye-catching opening paragraph. When India invaded tiny Portuguese Goa in 1961 Marlow began his column this way:

India's Prime Minister Nehru, who made himself the world's No. 1 holier-than-thou moralizer and man of peace, can no longer act as the conscience of mankind.

Marlow worked for the editorial freedom to write this way.

President Johnson said of the death:

"Mrs. Johnson and I were saddened to learn of the tragic death of James Marlow. He was a friend of more than 30 years. He earned my respect and that of his profession as a good, honest reporter. Journalism has lost a man who distinguished his profession. We will all miss him."

Wes Gallagher, AP general manager, said:

"The loss of Jim Marlow is a severe one, not only to The Associated Press, but to the profession of journalism as a whole. He was a superb craftsman with one of the most difficult jobs in Washington journalism, which he performed as no one else could."

Marlow is survived by his widow, the former Hannah Hartling; a daughter, Mrs. William Cherwek; and a grandson, Dean Cherwek, 5. Cremation and private services are planned.

New Credit Service Outlined

A new service to both retailers and customers in the form of a more universal Bankmark credit card was explained in the Community Room of the Security National Bank.

The bank will be affiliated with Boatman's Bank in St. Louis in the Bankmark system.

The card allows the holder to charge purchases costing $35 or less. The merchant sends the ticket of the sale with the credit card number on it to the bank and is credited the following day for the sale either to his account, or he is paid by check. Collection of bad debts is the responsibility of the bank.

Rex Sedwick, representing Boatman's Bank, explained to an audience of 40 that by mid-summer this year they expect one million Bankmark cards to be in the hands of customers in Missouri and Illinois. The cards will be issued between mid-July and early August.

The bank here will select persons to receive the cards based on credit references. The card is free to the customer and the service costs him nothing if he pays within 25 days of his purchases. If not he pays 1½ per cent monthly on the unpaid balance at a minimum of $10 per month on his bill.

Sedwick said the system offers at least six advantages to retailers: immediate cash credit, credit losses diminish, better utilization of capital, increased competition, increased customer base and simplification of accounting.

In addition $1 million will be spent to promote the system, of which at least $25,000 will be spent in the Cape Girardeau and Sikeston areas, Sedwick said.

The system also offers advantages to consumers: One card does the job of many; there are no annual dues or fees; it offers possibilities to save money by taking advantage of special sales; it has provisions for revolving credit; it eases bill paying problems and has instant cash loan provision.

Further advantages of the system to the retailer include elimination of the accounts receivable, creation of impulse sales, increased working capital, and simplification of the Jackson Funeral Home.

Bees Swarm, Get Sprayed

Hundreds of bees swarmed on the inside visor and outside window of a car owned by Mrs. Jean Delaney Thursday afternoon in Sikeston.

The car was parked on New Madrid Street near Front near Falkoff's Men and Boys Wear.

Virgil Burks, lineman for the Board of Municipal Utilities, and a part-time beekeper, attempted to move the bees, but reportedly was stung. He rolled up the windows in the car and sprayed them with an insecticide.

Hospital Bonds Favored in Pemiscot County

HAYTI — "Wonderful, wonderful!" said Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Tipton when he was asked what comments he had on the bond issue that was passed in a special election Tuesday. The bond issue was for $250,000.

Pemiscot County Clerk Harold Jones reported early Wednesday morning that out of 30 polling places, 28 had reported. Out of those 28 precincts 862 were for the proposed issue while 176 voters were against. Gobler and Tyler were those left unaccounted for.

It was announced earlier that the proposed bond issue would mean a second floor to the first floor already under construction. By adding a second floor at this time, while the first floor was under construction, 60 to 70 per cent of the cost would be saved. "The new floor will mean 30 more beds," says Tipton, "and they are really needed."

It was also pointed out earlier that a .05 cents hospital tax increase per one hundred dollar assessed valuation would be necessary to pay off the bond issue. This will mean a rise from 10 cents to 15 cents.

New Credit Service Outlined

A new service to both retailers and customers in the form of a more universal Bankmark credit card was explained in the Community Room of the Security National Bank.

The bank will be affiliated with Boatman's Bank in St. Louis in the Bankmark system.

The card allows the holder to charge purchases costing $35 or less. The merchant sends the ticket of the sale with the credit card number on it to the bank and is credited the following day for the sale either to his account, or he is paid by check. Collection of bad debts is the responsibility of the bank.

Rex Sedwick, representing Boatman's Bank, explained to an audience of 40 that by mid-summer this year they expect one million Bankmark cards to be in the hands of customers in Missouri and Illinois. The cards will be issued between mid-July and early August.

The bank here will select paying persons to receive the cards based on credit references. The card is free to the customer and he pays within 25 days of his purchases. If not he pays 1½ per cent monthly on the unpaid balance at a minimum of $10 per month on his bill.

Further advantages of the system to the retailer include elimination of the accounts receivable, creation of impulse sales, increased working capital, and simplification of Jackson Funeral Home.

Sedwick said the system offers at least six advantages to retailers: immediate cash credit, credit losses diminish, better utilization of capital, increased competition, increased customer base and simplification of accounting.

In addition $1 million will be spent to promote the system, of which at least $25,000 will be spent in the Cape Girardeau and Sikeston areas, Sedwick said.

The system also offers advantages to consumers: One card does the job of many; there are no annual dues or fees; it offers possibilities to save money by taking advantage of special sales; it has provisions for revolving credit; it eases bill paying problems and has instant cash loan provision.

Further advantages of the service include the accounts purchases, increased working capital, simplification of the Home.

Bees Swarm, Get Sprayed

Hundreds of bees swarmed on the inside visor and outside window of a car owned by Mrs. Jean Delaney Thursday afternoon in Sikeston.

The car was parked on New Madrid Street near Front near Falkoff's Men and Boys Wear.

Virgil Burks, lineman for the Board of Municipal Utilities, and a part-time beekeper, attempted to move the bees, but reportedly was stung. He rolled up the windows in the car and sprayed them with an insecticide.

Hospital Bonds Favored in Pemiscot County

HAYTI — "Wonderful, wonderful!" said Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Tipton when he was asked what comments he had on the bond issue that was passed in a special election Tuesday. The bond issue was for $250,000.

Pemiscot County Clerk Harold Jones reported early Wednesday morning that out of 30 polling places, 28 had reported. Out of those 28 precincts 862 were for the proposed issue while 176 voters were against. Gobler and Tyler were those left unaccounted for.

It was announced earlier that the proposed bond issue would mean a second floor to the first floor already under construction. By adding a second floor at this time, while the first floor was under construction, 60 to 70 per cent of the cost would be saved. "The new floor will mean 30 more beds," says Tipton, "and they are really needed."

It was also pointed out earlier that a .05 cents hospital tax increase per one hundred dollar assessed valuation would be necessary to pay off the bond issue. This will mean a rise from 10 cents to 15 cents.

Hanoi and U.S. Agree to Talks in Paris

LBJ Issues Strongest Tax Plea

President Also Raps Divisive Ambitions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, withholding a commitment to campaign for his party's presidential nominee, struck out today at those who by "pursuing personal ambitions" divide the country.

And he told members of Congress to vote on his tax increase instead of trying to "blackmail someone."

United States is agreeable to starting preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris about May 10

Johnson said he would discuss the question of campaigning for the Democratic nominee "after the convention" next August "when we see what the situation is."

But, after the reference to "personal ambitions," Johnson said there are "too many people thinking too much of self and too few people thinking of country." He mentioned no names.

The President voiced concern about the danger of violence erupting from the planned Poor People's Campaign. The march on Washington by thousands of poor "contains many inherent dangers," he said. "We're concerned with them. We've made extensive preparations."

Wearing a portable microphone and frequently moving from behind the podium set up in the White House East Room, the President delivered his strongest plea yet for prompt action on his proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge.

"I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay," he said. He rejected sharp cuts in his budget, saying the time has come for "all members of Congress to be responsible," and stand up like men and vote. He added:

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone."

Johnson indicated the agreement on preliminary peace talks had not altered his March 31 decision not to seek re-election.

He skirted a direct answer when asked what qualities he wanted to see in the man who succeeds him in the White House, but said the question is not "nearly as much the individual's personality as it is his background and his training and his philosophy."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has been stressing his experience and training as he seeks the Democratic nomination. The other two candidates, Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy, have been critical of administration policies.

Johnson said he would not urge a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks, but added "We still have too much division in this country and too many people thinking too much of self and not enough of country."

He indicated his Cabinet members would either stay out of the political campaign or resign. 5,5,5

Johnson was asked, too, how he thinks Congress will respond to pressure from the Poor People's march on Washington.

He noted that 70 billion of recommendations on social matters are now pending and said "we are hopeful and we expect Congress will give due consideration to all these matters."

"We are now attempting to do everything that can properly be done to meet the needs of the country," he said, adding that citizens always have the right to present their views to the government as long as it is done "lawfully and properly."

Johnson said, "We hope the presentation will be nonviolent, although we are well aware no single individual can give assurances. It contains many inherent dangers. We're concerned with them. W've made extensive preparations."

He said every person in the nation's capital should be aware of the possibility of serious consequences flowing from any large assemblage of people in the seat of government.

Johnson was asked what he thinks the prospects are for his 10per cent income tax surcharge.

"I think we have a long and difficult road ahead," he said, adding that if he were making up the budget now instead of last fall he would "perhaps add some to it" rather than cut it.

While critics are demanding billions of dollars in cuts, he called the budget "very lean" in view of increasing needs in Vietnam and the cities.

"The Congress has not been that cooperative," he said in noting business and labor support. He added that lawmakers talk about raising taxes but have done nothing and that spending restrictions in the Senate-passed increase "would really bring chaos to the government." His administration could not live with them, he said.

Noting the vote this week in the House Appropriations Committee to cut spending next year $4 billion and trim appropriations $18 billion, he said, "We do not agree with that viewpoint, we do not think it is the wisest course for this government," he said, adding that he is willing to accept it if it is the only way to get action from the House Ways and Means Committee on the tax increase

He said he was informed by the House Appropriations Committee that it is not likely to cut the budget by more than $1.5 billion.

Johnson said it is easy to demand figures that cannot be reached and to use this as an excuse to resist a tax increase.

He said, "I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay" in action on his requested surtax.

The President said if Congress doesn't like the budget, members should stand up like men and vote to cut it where they felt it could be done.

Johnson said, "I think the time has come for all the members of Congress to be responsible," to stand up for their country and pass a tax bill—the thing he said needs to be done more than anything else.

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone," Johnson said at the end of his discussion of taxes.

Back on politics, Johnson was asked whether there should be a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks, and replied "I would not urge that."

He added that "I do not think we do justice to the country" when those "pursuing our personal ambition" result in dividing the country.

"We still have too much division in this country and too many people thinking too much of self and not enough of country," Johnson said.

The President mentioned no names, but Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy have been critical of Johnson's policies in their campaigns for the Democratic presidential nomination. The third announced Democratic candidate is Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

City Water, Sewer Improvements Begin

Contracts have been let and construction has started on three projects designed to increase the efficiency of the water and sewer service in Sikeston.

Addition projects will be let for bids in the next 30 days, E. R. Inman, director of the Board of Public Works, said.

All contracts, which will total $2,092,000 in construction work, are expected to be under design by this summer, Inman said.

A total of $1,200,000 of the total cost will be paid by the city from the $600,000 general obligation bonds and the $600,000 water revenue bonds approved in 1965. The addition $892,000 will be paid in a federal grant.

Two of the projects started yesterday: C. B. Contracting Co. of Eldon started to install 12-inch water mains from Linn Street along Taylor street north to the city limits. Cost of the project is $192,365.

The Ray Clinton Construction Co. of Sikeston started work yesterday installing 15-inch sewer mains from the North Y to the north city limits, and from the west end city park west to Malone & Hyde and Gulf Chemicals. Cost of the project is $168,595.

Construction started last week on a 500,000-gallon elevated steel tank north of the E. P. Coleman Steam plant on Northwest Street. Cost of the project is $121,500. The contractor is Chicago Bridge and Iron Works of Chicago, Ill.

The three projects under construction are to be completed within 300 days, Inman said.

A contract for the construction of a sewage lift station to be built for $32,800 at Frisco and Maude streets has been let to the Ralph Boyer Construction Co. Work is expected to begin on it soon, Inman said.

More than $700,000 in contracts for additional sewer and water main construction in various parts of town will be let for bids in coming weeks. A contract for the expansion of the sewage treatment plant on South Ingram also will be let for bids within 30 days, Inman said.

A contract for the expansion of the water treatment plant on Center Street also will be let later.

U.S. Forces Crush Red Counterattack

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. forces crushed a North Vietnamese counterattack near Dong Na Thursday climaxing four days of fighting in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in which allied troops reported 1,303 of the enemy killed.

U. S. and South Vietnamese casualties totaled 108 men killed and 541 wounded in battles around Dong Ha and Hue, the allied commands said.

In the air war, the U. S. Command announced tonight a Navy report that an enemy MIG21 was shot down over the Gulf of Tonkin "appeared to be erroneous."

Asked for more details about circumstances surrounded the Thursday report, a U.S. spokesman said: "I have nothing further to add. I hope to have more information sometime Saturday.

U. S. Navy F4 Phantom crewmen from the carrier Ranger had reported shooting down a MIG, the first report of an enemy MIG shot down in 2½ months.

Fighting slacked off today after U.S. Marines and Army infantry reinforcements beat back a heavy enemy counter attack near the 3rd Marine Division headquarters at Dong Ha 11 miles below the eastern end of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese launched their counterattack Thursday afternoon and pushed the Marines back. Army troops were rushed in as reinforcements, artillery and U.S. planes pounded the North Vietnamese, and by nightfall "the enemy withdrew," a U.S. spokesman said. He added that the enemy made light probing attacks for two hours before contact was lost.

There was no word of new fighting by South Vietnamese forces who have been battling the North Vietnamese a mile or two from the Marines in the Dong Ha sector.

Saigon had its first major terrorist incident since the Communist lunar new year offensive in February.

Eighth Transplant Patient Passes First Critical Period

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A healthy heart replacing a badly diseased one has carried Joseph Rizor beyond a critical period and into his first postoperative day.

"The first 1½ hours are critical," said doctors at Stanford University Medical Center when they completed a 4½-hour transplant operation at noon Thursday. Rizor, 40, received the heart of a 43-year-old man.

Dr. Norman E. Shumway, 44, who headed the transplant team, said the condition of the stocky Salinas, Calif., carpenter was fair. Because of a lung condition, the patient was receiving artificial respiration to help him breathe, Shumway said.

The donor, whose family asked anonymity, died of brain damage doctors described as irreversible.

Rizor, eighth person in medical history to undergo a human heart transplant, entered the hospital in March after suffering a serious heart condition for seven years.

He wanted the surgery.

"I wish that were me," Rizor had said when he heard about the world's first heart transplant, which was done at Cape Town, South Africa, last Dec. 3.

Rizor was quoted by his wife, Eileen.

"At first I was shocked by the idea but time and the knowledge of how desperately my husband wanted to undergo the operation have made me realize that this may be his only chance to live," Mrs. Rizor said before the operation began at 7:30 a.m.

She said her husband "could make anything" but had been bedridden and unable to work for the past two years.

There are four children, Mark, 15, Michelle, 1 Jody, 7, and Christopher, 3. The couple was married almost years ago and moved to Salinas eight years ago.

Rizor's was the second transplant performed by the Shumway team. The first gave a new heart to Mike Kasperak, 54, year-old steelworker, last Jan. 6. The heart functioned well but Kasperak died after 15 days from internal bleeding and other complications.

Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard performed the historic first at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital. The patient, Louis Washkansky, 54, died of pneumonia 18 days after the surgery.

Barnard performed another heart transplant Jan. 2, and the patient, Philip Blaiberg, 54, is reported in good condition. Barnard discharged him from the hospital in mid-March.

Ninth Heart Transplant Made in Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A 47-year-old Arizona accountant received the heart of a 15-yearold married woman during a three-hour heart transplant operation today at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

It was the world's ninth transplant case and the first in Texas.

Hospital spokesmen described the condition of the recipient, Everett Clair Thomas, Phoenix, as satisfactory. They said his blood pressure became normal shortly after a single electric shock restored the regular beat of the donor heart.

The hospital did not identify the donor but relatives identified her as Mrs. Charlie L. Martin III, a Houston suburban resident who had been married only six months. The identification was made by the father-in-law, Charles L. Martin Jr.

The hospital said the donor died of a gunshot wound to the head.

The Baylor University medical team was headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley, chief of cardiovascular surgery at St. Luke's and a surgeon who has been honored by medical groups around the world for his development of heart and vascular surgical techniques.

Other members of the team were Dr. Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

St. Luke's and Baylor Medical are in the $100 million Texas Medical Center and St. Luke's is adjacent to Methodist Hospital, where a team headed by Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, another world famous heart surgeon, has pioneered the use of artificial heart pumps.

DeBakey, 58, and Cooley have worked together frequently on development of new surgical equipment, techniques and procedures.

In Phoenix, Paul Thomas, 17, son of the recipient, said the family "had no idea dad would be getting a new heart when he left home five days ago."

"But I am happy about this, that my father may live," he said.

The son said his mother telephoned him from Houston shortly before midnight and "told us it (the transplant) was necessary."

The woman was brought to the hospital about 6 p.m. Thursday.

Shortly before midnight, Thomas was taken to the operating room and his chest opened.

The heart was found to have calcium deposits on one heart valve extending into the walls between two heart chambers and into the openings where blood vessels enter the heart.

The young woman was in an operating room next door and her heart was moved to the operating room.

A statement from the hospital said minor tailoring of the donor heart permitted it to be transplanted to Thomas.

The medical team from Baylor University College of Medicine included Dr. Benton Cooley, Robert E. Bloodwell and Dr. Grady L. Hallman Jr.

The lower part of Thomas' heart was removed and the two lower chambers of the donor's sewn into place.

The technique used here was developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of Stamford University Medical School who only Thursday performed the eighth heart transplant.

Robert L. Leach Hart's Manager

Robert L. Leach

Robert L. Leach has been appointed manager of Hart's Bread plant in Sikeston. The announcement was made by Ernest B. Hueter, president of Interstate Bakeries Corporation, in Kansas City.

Leach replaces J. W. Hartzog, who died March 5, after serving as manager here since 1953.

Leach joins Interstate with 35 years experience in bread operations in production, sales and management.

He served as general sales manager of Junge Baking Co. in Joplin for 14 years, then purchased the Park Region Bakery in Fergus Falls, Minn., where he served as president and general manager three years.

He and his wife are living in an apartment but will move to 819 Ladue later this month.

Rockefeller Beams After First Day of Campaigning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pacing the aisle of a campaign bus in a sweat-soaked shirt, hitting it off well with the crowds-Nelson A. Rockefeller in his first full day of campaigning for the presidency seemed a man glad to be in the race at last.

After his announcement Wednesday that he was going after the Republican nomination, the New York governor hopped to Iowa Thursday for a day of campaign.

It was, he said, "one of the most exhilarating days of my life."

Rockefeller was interruped 16 times by applause in a speech before some 8,000 persons at the University of Iowa as he called for voting at age 18 and a lottery plan to pick draftees.

Later, on his way to a fund-raising dinner in Cedar Rapids - another friendly audience- he couldn't sit still in his campaign bus.

Shucking his coat, he kept prowling the length of the bus, his shirt clammy with perspiration, as he spun off ideas and swapped thoughts with a group of students in the back.

Rockefeller planned to return to New York today but didn't disclose where he would appear next in pursuit of the voter.

Richard M. Nixon, who has a head start of months on Rockefeller in the quest for the GOP nomination, touched again Thursday on the "black capitalism" concept he recently introduced.

In a nationwide radio address from Indianapolis, Ind., the former vice president said taxtax incentives and loan guarantees could help many Negreos to become owners of their businesses and "remove the ceiling from black aspiration."

Nixon is the only Republican on the ballot in Indiana's primary next Tuesday. But the Democratic contest that day continues to grow in import.

Aides of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., say that if he wins 30 per cent of the vote in the three-man competition he will interpret this as a signal to press on in his fight for the presidential nomination.

During a wide-ranging day of campaigning Thursday in Indiana, McCarthy seemed to be saying - or at least suggesting - that he expects to trail Sen. Robert F. Kennedy or McCarthy from getting their hands on the votes the Indiana delegation will take to the Democratic National Convention.

Texas Demos to Decide Which Candidate to Back

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Texans decide Saturday how their delegates vote in the presidential nominating conventions, probably committing them to Gov. John Connally, a Democrat, and Sen. John Tower, a Republican, as favorite son contenders.

This will be done at precinct conventions in the evening, to be held at polling places after voting ends in the party primary elections.

Democrats are expected to accord Connally favorite son status as leader of the 104-vote delegation at their national convention in Chicago, possibly allowing for a quick switch to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The delegates probably will be pledged firmly to no one after Connally.

Support for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy D-N.Y., appears limited in the state. Backers of both want the Texas delegates freed of a unit rule requiring them to vote as a bloc, while Connally forces favor such a rule.

So-called "old guard" Republicans want to vote for Reagan on the second ballot.

Crossover Votes Likely to Play Key Role in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Crossover voting may play an important role in Indiana's presidential primary which dictates that write-in votes cannot be counted.

Party crossover voting may prove a big asset to Indiana Gov. Roger D. Branigin, running as a favorite son candidate against Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy on the Democratic ballot Tuesday. Richard M. Nixon is unopposed on the Republican ballot.

Crossing over is not difficult in Indiana, and because Nixon has no opposition and Branigin is personally popular with many Republicans, the governor could get substantial GOP support.

A voter requests the ballot of the party of his choice, and is subject to challenge only by a poll watcher of that party. If challenged, the voter must sign an affidavit that he voted for a majority of that party's candidates in the preceding general election and intends to do so again in the next general election.

Since the general election ballot is secret, there's no way to prove or disprove his affidavit.

Woman Hurt in Intersersection Crash

A woman was injured in a two-car collision at 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of highways 153 and 60 in Stoddard county.

A 1949 Ford truck, driven by Clyde Laird, 51, Essex, pulled off highway 153 into highway 60 and struck a 1966 Ford, driven by John McCullough, 39, Dexter, in the side, the state patrol reported.

The McCullough vehicle then struck a bridge banister.

Injured in the accident, was McCullough's wife, Lola McCullough, 38, who was treated by a Dexter physician for a side and stomach injury.

Start Set for May 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam agreed today to open preliminary peace talks in Paris next Friday or a few days thereafter.

President Johnson announced at a 10 a.m. news conference he had sent word to Hanoi that he accepts the time and place Hanoi had announced to the world two hours earlier.

Johnson said he was informed of the North Vietnamese agreement at 1 a.m. today. He then conferred with Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials and made his decision.

Hanoi announced its purpose in the talks would be "to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam North Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides."

Johnson ordered March 31 a partial halt in bombing of the North and called for peace talks. He offered to stop the rest of the bombing if Hanoi would show "restraint" in its military operations.

But U.S. officials report Hanoi since early March has greatly increased infiltration of men and weapons into South Vietnam.

Asked about this today Johnson said "we have been quite concerned" about the North Vietnamese expanding infiltration.

The President warned the Paris talks would be only the "first step" toward bringing the long and bloody war in Southeast Asia to a close.

"Let me sound a precautionary note," Johnson said after announcing his decision. "This is only a very first step, and there are many, many hazards and difficulties ahead."

"I have never felt it was useful for public officials to confuse delicate negotiations by detailing personal views" in advance, Johnson went on. So, he said, he would not discuss the question further now.

It was exactly a month ago today that North Vietnam and the United States publicly declared their readiness for such talks, thus signaling a potential breakthrough in the long effort to begin peace discussions.

The forthcoming discussions are expected to be only preliminary to what could be much-drawn-out negotiations.

For the preliminary contacts, the United States had proposed 15 Asian and European capitals for possible meeting places while North Vietnam had suggested Phnom Penh or Warsaw.

The Indonesians meanwhile, offered to send a cruiser to Tonkin Gulf as a meeting place.

The North Vietnamese broadcast today indicated an end to the stalemate. As received by U.S. monitors, Hanoi Radio said:

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam(government is of the opinion that formal talks between Hanoi and Washington should be undertaken immediately.

"It decides to send Minister Xuyan Thuy as its representative to hold formal talks with a representative of the U.S. government to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides.

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam government welcomes the fact that the French government is willing to let Paris be the site between the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the United States as declared by French (foreign) Minister Couve De Murville on 18 April 1968.

"The DRV government is of the opinion that Paris, just as Phnom Penh and Warsaw, is an appropriate venue for the forma and bilateral talks.

"These formal talks will begin on 10 May or a few days later."

Johnson has named veteran roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as the U.S. envoy for the preliminary talks.

Also tapped for this service if needed has been Llewelyn Thompson, U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, who recently returned to Moscow after Washington consultations.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

The biggest issue in this presidential election year is law and order.

The reference is to the substance not to lip service.

Late in his administration–too late–President Lyndon B. Johnson endorsed law and order but it came after he chanted the songs of pressure groups, the nation's cities were burned and pillaged and Americans were killed and injured.

The next president must promise to provide the leadership to restore law and order. He must outline specifically how he will exercise this leadership.

Then if he is elected he must keep his pledge.

This is the minimum need of America.

The breakdown in law and order began in the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Sit down strikes were tolerated. Union workers occupied industrial plants illegally during strikes. There was no production. This process forced management to settle the strikes on the unions' terms.

It won federal government support because it was in behalf of what they considered a good cause and an excellent vote builder.

Lawlessness, usually condoned by federal officials, has now grown to the point where traffic is blocked, commerce is stopped, the educational process all all levels disrupted, private and public property destroyed, people are murdered and maimed, property is openly pillaged and vandalized, the military service is obstructed, aid and comfort is given the enemy and the crime rate soars.

America has become a land of mob rule, civil disobediance and anarchy all in the name of so-called good causes, which appeal to the conscience.

Lawlessness and intimidation are not only condoned they are rewarded and supported openly by the federal government.

In the attorney general's office sits an apologist for law and order–weak kneed Ramsey Clark. Federal employes have often formented disorders.

While he sits idly by mouthing platitudes this country's historic government by law submits to blackmailers, whose illegal operations are excused falsely as involving their right to dissent.

The nation faces its gravest crisis.

Americans can do something about it.

They have the privilege of speaking out and acting against law violaters and those who support their activities. They can write to members of congress in protest.

They can vote against the public officials, who have tolerated and appeased the nation's growing ranks of criminals, anarchists, arsonists, vandals and murders.

Their neglect could be fatal to the nation.

MAY AND VIOLETS

They are not necessarily synonymous, but it is hard to think of May without violets. And May Day, back when it was sentimental rather than socially significant, was always marked by May baskets brimming with violets. Springtime, May, young love and violets - they were all there, together, in those fragile paper baskets.

Spring brings earlier flowers, a few, but none better known or more widely distributed. More than 80 species of violets grow in the United States, in damp meadows, rich woodlands, upland pastures, at rural roadsides and on dry, sandy plains. In color they range from white through yellow to all shades of blue and purple; and their close cousins, the johnny-jump-ups or wild pansies, mingle these colors in the same blossom.

White violets have a rich, sweet fragrance. The blues and purples have only the woodsy, outdoors smell of spring. But all are rich with nectar, as the bees well know. Bumblebees are specially fond of the common blue violets that spread heart-shaped leaves and lift long- stemmed flowers almost everywhere. So are Saturday-free children. So are country grownups.

The old herbalists used violets for inflammations of the chest and lungs. Violets, they said, "specially comforteth the heart." They still do, as any Maytime wanderer will testify. Blue sky, warm sun and roadside violets are as comforting a discovery as any heart could ask of the burgeoning countryside.

It seems to me that I am hearing more and more favorable comment on the column which quoted Abe Lincoln on respect and enforcement of law than most any I have had lately. People of the state, if Macon County is any criterion, are strongly behind the law enforcement officers as they go about doing their duty.

Law enforcement officers are human and they may err, but usually they err under stress and many of us do the same thing, even though it is not an act in public areas.

I have been a member of a young man's Sunday School Class at the Baptist Church here, not because I try to kid myself in being young, but I once taught the class and I have a deep regard for the young men who make up the class membership.

Sunday the question of law enforcement crept into the discussion and I was pleasantly surprised at the stand these young men are taking. They decry some of the efforts of those who lead in the church to discredit law enforcement and believe, as do I, that the church is done a disservice when a member of the clergy gets mixed up in such matters.

Not only do these young men hold fast to law enforcement and to the backing of the law enforcement officers, but a former educational executive with whom I talked Sunday also feels the same way.

Law enforcement officers must never feel that they have no backing in doing their duty. They do and the good people of the state and the nation should speak out and say so.

From the government handout "Saudi Arabia Today," comes a fragment which matches the "coals to Newcastle" deal. The Saudis, a desert-dwelling people, are importing sand; only last month a freighter came from Finland bearing 3,200 tons of sand valued at $70,000.

But it was far from the desert variety, or the kind cliches used to put into spinach. It was special stuff for use in water refineries.

A man misses a lot if he keeps his nose in a book.

But he inherits the world because his horizons are so boundless.

He may miss a great deal in the immediate environment including much small talk and a great many television programs, which, to put it mildly, do not add to the sum total of human wisdom.

One of the things that always impressed us about reading was the disdain drunks have for it.

We formerly read the Reader's Digest from cover to cover on the buses and street cars.

Every drunk, who boarded these public conveyances, always became irritated by our reading habits.

Why this was so, we do not know, but it may have been because they were intoxicated and wanted to occupy the center of the stage.

Since drunks aren't completely rational, the human being, who doesn't follow their advice, may have at least acquired a small measure of wisdom.

Reading is a talent that isn't properly appreciated outside of the elementary school classes in which it is a major requirement.

There are talent contests for everything else including spelling.

Why not a talent contest for readers?

If there was a way to measure their knowledge and to demonstrate it dramatically, many more could be persuaded to read.

The country would benefit from having more informed citizens.

Even the act of voting isn't sufficient to preserve our form of government. It must be informed voting to be beneficial. One way to become informed is to read.

NEW YORK (AP) — Industry is working hard to make it soft for the nation's housewives.

Take disposable pans, for instance. Take 'em quick, before they overflow the kitchen and go clattering down the hall.

Somehow, they end up in the dishpan instead of the garbage pail and they come out so shiny and sturdy looking that my thrifty nature rebels at discarding such useful objects.

Useful for what, I have yet to discover. But still, I have the storage shelves of the stove stacked with them and the cabinets are so packed with aluminum foil dishes of every size and description that the whole pile comes crashing to the floor every time I open the door.

I'd have a little more room for the disposable pans, except that the drawers and closets in the house are all jammed with those lovely plastic bags clothes come back in from the cleaners. No telling when I'll need 250 or so garment covers, so I carefully fold them up and stuff them into any space not already occupied by little plastic strawberry baskets or slightly used disposable dustcloths.

When piastic roraws und plastic toothpicks made their debut my life took a turn for the worse. I know they're meant to be dumped instead of dunked after use, but I'm determined to revitalize them with detergent.

Then along came the neat little coffee cans, complete with a tight cover and beautiful designs that turned them into perfect canisters when empty. I couldn't manage to utilize them all with just flour and sugar and tea, so I started tossing beans and rice and pancake flour and black-eyed peas and hard candy and even oatmeal into them. But they are still multiplying faster than I can think up uses for them.

I never minded throwing out paper plates in the old days, when their rough surface absorbed the juice from the pickles and the grease from the spare ribs. But now that they're as smooth as china and seem almost as durable, I have to look the other way when I consign them to the garbage can.

Well, there's one bright side to the aluminum avalanche. I just baked a frozen pie in its own foil dish and I find that the container was perforated with tiny holes in order to make the crust brown right. I won't mind throwing that one out.

On second thought, perhaps I'd better keep it after all. It would make a dandy sieve.

YOUR SILENT PARTNER

"EVERY MERCHANT must recognize the fact that the most powerful single influence in any community is its newspaper," declared the head of a recent Media Study Group.

"The prosperity of a community depends upon the prosperity of its newspapers, thus enabling them to render such services from which the retail merchants derive indirect benefit. So the prosperity of any merchant depends upon how closely he links his business with the public mind through the newspapers.

"Newspapers are silent partners in every business within their community. They become an active partner in an individual business when it identifies itself through advertising.

"If more merchants had followed the example of the most successful merchants (in maintaining their advertising) throughout the depression, the volum of retail business would have been greater than it was."

Well, it's usually left unbuttoned for several reasons -- because that's been the accepted version for as far back as we can remember, and because the contour of the wearer, and the construction of the vest, makes it fit better with the bottom button unbuttoned. . . "I have never been able to buy a sport shirt with a collar that fits me like my regular shirts. Why not?" READY TO COOL OFF LONG, HOT SUMMER

If there is a long, hot summer in 1968, it will not be for want of preparedness on the part of those who will have to deal with it.

Statements by any number of local and state and federal authorities make one wonder whether what is being talked about is the United States or South Vietnam, Chicago or Saigon. But if the Viet Cong's offensive in Vietnamese cities caught the government off guard, the only thing that will surprise it here is if our homegrown guerrillas remain relatively quiescent come warm weather.

The Army, for instance, has announced that it is stockpiling riot-control equipment in some half-dozen strategically located depots across the country. It is also prepared to airlift aid to any city where civil disorders break out.

So extensive is the planning that everything from maps of subway, sewer, water and electrical systems in potential trouble spots to the daily menus of National Guardsmen have been assembled.

Los Angeles police have created 15 four-man "Special Weapons and Tactics Teams" and are forming 30 more to deal with snipers and fire bombers. They will SWAT Watts if it rises again.

Nor is the planning confined only to the immediate future. Writing in National Guardsman magazine, Col. Frank B. Rigg, (USA, ret.) foresees guard units being required to be in action for months and even years in protracted urban guerrilla warfare -- "one of the nastiest forms of warfare known to mankind."

He visualizes such pleasant prospects as the roads into cities being blocked off, forcing soldiers to parachute into "skyscraper jungles" to fight their way down through buildings. Helicopters will make sudden landings with assault troops or hoover overhead dropping smoke bombs on mobs of rioters.

In Illinois, the sheriff of Cook County began enlisting volunteers in a 1,000-man civilian vigilante force (half white and half black) until his plan was stalled by court action.

In Ohio, the state legislature is debating a law that would exempt police and military personnel from any criminal liability for actions taken to quell a riot, though strenuous objections by civil libertarians make its passage doubtful.

All that is lacking to complete this dismal picture is for the government to announce that pacification teams will be sent in after urban "seize-and-hold" operations "to win the minds and hearts of the people" so that we may achieve peace in our time.

And who is this fearsome "enemy" who is throwing the country into the greatest panic since the Millerites awaited the end of the world in 1844? Evidently, only a handful of loud-talking, hard-core black powerists.

According to a report made for the President's Youth Opportunities Council, a survey of 11 cities found the dominant mood of the majority of Negro youths in city ghettos to be one not of anger but of tragic apathy. The report charges that summer programs in the past have been inspired out of fear of a minority of angry youths and "administered in a vain attempt to 'cool' the ghetto and thus maintain the status quo."

It all begins to sound just too much like Vietnam to be comfortable. In America, as in Vietnam, is this country's ultimate answer to everything to be nothing but raw force?

Ten centuries from now, says a scientist, man will have no teeth. Even so, it's doubtful that he'll be able to gum up things any more than he's doing now.

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

A survey of some recent United States government expenditures, made by Congressman H. R. Gross (R., Iowa). should cause the American citizen to inquire how necessary much of our government spending really is.

Officials of the Agency for International Development recently discovered that $400,000 of its appropriation was unspent. Instead of saving the money so that the next year's appropriation could be reduced, they devoted themselves to finding some way, any way, to spend the money. The final solution to the "problem" was to buy 1,000 television sets to "educate" natives in the jungle. No one seemed worried that the natives had no electricity and so could not use television.

Bureaucrats always seem willing to spend vast sums of money to teach people how to do things they already do quite well. One agency decided the United States government should give the Nationalist Chinese government $2.5 million to train Formosans and Japanese to grow vegetables, even though these peoples are among the best vegetable growers in the world. Similarly, the Office of Economic Opportunity gave the Zuni Indians a grant to improve their jewelry business, although they already make more than $2 million a year without government help.

Government employees seem peculiarly skilled at spending considerably more than necessary for common items. The Defense Department recently spend $312.50. for generator knobs worth $1.62, and $1.55 apiece for nuts and bolts available for 6c to the average citizen.

It is obvious that having almost unlimited sumes oof other people's money to spend has not made government bureaucrats economy-minded. HLH.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

ROCKEFELLER'S IN

On April 11 Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson flatly forecast that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller would announce for the Republican nomination for president. On April 30 he did exactly that.

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Bobby Kennedy has glamor but has he maturity? People remember his early job with Joe McCarthy; Friends claim Bobby realizes his past mistakes.

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson today continue their diagnosis of the Presidential candidates, this time focusing on Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.)

WASHINGTON — Robert F. Kennedy is a man with a terrific Senate record, a lot of courage — sometimes bordering on gall — and a strong belief in the divine right of Kennedys. Though the 13 colonies discarded the divine right of kings 100 years before Bobby's Irish ancestors migrated to Boston, he still operates on the theory that the nearest relative should inherit the White House throne.

What the American voter will have to decide is whether he wants a president whose chief qualifications are brilliant ability — not always well directed — a lot of political know-how, access to a family fortune of $300,000,000 and the glamor of the Kennedy name. The voter will also have to decide whether Bobby has matured enough to profit from the mistakes of the past.

This judgment will have to be exercised particularly by liberal voters who tend to regard Bobby as their new knight in shining armor, but who regarded his late employer, Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, as the embodiment of evil.

Bobby latched onto McCarthy's staff as a result of the fact that old Joe Kennedy early had contributed $50,000 to the Wisconsin Senator's witch-hunting campaign and helped in a conference with the late Cardinal Spellman to plot McCarthy's course. Old Joe, therefore, was in a position to ask that his son be put on McCarthy's payroll. He was.

MCCARTHY EXPOSED

Significantly, this was at a time when most mature citizens had reason to realize that McCarthy was a fake. He had been thoroughly exposed for defending the Nazi storm troopers who massacred unarmed prisoners at Malmedy in the Battle of the Bulge. He had challenged the patriotism of Gens. George Marshall and Dwight Eisenhower. He had teamed up with anti-semitic rabble-rouser Gerald L. K. Smith in an investigation of Anna Rosenberg. He had slandered dozens of loyal Americans without evidence. He had called the Democratic party the "Party of Treason" and accused the Truman Administration of harboring 205 card-carrying Communists in the State Department.

Bobby Kennedy now wants to be head of the Democratic party and receive the blessing of the Trumanites.

Sen. Kennedy's friends now argue that he was too young to pass judgment on Joe McCarthy, that he knows his mistake now that he has become a liberal. The truth is, however, that Bobby has never repudiated the demagogue from Wisconsin. When in July 1953 every Senator walked off McCarthy's committee in protest over his methods, Bobby remained on his staff. He finally quit three weeks later because he couldn't get along with Roy Cohn, then General Counsel.

Two years afterward, Bobby walked out of a banquet where he was being honored as one of the nation's ten "outstanding young men" because the main speaker, the late Edward R. Murrow, was critical of Joe McCarthy.

When McCarthy died in 1957, Kennedy not only attended the funeral in Washington but also flew to Appleton, Wis., for the interment.

Bobby's biggest investigation for McCarthy was into allied trade with Communist China during the Korean War. Kennedy was outraged over the fact that the British, Greeks and other allies were shipping supplies to the Chinese for possible use against American troops in Korea.

KENNEDY SWITCH

Yet when the same question came up 13 years later, Sen. Robert Kennedy voted against cutting off foreign aid to countries engaged in trade with North Vietnam. As the liberal lodestar, he was no longer indignant against shipments that might be used against American troops — in this case in Vietnam.

During his Communist-hunting days, Bobby also presented the case against Capt. Irving Peress, whose promotion to major gave the right wing a cause celebre. McCarthy had made Peress a national figure after Peress took the Fifth Amendment rather than answer questions about alleged Communist ties. From coast to coast, the right-wing claque cried, "Who promoted Peress?"

It was Bobby Kennedy who, at a Senate hearing, put the question to Peress which later reverberated around the nation via the right wing.

The late President Kennedy has been criticized for not sounding off against McCarthy as did other Democratic senators. In explanation JFK told James McGregor Burns: "I was rather in ill grace personally to be around hollering about what McCarthy had done in 1952 and 1951 when my brother had been on the staff in 1953. That is really the guts of the matter."

Perhaps this is why old Joe Kennedy bolstered up his third son. "He's a great kid. He hates the same way I do."

Has Sen. Kennedy now grown up enough to profit from the mistakes of the past? A future column will attempt to give the answer.

SOUTHERN STRATEGY

Southern Democrats are talking about uniting behind a regional favorite son, to bolster their bargaining position at the Presidential Convention. By standing together, they hope to be able to win the vice presidential nomination for their candidate.

The biggest problem, apparently, is to agree upon a favorite son. No poll has been taken, but a majority of southern leaders seem to prefer Gov. John Connally of Texas.

CRIME WATCH:

Unreported Two-Way Radio Network Covers Workers and Streets in 500 Cities.

CLEVELAND — Here they're on the Community Radio Watch.

Thousands of citizen volunteers, drivers of trucks, buses, taxis, delivery "wagons" equipped with two-way radios, look out for killers, muggers, roving gangs, looters, burglars, civil disorders, dangerous situations and fearful lone workers.

Here, as in a network of 500 other cities and communities — soon to escalate to 800—the radio watchers flash word to their dispatchers who in turn signal police, firefighters, sheriffs, hospitals, the Coast Guard and the military, if necessary.

Nobody wants to hurt anybody. But nobody wants to get hurt—on or off the job.

And it's time someone said it bluntly—lots of working people are being slugged, mugged, bruised, beaten, and even killed as they earn their daily bread.

You can't philosophize with the widows or the dead. There's crime in the streets and many unions and thousands of firms have banded together in a fantastic unreported do-it-yourself crime-fighting campaign to help harassed police departments, municipal leaders and one-man small town safety headquarters.

People are frightened. How can they not be? In San Francisco on the night of April 9, a single rifle shot killed bus driver Martin Whitted. A few minutes later his change maker was stolen.

A report from Houston reveals that bus robberies have tripled in each of the past few years. As of March 11, there had been 128 bus holdups this year according to Capt. L. C. Colley, head of the robbery squad.

At a recent House Postal Committee hearing, Jack Leventhal, president of the Brooklyn section of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO, told a grim story of regular mass holdup days. These fall on the first and 16th of each month when the carriers deliver thousands of welfare and pension checks.

This is a new trend. In the past the thieves would rifle individual letter boxes. Now, he said, they waylay the post office man and just snatch the loot in bulk.

One member of his local died after a brutal beating. Another died from a heart attack after pursuing a robber.

Leventhal's colleague, James Rademacher, a union vice president, reported the assaults, thievery, disdain for the uniform and disrespect for law and order have made the job of a letter carrier increasingly dangerous in many large cities.

Nor do other public service workers find it easier to work for a living. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. provides sleeping quarters for its night operators in Baltimore (when not on strike) to safeguard them, for it's not safe to leave the building at night.

Welfare workers always seem to be under siege. Municipal employes union records are filled with grim—and ghastly—reports of beatings, an occasional death, rape, and long sieges. Many sleep in their centers at night when work has kept them in after nightfall.

One welfare worker, a member of the State, County and Municipal Employes, almost lost an eye when an assailant thrust a lit cigarette into it.

Private business does not better. The new thievery hits free enterprise as well as public services. So some businessmen gathered one day in Cincinnati at the end of 1966, according to the records, and launched what is now known as the Community Radio Watch program.

It covers more than half the nation's cities with populations of 100,000 or more. Some 26,000 firms and scores of unions are involved in the two-way radio system. The "Watch" is sponsored by the Communications Division of Motorola Corp. It's the largest citizens anticrime operation of modern times.

The "Watch" is kept by railroad men as well as bus drivers and over the highway truck drivers.

It's helping. Some day, men and women will again be able to go about their business, day or night, earning their daily bread free from the young marauders, dope addicts, and thugs who are turning the main drags of our big cities into jungles.

Peggy Porter Weds Stanley Robertson

Mrs. and Mrs. Stanley A. Robertson

BENTON -- The Methodist church was the setting April 20 for the wedding of Peggy Ann Porter and Stanley A. Robertson.

The Rev. Frank Black of Belle, assisted by Rev. Albert Gibbs, Benton, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli mums and daisies. Tree candelabra were placed on either side of the altar.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Lester Miller, Jr., organist. Mrs. Wallace Alden was soloist.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. Her floor length gown was made of imported silk organza over taffeta. The high botique neckline and front of the gown was trimmed with motifs of lace entwined with seed pearls. Long tapered sleeves came to a point over the hands, accented with lace motifs.

The front of the skirt was A shaped. Soft gathering at the back of the waist floated into a full chapel-length train. Motifs of the lace also graced the bottom of the train. Her bouffant illusion veil was capped with organza floretts outlined with seed pearls and lily of the valley sprays. She carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Her maid of honor was Miss Diane Swinger of Benton. Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Fesler of St. Louis, and Mrs. Robert Crowell of Fayette. They wore identical floor-length gowns of yellow linen weave. The brief front yolk was outlined with lace daisies. The close fitted neckline was plain dipping to a deep V in the back. The dresses were accepted by floor-length floating panels. They wore a loop bow with nosetip veil to match the gowns. They carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Kathy Gail Woodfin, Cape Girardeau, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a short yellow linen dress gathered from a white rounded yolk trimmed in yellow daisies. Her bow and veil was identical to that of bridesmaids. She carried a basket of yellow daisies.

Gregory Robertson, Norfolk, Va., brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Dale Hotze, Normandy, and Richard Kandler, Chicago. Ushers were David Porter, Memphis, brother of the bride and Donald Skaggs, Crocker.

The reception was held in the lower auditorium of the church immediately following the ceremony. The serving table was covered with yellow cloth overlaid with a handmade white linen and lace cloth that has been in the bride's family for four generations. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with white and yellow daisies. Guests were served by Miss Linda Shaw, Charleston; Miss Mary Jane Strode, Kirkwood, Miss Pat Wendling, St. Louis; and Mrs. David Porter, sister-in-law of the bride, of Memphis. Miss Sandra Behring, Fredericktown, attended the guest book.

The new Mrs. Robertson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hess Porter, of Benton, and is completing her junior year at Central Methodist College Fayette. Robertson is the son of Col. and Mrs. R. S. Robertson Quantico, Va. He attended Central Methodist College and is now serving in the navy, Great Lakes, Ill.

Cards Bow to Astros; NL in Spitball Trouble

HOUSTON (AP)—John Bateman and Denny LeMaster spell trouble to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The trouble amounted to a 4-0 loss Thursday night at the hands of the Houston pair who seem to be especially effective against the world champs. LeMaster hurled a 3-hit shutout and Bateman cracked a homer.

It was the 12th career shutout for LeMaster and he remarked, "Five or six of them have been against the Cardinals."

Bateman, who collected his homer with none on base in the fourth inning, hit only two round-trippers all of last year and both came against the Cardinals. Bateman was walked intentionally three times in the two-game series which ended Thursday night.

"I don't know what it is," said Cards' manager Red Schoendienst. "But every time Bateman goes up there something happens. He's really tough on us."

LeMaster now holds a 2-3 record on the season. For Nelson Briles, now 4-1, the Cardinals' pitcher, it was his first loss since last August and halted a 14-game winning streak.

The Cardinals play at San Francisco today with Steve Carlton (2-0) of St. Louis set to face the Giants' Juan Marichal (3-1). Houston entertains Atlanta.

Nolan Ryan has some advice for John Boozer. Pickle brine. It keeps you out of spitball trouble with the umpires.

The Great Spitball Controversy erupted again Thursday night in the midst of the New York Mets' 3-0 victory over Philadelphia.

Phillies' reliever John Boozer was beginning his warmups in the seventh inning and was amazed to hear umpire Ed Vargo yell, "ball one."

"How can he be charged with a ball on a warmup pitch?" screamed Manager Gene Mauch. "He went to his mouth inside the 18-foot circle of the mound," said Vargo, "and that's a ball anytime."

A discussion ensued, with Mauch ordering Boozer to spit on his hand twice more and Vargo calling balls two and three and ejecting the by-now bewildered pitcher.

Mauch inquired what would happen if Dick Hall, who replaced Boozer, should commit the same offense.

"I'll forfeit the game to the Mets," said Vargo, ending the discussion. So by the time Bud Harrelson of the Mets finally got up, the count was 3-0.

Ryan, the winning pitcher who allowed just three hits in the seven innings he pitched, said he stays out of trouble because of the pickle brine prescribed by trainer Gus Mauch to treat blisters on his pitching hand.

"I don't like pickles," said Ryan, who was lifted after throwing 136 pitches and striking out 10. "But the brine is doing the job. I keep dipping my finger in a jar of the stuff.

"Only trouble is I don't like the smell. It bothers me, especially when I bring my hand to my mouth. Outside the 18-foot circle, of course."

In other National League games Thursday, Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 2-1 in 17 innings, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Chicago shut out Pittsburgh 1-0 and Cincinnati downed San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings.

In the American League, Boston beat California 4-1, Baltimore took New York 7-3 and Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2.

Bob Bailey drove in two runs with singles 11 innings apart as the Dodgers won the longest game they have played since moving to Los Angeles 10 years ago. The Braves tied the game in the ninth on Felix Millan's run-scoring infield single.

Denny Lemaster threw a three-hitter at the league-leading Cardinals and the Astros broke Nelson Briles' consecutive victory string of 13. He had won four this season and nine at the end of the 1967 campaign. Briles singled in the sixth for the first St. Louis hit.

Joe Niekro scattered six hits and Ernie Banks homered for the only run of the game off Jim Bunning in the Cubs' victo y. The victory ended a three-game Pirate winning streak and a three-game Chicago losing string.

Johnny Bench came up with a bases-loaded single with two out in the 11th to break open the Cincinnati-San Francisco game and before the inning was over the Reds had scored twice more. Willie McCovey and Jim Hart each hit his fifth homer for the Giants.

No-hit Tom Phoebus said he didn't have very much Thursday night but the surging Baltimore Orioles have plenty to show for it today.

In his first start since his nohitter last Saturday, the stocky right-hander yielded six hits and whipped the New York Yankees 7-3, becoming the first American League pitcher to win four games.

In the only other contests, Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2 on Tony Oliva's 10th-inning single and Boston trimmed California 4-1. Detroit's league lead shrank to a half-game over Baltimore and one game over Minnesota.

In the National League, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Cincinnati whipped San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 1-0, New York defeated Philadelphia 3-0 and Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 1 in 17 innings.

Celts Regain NBA Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boston's Celtics once again rule the National Basketball Association roost after what Bill Russell terms "one of the greatest victories of all the championships we've won."

The 6-foot-9 player-coach referred not only to Thursday night's 124-109 triumph in the Forum, home of the Lakers, but to the playoffs over-all.

For Russell it meant the first title as a coach for after Boston won eight straight under Red Auerbach. The Celtics were beaten out last year by the Philadelphia 76ers.

Big Bill figures this one of the finest seasons because "this Celtic team is not one of the most talented that I have been on."

Literally, however, they blew the Lakers off the court in the first half to build a 20-point advantage at 70-50. John Havlicek, who wound up with 40, and Bailey Howell, with 30, led the assault.

Los Angeles played poorly in the finale which gave Boston the series by a 4-2 count, the sixth time in the modern reign of the Celtics that the Lakers have been their final victims.

Boston built a 35-28 first-quarter advantage before the 17,398 in the new Forum and then surged to a 20-point lead early in the second stanza.

Elgin Baylor missed a free throw and incredibly failed on a stuff shot moments later. Havlicek was fouled in the back court, sank two free throws so instead of Los Angeles collecting three points, the Celtics had two. In the space of scant minutes they scored 15 points to a pair for Los Angeles.

Late in the third period, Los Angeles closed to within 11 points at 82-71 and again at 8473.

"I thought we were going to do it when they got down to those 11, but they shot right up," commented Laker Coach Bill van Breda Kolff.

In the American Basketball Association, the New Orleans Bucs and the Pittsburgh Pipers will engage in their showdown battle for the championship Saturday night in Pittsburgh. The best-of-7 series is tied at three victories for each team.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes

The old paraphrased idea that "fish are where you find them" has been worked to death. Most folks agree with the adage; many promptly ignore it once they get in a boat. When you see a guy flailing the same area for a long period without any encouragement by the fish, you're witnessing neglect angling's basic tenant.

Instead of waiting for fish to come to you, go looking for them. Fish are not evenly distributed throughout a lake or river, they note, and time spent looking pays off better than that just sitting and waiting.

While trolling is usually the best all-around fish-finder, other techniques may be equally good . . . depending on season, waters and species.

If you're a casting man, work the points for bass during the day, hopping to the next one down the shoreline when the first fails to produce after being explored. At night, work these same points again, but also probe back into the coves.

For white bass, alias sandies or barfish, crank up the outboard and literally go looking. Cruise along at a good clip until you find a school creating mayhem with shad on the surface. Cut the motor and cast right into the middle of the activity.

Dry fly fishermen look for surface boils; muskie addicts look for weeds; crappie fans troll deep to discover hidden brush. Even on the vastness of the ocean, coastal charter skippers keep their eyes "peeled" for circling gulls working over a school of bait—game fish are nearby.

Keep moving! Keep your attention glued for the telltale signs that indicate likely fish hangouts. Then fish.

Looking is the key to much fishing.

The Houston Mavericks of the American Baksetball Association purchased 6-foot-10 Tom Hoover from the Denver Rockets Thursday.

Ron Holmberg, Highland Falls, N. Y., moved into the quarter-finales of the Atlanta Invitational Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 7-5 victory Thursday over Bitsy Grant Jr., Atlanta.

Outfielder Frank Robinson has returned to Baltimore after being discharged from a California hospital, but still is confined to his home while recovering from an attack of mumps.

Barring further complications, he is expected to begin working out early next week.

He was hospitalized after playing a game April 20 in Anaheim, Calif.

Dogs Win District

Sikeston moved out to within three games of the state high school basketball title with a 13-5 district title victory over Hayti North at VFW stadium yesterday.

It heads toward Broseley where it faces power packed West Plains in regional competition.

Headed by the mighty bat of Mike Garner and the pitching of Bruce Farris, the Bulldogs make quick work of the Indians after they had taken the lead in the first.

The Bulldogs failed to advance past their sub-district tournament last year, suffering a loss to Oran, which later fell at the hands of the West Plains squad.

Sikeston's last appearance in the state tournament bracket was in 1966 when it battled its way to the semifinals before bowing to perenial champion Retinour.

Coach N. P. McDaniel will be no stranger to West Plains fans or players because of recent employment at the school as coach.

The West Plains team made it to the regionals by defeating Fisk in its district game by an overwhelming score of 21 to 4.

Sikeston looked a little tired yesterday after a long hot double header with the Charleston Blue Jays the day before but managed to do away with the Hayti team with little trouble.

Farris started on the mound for the Dogs and pitched the complete game. Several times it looked as if Farris might need help from Sikeston's top notch bullpen but he managed to get out of jams by striking out two to three batters in a row. He struck out 13 men in the ball game, a high for any Dog pitcher this year.

Hayti scored first by looping three singles over the heads of the Bulldog infielders. Farris bore down to strike out the final two batters of the inning to put out the fire.

Sikeston came back in its half of the inning to drive out four hits and score four runs. Garner, Roger McDaniel, Webb Edwards and Pat Hart hit for the Dogs. Garner started the inning off by blasting his third home run in two days way over the left field fence. It was his fourth homer of the year.

Hayti came fighting back in the second to tie the game 4-4. It did this with the help of three walks and two hits.

Sikeston was not going to let up on the visitors. It came back with three more runs in the bottom of the second. Garner and McDaniels each got their second hits of the day in this inning with Garners' being a double.

Hayti scored its last run in the third when it drilled out two hits and with the aid of several mistakes and sloopy fielding on Sikeston's part pushed acrossits fifth run.

The Bulldogs let Hayti know in the bottom of the third that they wanted this game badly as they banged out three more hits and scored three runs to open the game up 10-5. Sorrells, Felker, McDaniel, Edwards, and the pitcher Farris got hits for the Bulldogs.

Farris bore down for Sikeston and White for Hayti on the mound controlling both teams well until the bottom of the sixth. Then Sikeston could be held no longer.

The Dogs boomed out three more hits and ran across the plate three more runs to run the score to what it would be at the end of the game 13-5. Sorrells, Garner and McDaniels got the hits for Sikeston.

Leading the Dogs at the plate was the team's second leading hitter, Roger McDaniel, with a four for five afternoon. Stan Sorrells and Garner each had three hits apiece. Webb Edwards had two hits. Bruce Farris, Pat Hart and Ed Felker had the other hits for the Dogs.

The victory moved the baseballers record to nine wins and three losses.

Garner and McDaniel with their fine day at the plate continued to lead the Dogs 1-2 in hitting by raising the averages to 5.95 and 5.53.

Curtis Proposes Bill to Assist Jobless Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jobless veterans would be aided by the U. S. Employment service to find positions requiring skills learned in the military under a bill proposed today by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo.

"By matching the military training in civilian-type skills with private industry, the bill will alleviate some of the dislocations due to the current military buildup," Curtis said.

The Missouri congressman said the program would collect data on civilian related military skills and job openings, improve the matching process of a veteran and employer and give financial aid to veterans to help them interview and relocate for a job.

"I estimate that 80 to 90 per cent of the skills taught in the military have their civilian counterpart," Curtis said.

"But the type of assistance needed most by a veteran returning to a high unemployment area is mobility and assistance in obtaining a meaningful job," he said.

County Not Liable for Crime Injuries

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. Norman H. Anderson ruled today a county doesn't have to pay the medical bills of an indigent who is injured during the commission of a crime.

The opinion, requested by Richard J. Blanck, Cooper County prosecutor, said hospital bills cannot be taken as costs in a criminal case.

In another opinion Anderson advised Edison Kaderly, Barton County prosecutor, the monthly water bills of Public Water Supply District No. 2 in Barton County are subject to the state sales tax.

Other opinions held:

A nursing home district in Shannon County is a political subdivision of the state and there is no statutory authority for its dissolution.

County general revenue funds may be used to buy road machinery, repair or maintain roads and bridges not in a special road district.

A third class county prosecutor is required to represent the county board of education.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Hurdles, Yes, but Don't Write Off Humphrey Yet

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Vice President Hubert Humphrey has taken only a few weeks to demonstrate a kind of political durability that even Richard Nixon may envy.

On the eve of President Johnson's March 31 announcement of his intent not to run again, virtually any militant Democratic liberal you would wish to name would have dismissed the vice president as "poor old Hubert," a sad sack who had deserted the cause by supporting the President on the war and was, therefore, politically dead.

Others in and out of the party thought—and some of these still do—that Hubert Humphrey, flaming liberal of old, had just gone out of style somewhere between 1964 and today.

Now that the vice president has confounded nearly everybody by his fresh display of political vitality, the militants in his party are in danger of being reduced to almost comical frustration.

They like to claim full credit for having pushed Johnson out of the race. But it would be a wicked twist for them if the consequence of that withdrawal should be the nomination of Humphrey, the pitiful "mouthpiece" who insisted on making impassioned, 45-minute speeches in defense of the President, instead of the brief, cool, subtly dissenting recitals they wanted to hear.

It would be a little bit hilarious, too, if Old Man Hubert managed this year to put together a huge pack of national convention delegates despite the sober charges of his detractors that he has "no appeal to the young."

There is no proof, of course, that Humphrey's present happy political state will endure through the convention testing time at Chicago in August.

The pitfalls for the vice president are numerous.

This reporter's recent coast-to-coast telephone check of Democratic party sentiment produced a great volume of verbalizing for Humphrey. But it left quite unclear how much of this warm, friendly sound will comfort him with delegates in August.

He gets the benefit today of many politicians' dislike for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Interviews with many Democratic sources disclose that Humphrey the 1968 contender is not yet being dealt with realistically.

Only a few of those now talking him up face the fact that his absence from the coming primaries could put him in a weakened campaign posture by July.

There is no way to gauge, moreover, the extent to which Humphrey is serving as a kind of political way-station, where politicians wait it out to see what events may bring.

A few professionals are even daring to say that some of their number wanted Humphrey in the picture simply to give them bargaining power with Kennedy.

Only in the South, which once was off limits to Humphrey the liberal, is today's talk obviously convertible into delegate strength.

But, given his durability and 1968's tendency to surprise all forecasters, it would be foolish indeed to predict that the wide surface interest in him now will not prove to have real roots in August.

Addition to Be Built On Cape Airport

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Construction is tentatively set to begin in early fall on about an $80,000 addition to the municipal airport terminal but all will depend upon when work on the 6,500-foot runway project ends, the city council and the airport announced.

City Manager Paul F. Frederick said work should end by June 1. Federal auditors come in for their check before a reimbursement check can be given the city. This money will be used on the expansion program and also a new water system at the airport.

The board and council heard another report on the runway lighting project which has been the major holdback for months.

Work was scheduled to have been completed Feb. 1.

J. T. Seesing, airport co-manager, said he had talked with Paul Bruner of Bruner Electric Co., lighting subcontractor, last week. Bruner again promised the projecg would be completed in about two weeks, dependong on weather, Mr. Seesing said. This would place completion next week.

On March 5, Bruner said the airport board construction would be completed in about two weeks, depending upon weather.

Most lights have been installed along the runway, but construction of a power house still remains, board members reported.

Lack of lightning has kept aircraft from using the new runway at night.

For each day the job isn't completed, a $100 penalty is imposed on the general contractor, Gammon, Barter and Zeller Construction Co.

The penalty stands at $10,000 today. Frederick vowed to follow through on the penalty.

The city plans to partially finance the terminal addition with the federal government's reimbursement, its part in the project.

Frederick said this amount is expected to be about $50,000 to $60,000. But he cannot be certain, he said.

About $20,000 will be spent on a new water system and the remaining amount will be used on expansion. The city plans to borrow the remainder.

Expansion will about double the present size of the terminal. There will be increased space for the Federal Aviation Agency, Ozark Airlines, Sun Airlines, the restaurant and Cape Central Airways.

The restaurant will be moved to the southwest corner.

ST. LOUIS (AP) The St. Louis Municipal Opera will be 50 years old this summer and Edward William Werner recently purchased tickets for the 50th straight year at the "Muny."

Werner recalled that he asked his wife, Hattie, to the first production, "Robin Hood." He said it rained, they received a rain check, and he asked her back the next night. A year later they married. Warner, 80, and his wife, 83, have missed few performances at the outdoor theater in Forest Park throughout the years.

President of Missouri Cotton Producers Urges Continuation of 1965 Farm Act

WASHINGTON — This is the text of a statement made by R. K. Swindle, Senath, president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, before the House agriculture committee Thursday.

My name is R. F. Swindle. I am a cotton farmer of Senath, Missouri in South Dunklin County. I live on and operate a farm of 600 acres of which has a 200 acre cotton allotment. I am president of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association which represents ccotton producers and allied industry in Southeast Missouri.

My appearance here is in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, which has headquarters in Portageville, Missoouri. The Missouri Cotton Producers Association was chartered May 11, 1949, shortly after our friend and Congressman Paul C. Jones came to Congress.

Here with me in behalf of the Missouri Cotton Producers Association is Executive Vice President, James N. Conner, Kennett, Missouri.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association represents c cotton producers, ginners, banks, warehouses, cooperatives, cotton merchants, implement and fertilizer dealers and cottonseed crushers.

The Missouri Cotton Producers Association is a non-profit organization, marketing no commodities. Its financial support is derived from producer and membership dues.

It is indeed a great privilege for me to have this opportunity to submit to you our recommendation nd support for the continuation of the Agricultural Act of 1965 which expires at the end of 1969. The cotton producers as well as agri-businesses would be in dire circumstances without it, not only in Missouri, ut throughout the cotton belt due to adverse weather conditions for the last 2 years.

In view of the fact that 1968 is an election year, a re-organization of the Congress will take place in 1960. This will delay acgion on any new legislation, including a farm program to replace the Food and AGricultural Act of 1965. The Department of Agriculture should be in a position to announce provisions of the commodity programs no later than July 196. President Johnson in his message to the Congress on February 27,27, recommended that hearings begin at the earliest possible date. He pointed out that farmers, like all businessmen, should be in a position to make plans well in advance. The only way this can be assured is through the enactment of legislation in 1968.

Looking to the future for cotton and cottonproducers and considering current circumstances and conditions, we feel that a long-term program which offers the best general provisions of the present cottonprogram offers the best and most practical approach toward meeting today's needs and tomorrow's possibilities.

It is imperative, however, that any program or modifications of present legislation would permit more flexibility in export pricing policies and in the operation of the domestic allotment provision. It is also imperative that rules, regulations, and procedures be oriented toward the following objectives:

1. To maintain cotton producer income on an individual basis by recognizing varying conditions between farms and producers and to permit the individual producer to choose acreage and price support levels to suit his personal situation.

2. To enable cotton to meet the price competition of man-made fibers in the domestic market.

3. To enable U.S. cotton to meet the price competition of foreign growths in world markets.

4. To hold government expenditures within reasonable bounds.

5. To utilize normal channels of trade.

We continue to stand opposed to any legislative or administrative action that would place mandatory eligibility limits on any producer's participation in government price support or payment programs. In our opinion, any limitation of eligibility would demoralize markets, neutralize the effectiveness of production controls, and destroy the concept of orderly marketing for all producers, regardless of the size of their individual operations.

We assert that no industrial corporation has had tariff benefits limited because of the size of the business, nor has any tax write-off, or any other subsidy been limited to industry, labor, or business because of size.

This Association fears that if a precedent of limiting price support eligibility is once established, it will be progressively lowered so that farmers producing the bulk of the cotton crop and other farm commodities will be subjected to gross discrimination and eventually be eliminated from price support programs.

We assert that no industrial corporation has had tariff benefits limited because of the size of the business, nor has any tax write-off, or any other subsidy been limited to industry, labor, or business because of size.

This Association fears that if a precedent of limiting price support eligibility for all farm commodities produced in cooperation with production control programs.

We vigorously urge that loan and payment programs continue to provide equal eligibility for all farm commodities produced in cooperation with production control programs.

We strongly recommend no change in the formula used for calculating the national marketing quota and are against any move toward reducing or abandoning the minimum national cotton acreage allotment of 16 million acres, plus the provision for small farms.

We recommend the establishment of a National Securityy Reserve of foods, feeds and fibers to bolster the defensive strength of the United States and the free world, to meet natural disasters, to provide a cushion against unwarranted increases in consumer price levels, and to shift a portion of the cost of maintaining such reserves from agriculture to the general public, where it rightfully belongs.

In the case of cotton, we suggest that it would be prudent to have a National Security Reserve equal to at least one year's off-take. Cotton can be stored for long periods with limited deterioration, and quality rotational operations could be fitted into existing domestic and export sales programs with a minimum of difficulties.

the maintenance and release of the Reserve could be tied to both National Security needs and market demands to permit orderly management. The general operational approach would have to be conducted within limiting guides, which would assure that the market would be fully insulated from the reserve stocks.

As a first step toward the establishment of a National Security Reserve, we recommend than an exhaustive study be made of the potential significance of and the need for such a reserve, which would include dterminations of justifiable levels of stocks, managements guides, cost-benefits ratio, and allocation of costs relative to benefits accruing to the general welfare, defense, and agriculture.

We strongly recommend a better and more equitable method for determing projected yields. Due to adverse weather conditions the last 2 years, Missouri's projected yield for 1968 was lowered by 34 pounds. We recommend a new formula for calculating projected yields when you have 2 years of advser weather affecting cottonproduction, that the lowest year of production be deleted from the formula being used.

We recommend a continuation of an adequate flexibility to allow the adjustment of production to keep in line with total market needs as presently being administered by Secretary of Agriculture for 1968.

We are indebted to the Secretary of Agriculture, Orville Freeman, for initiating a public relations program designed to correct some of the misconceptions that have been lated against farmers and agriculture during the past several years.

In conclusion, the cotton producers in Missouri public relations program designed to correct some of the misconceptions that have been circulated against farmers and agriculture during the past several years.

In conclusion, the cotton producers in Missouri have shown that they do want to grow cotton.

I would like to call your attention to the following: In 1966, the cotton producers of Missouri voted in the research and promotion referendum with the highest percentage in any major cotton producing state with an 88.6 per cent favoring research and promotion and this year, second to California, Missouri farmers has the lowest diversion with a 10 per cent diversion.

Gentlemen, I would like to thank you for granting me the opportunity to present the recommendations made by the Missouri Cotton Producers Association in the interest of the Missouri farmers for the continuation f the AGricultural Act of 1965.

ODE TO FREEDOM

Alas dear Freedom,
It hurts us so
To have to stay and watch you go

It seems odd and somehow forlorn
and not even mourn.

You've been so subtly taken away,
That we never knew

Our forefathers fought and suffered pain.
One thought in mind-
You to gain.

Legislation is passed
to you Dear Freedom.
You're left behind.

Your're benefits
we gladly reap.
While not bothering
you're rules to keep.

Perhaps it's best that you go away.
Man might break your heart were you to stay.

"Liberty and justice for all"
men intone;
Then say, "It's not my fight,
Leave me alone."

They turn their heads and have no thought,
"That others are fighting is not my fault."

"Why should I bother to worry myself.
I'm only one person,
how can I help."

I know, Dear Freedom that without hesitation what your answer would be if they asked you that question.

"Be an American,
stand tall.
Lift Freedom's banner, don't let it fall.
Stand up America!
Your answer should be
"I'll do my part to make all men Free"

Candidate Blasts Cape Dismissals

KANSAS CITY AP — The dismissal of eight instructors at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau was described in an address here Tuesday night as an apparent threat to academic freedom in Missouri.

Although the teachers demanded to know the reasons for their dismissals authorities at the Cape Girardeau college refused them, state Sen. John Downs, D-St. Joseph, said.

Downs, speaking at Rockhurst College, said "It is a sad situation when an employe who deals in products can guarantee himself a continuous record of employment, and those who deal in the ideas and in the training of young minds may be dismissed with an inferential cloud hanging over their heads."

The senator, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said there is a remedy of 50 years standing in state laws that should be applied in this case.

Rep. Earl S. Mackey, D-Cape Girardeau, has petitioned Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to recommend a legislative review of the dismissals.

RAY CROMLEY

Viet Foes 'Bleeding' U.S. With Gold Drain Tactics

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

BANGKOK (NEA)

Some interesting sidelights on the gold crisis come to view in this ancient capital of Thailand.

For some time the Communist Chinese have been buying gold on the world markets and shipping it in to mainland China by ship and plane. No one knows how great these imports are. But this correspondent has talked with men who have seen some of these shipments first hand. This has been going on at a time when the Chinese were hard-pressed for foreign exchange to buy food and were therefore seeking credits.

The French, closely co-operating with the Communists in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, have been converting into gold a good portion of the funds they're making in legal and illegal trading with and for the Communists.

A small but significant part of the dollar drain resulting from the war in Vietnam is due to these French profits. Conservative estimates from banking and trading sources put the French dollar "take" from Southeast Asia at upwards of $200 million a year.

One major objective of the current North Vietnamese drive in Laos is to achieve economic disruption, which might have to be met with increased dollar aid, adding a new pressure on U.S. currency.

Ho Chi Minh and his defense minister, Gen. Nguyen Giap, have been saying for some time that one of their major objectives in Vietnam is to force a strong increase in U.S. troops, equipment and supplies, upping the already heavy dollar drain of this war.

The Russians and the French may be attempting to convince the Arab countries with large sums on deposit in London that it would be wise to transfer all or part of these balances. Such transfers could put dramatic new pressure on both the pound and the dollar.

These and other economic moves by Communist countries and their allies should be studied in the context of past statements by Ho and Giap.

A major point in Communist subversive insurgency doctrine is economic subversion of the enemy. In Red doctrine, economic warfare is considered far more important than guerrilla or conventional military actions.

Ho and Giap have asserted time and again that a strong enemy such as the United States can be defeated by dissipating its strength. By stimulating already-existing economic pressures on a wide number of fronts, the Ho-Giap doctrine holds, the United States can be so hurt domestically that it will be tempted to cut its losses by hedging on its foreign commitments in Vietnam, Laos, Thailand, Latin America, the Middle East and Africa.

For the short term, for the years just ahead, the United States will have to take much more stringent economic measures than those announced thus far. It will not be enough to curb foreign investment and travel, raise taxes a little and up the Federal Reserve's discount rate.

Popular Polka

The polka, of Bohemian origin, did not become an extraordinary dance craze until it was introduced in Paris ballrooms about 1843 and then swept rapidly across Europe and the United States, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

ARMED FORCES

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS TO BE 26 YEARS OLD IN MAY AS 10,000 MEMBERS

SERVE COUNTRY

December 7, 1941, millions of Americans were stunned as radios broadcast the news that pearl Harbor had been attacked by the Japanese. The United States suddenly found itself embroiled in a second World War. As hundreds of thousands of men were sent overseas to tackle the responsibilities of combat, the stage was set for establishment of a new corps of elite non-combatants.

Actual operations for the new WAAC began modestly when the first classes, composed of some 770 women, tarted training. The "experiment" of employing women to work with the ARmy became an immediate success. By its first anniversary the WAAC boasted some 60,000 members, filling more than 150 different jobs at all major Army commands in the United States, North Africa and England.

In September 1943 Congress passed legislation which dropped the work "Auxiliary." The Women's Army Corps now functioned as a vital part of the Army.

WAC members arrived first in England, where they served with valor. Many were awarded Purple Hearts for injuries received in German bombings. On the continent they marched close behind the fighting forces, working with switch-boards and office supplies abandoned by the Germans. Many moved from NOrth Africa into Italy, following the ARmy up the peninsula. In the Southwest Pacific they served in New Guinea, Australia and the Philippines. By the end of World War II the corps had reached its peak strength of 100,000 end its members were assigned to almost every non-combatant branch of the Army in every active overaseas theater as well as at home. Of their service it has been said, "In a world where new frontiers were hard to find, WAC members found one; in an age where pioneers and their problems were a memory, they had been pioneers."

June 12, 1948 brought passage of egislation permanently integrating women into the regular Army. Since then, wherever our country's men have gone to defend freedom -- as in Korea and Vietnam -- the members of the WAC have gone. Today, as the Women's Army Corps celebrates its 26th anniversary, its member are serving shoulder to shoulder with our country's male soldiers in the continental United States and in Hawaii, Alaska, Germany, Luxemburg, Okinawa, Japan, Korea, Vietnam, Puerto Rico and Panama.

Army servicewomen today have the same privileges, the same opportunities for promotion, the same pay scale and the same benefits as their male counterparts. Members of the Women's Army Corps have earned these privileges and benefits by their labor, their devotion and their outstanding achievements in the service of the United States.

Those wishing further information on the history of the Women's Army Corps as well as requirements for membership. opportunities, pay, and the like should contact SFC Stage and SSC Mooney, U. S. Army recruiter, whose officers are located at 704 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Mo. WAC selection officers and counselors will be glad to arrange appointments with interested young women and their families.

Woman Objects to Losing Job Due to Federal Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 22year-old woman charged Thursday that her security clearance was revoked and that she was forced to resign from an Army job on the basis of reports that she was immoral—reports which, she said, she was not permitted to see.

Carolyn Lea Tatnall, a photographic information technician with the Army Map Service, said she was told by a government security officer the reports had come from neighbors in her apartment building. She said in an interview that she could find no one in the building who would admit to having talked to government investigators.

An Army spokesman denied that Miss Tatnall was forced to resign, but confirmed revocation of her security-clearance.

"I don't understand it," she said. "I'm not promiscuous."

On Feb. 19, Miss Tatnall said, she underwent a 2 1/2-hour interrogation session at the Pentagon. She said she was asked, among other things: Are you a homosexual? Have you ever had an abortion? Do you take birth control pills? She said she was told she would have to answer the same questions the following week in a lie detector test.

Miss Tatnall was never called back for the test, she said, but on April 2 a security officer and a representative from the personnel section of the Army Map Service told her that her security clearance had been revoked.

Miss Tatnall quoted the security officer as saying, "Based on the security reports that you are immoral and not of character to handle classified material, we are not only refusing you a top secret clearance, but we are also revoking any previous clearances that you have had. From now on you are not authorized to work with classified materiel of any sort."

She said he told her that "in mid-March the investigators went to your apartment and received a derogatory report on you ... They came up with seven derogatory reports from that one building to confirm it. Do you give wild parties in your apartment? Apparently you shout and have violent fights and drinking sessions. Does someone else have a key to that apartment?"

Miss Tatnall said she replied that she didn't know of seven people who would say such things, that she has had only one party—a birthday party—in the six months she lived in the apartment and that she invited the neighbors so they wouldn't be disturbed by the noise and that her boyfriend had a key so he could feed her fish and her cat when she went home to Philadelphia on weekends.

She was told the following day by her superior, she said, that unless she resigned she would be fired. Miss Tatnall said she resigned and left work April 19.

Harold P. Dunning, personnel chief at the Army Map Service, said there had been a "routine background investigation" of Miss Tatnall but claimed no knowledge of any Pentagon interview.

There was no comment from the Pentagon.

Cunning said that Miss Tatnall was told that as a result of the background investigation her security clearance was being revoked "but I'm sure nobody told her to resign or be fired. I wouldn't permit anyone on my staff to talk to an employe like that."

Ralph Horton Is Outstanding Musician

NEW MADRID — Ralph Horton, 15, was named outstanding musician of the high school band at the annual spring concert Monday.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Baz Horton, he is a sophomore and has played the trombone since the fifth grade.

Robert Denze, band director, announced he would receive the John Phillip Sousa award, a gold plaque with his name engraved on it.

In announcing the award, Donze said Horton's attitude and cooperation during the year was considered, in addition to his musical ability.

Horton was selected as a member of the all-district band at Cape Girardeau this spring, competing with members from 43 bands.

Named as medallist winners in the band were Paula Tollison, piccolo; Rosa Willis, flute; Susan Riley, alto saxophone; Dorothy Willis, cornet, and Horton, trombone.

Vandalism to Highway Signs And Markers Costs Quarter Million Dollars Annually

It was 8:45 p.m., Saturday, April 13.

A young Jackson county resident and his wife were crusing along Supplementary Route FF (Truman Road) east of Independence. Skies were cloudy but the road was dry.

Suddenly, Katherine Vaughn, the driver's wife, screamed. Her cry was drowned out by squealing tires as Charles Vaughn pressed hard on the brake pedel of his '64 Chevrolet hardtop. The car skidded across Missouri Route 7, ramming the bank on the opposite side.

Interviewed later at Independence Sanitarium, where he and his wife were taken by ambulance, Vaughn said, "I was going down Truman Road around 55 miles per hour. I didn't see any sign indicating an intersection."

An investigation determined that vandals had removed the stop sign earlier in the evening.

An investigation determined that vandals had removed the stop sign earlier in the evening.

Fortunately, the Vaughns' were not seriously injured, but this seemingly harmless "orank" could have cost them their lives.

Sign vandalism last year cost Missouri highweay users about a quarter of a million dollars. "This is money that could have been spent to build better highways," pointed out Leland Fletcher, Highway Department Maintenance and Traffic Engineer.

Department traffic engineers say that about 40 percent of all sign replacements in the state are due to vandalism. It takes nearly half of the Department's annual sign budget to repair or replace highway signs and markers that have been damaged, destroyed, altered or stolen.

Joe Mickes, assistant engineer of Maintenance and Traffic, said recently, "You wouldn't believe what these vandals do to some signs. They will go to any length and great pains to damage, demolish, alter or remove a highway sign or marker."

Lately there has been a rash of shooting of highway signs. "Last week," MMickes said," a District 5 maintenance crew was installing new route markers on Route E in Cole county. Almost as fast as the crew moved on to the next section vandals poured shot after shot into the new signs."

One Route E marker had 16 bullet holes in it. About 20 signs were damaged. At a cost of about $20 per sign, this little "target practice," cost highway users almost $400.

"Another 'real fun' prank," Mickes went on," is changing speed limit signs, say a 30-mile-per-mile sign to 80 miles per hour. I wonder, Mikes said, "how funny it would be to see an out-state motorist, unfamiliar with the road, take that 30-miles-an-hour curve at 80?"

Then, too, there is the danger of an unsuspecting traveler cruising along, perhaps at the posted 60 miles-an-hour speed limit, when his headlights pick up a sign warning him of a sharp curve to the left up ahead. Then suddenly the road swings right.

"We have no way of knowing," Mickes said, "how many accidents are cuased because of vandalized signs. There is just no way of keeping records. But I.d bet a month's pay" Mickes said, "that many 'lost control' accidents can be blamed on sign vandals."

Recently a Highway Patrol trooper checked a 20-mile stretch of Interstate Route 44 and found 19 vandalized signs in a row. These were large, 11½ feet by 13½ feet, reflectorized signs. They cannot be repaired and must be replaced at a cost of about $7.50 per square foot. That's more than $1,000 each.

Some vandals are caught and prosecuted. Most are not. But State Highway Commission attorneys and local law officials have declared war on the sign vandals and are keeping an even more watchful eye out for them. And they urge citizens to report cases of such vandalism.

Vandalism to highway signs and markers under Missouri statutes is a misdemeanor, punisable by a fine not to exceed $500 or one year in jail or both.

"The money these sign vandals cost is a ridiculous and unnecessary waste of the taxpayer's money," said Fletcher.

"But even more important than the money," he pointed out, "is the chance sign vandals take with the lives of others. HIghway signs are put up to inform motorists of conditions ahead, perhaps a dangerous one," he said. "If the information on the sign has been altered, destroyed, or removed, there is no warning."

Missouri Heritage

By LEW LARKIN in the Kansas City Times

A cannon boomed. People lining the bank waved gaily and cheers echoed over the water. The men in the three boats on the Mississippi waved back, and let out a yip or two.

This happening 163 years ago tomorrow near St. Louis, marked the beginning of a perilous expedition into the unknown of Northwest United States.

Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, like Columbus, weren't exactly certain where they might end up and, like Columbus, they had faith, courage and vision. Before their return 28 months later the nation was grieving their loss.

Thomas Jefferson had selected Lewis, his private secretary, to lead the expedition and told him to choose a second in command. Lewis chose William Clark, younger brother of George Rogers Clark of Revolutionary war fame, and insisted that Clark have equal authority in the enterprise.

About the middle of the summer in 1803, Lewis left Washington for Pittsburgh, and on the last day of August began the descent of the Ohio river. He enlisted several volunteers at military stations along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and had about 30 men when he arrived at the Dubois, or Wood, river, which empties into the Mississippi from the east near St. Louis.

Clark joined them and they erected cabins for a winter stay at Camp Dubois, January 15, 1804, Clark wrote to a friend, "My situation is as comfortable as could be expected in the woods and on the frontier. The country back of me is beautiful beyond description; a rich bottom well timbered from one to three miles wide, from the river to the prairie, which runs nearly parallel to the river from about three miles above me to Kaskaskia, Ill. and is from three to seven miles wide."

At Camp Dubois 28 rugged frontiersmen, many from Missouri were enlisted. Lewis and Clark named four sergeants; the rest of the 45-man expedition were privates. The men underwent rigorous training in military discipline. Their marksmanship was sharpened, though few needed it. They were taught survival in the wilderness if they became lost and as much Indian lore, customs and traditions as they could absorb. Nobody really knew what kind of Indians they would encounter.

Their stores were bought in St. Louis, clothing, guns, ammunition, food, knives, axes and other articles. When the leaders found themselves a little short of medicine, Dr. Antoine Saugrain, the only resident physician, prepared numerous potions, many from the herbs he grew in his garden. He also fashioned rather crude thermometers and barometers, using mercury from old mirrors.

It was a clear day when the expedition headed by the 29-year-old Lewis and 33-year- old Clark shoved off. The 55-foot keelboat, sail flopping, and the two smaller pirogues, loaded with six tons of supplies and ammunition, rippled the quiet waters as they pulled away.

The youngest of the expedition was George Shannon, 16 years old. John Colter later would win fame as a trail blazer and scout. Francis Labiche and George Drulyard went along as interpreters.

There were Joseph Field and Reuben Field, brothers from Kentucky, Who "acquitted themselves with much honor," Lewis reported? John Shields, who had unusual "skill and ingenuity in repairing guns," Lewis noted, and many others.

May 14 slips by now in Missouri unnoticed, but it marked a most auspicious occasion. Many members of the part. not Missourians, liked Missouri so well that they stayed here after returning. Shannon, who lost a leg in 1806 on another expedition, is buried near Palmyra, Mo. William Clark's grave is in Bellefontaine cemetery in St. Louis. John Colter is buried on a high hill in Franklin County overlooking the Missouri river he loved so well. John Ordway and York are buried in Missouri, and 10 others are believed to have been buried in this state.

All members returned safely except Charles Floyd, 22-year-old Kentuckian, who died of a disease along the way. The Sergeant Floyd, survey boat on the Missouri river operating out of Kansas City, was named in his honor.

Man In The Streets Speaks

On April 20, Avon Books will publish a $1.25 paperback edition of "Division Street: America," the book that chronicles life today in the American city. In "Division Street: America," Studs Terkel, a well - known Chicago radio personality reports to us from an American city by conducting interviews with people who live there – including public- housing dewllers, policemen, homeowners, advertising executives, homemakers, the unskilled, the retired, the young and the socially prominent.

For his interviews, Mr. Terkel chose the city that he knows best – Chicago. But, as he points out: "Although there is a Division Street in Chicago, the title of this book is metaphorical. My Division Street is the division within each man, the division that divides us one from another in our society – something the city has done so horrendously." To prove this, Mr. Terkel let the people speak for themselves.

The people of Division Street recorded 700 yours of tape with Studs Terkel, and the interviewer noticed that they needed little prompting on issues that concerned them. They told him that urban renewal is not a panacea, but "poor removal." Their feelings ran strongest on the subject of race relations. One of the most dramatic contrasts in the book is between the Negro father who wants to move out of the slums so that his children can grow up on a street with a tree on it, and the white homeowner who lives in constant fear that he will have to share that tree. In discussions of Vietnam, religion, the Bomb, the pill, police brutality and job opportunity, the comments reveal fear, resignation, but also some courage and guarded optimism.

Studs Terkel says that since the handcover publication of "Division Street: America" by Pantheon Books, there has been one general reader reaction to the book: "Most readers say they are enlightened by it; many say it makes them feel hopeful. They realize that beneath all the issues and the politics everybody just wants to keep face and be recognized as a person."

Perhaps the strongest testimony to the universality and the timeliness of "Division Street: America" is the excellent reception that the book has received throughout the country and even outside of America. The New York Times reviewer called it "Remarkable – the impact is shattering." The London Times reviewer said, "This book is a treasure house and if not all its lessons are for our comfort, that is good for us."

Hay fever, rose fever, grass fever, or what-have-you is most certainly something to sneeze at.

Historic Textbooks Collected at M.U.

Along with the disappearance of Missouri's little red school-houses has continued the disappearance of "readers" and other early-day textbooks.

The library staff of the University of Missouri aware of the value of these texts for reference and research, has established an historic textbook collection. This is now on permanent display.

Particular efforts are being made to secure copies of elementary and secondary school textbooks published before 1915.

Records indicate that the first Colonial schoolteachers had to use whatever books were at hand. Usually these were Bibles, although occasionally there were copies of books by Addison, Goldsmith, or others. Also used were homemade wooden boards on which the alphabet and numbers were carved.

To provide their own texts, early American teachers became the country's first authors of schoolbooks. Noah Webster was among the first outstanding textbook-writing teachers.

Many educators now consider it of increasing importance to collect and preserve textbooks as evidence of past and current educational achievement. However, many institutional libraries continue to discard old editions of textbooks when new editions are published.

There are only two known copies of the earliest New England Primer, which developed from the Hornbrook and Battledore, the earliest American schoolbooks. The 1727 Boston edition is now in the New York Public Library, and the 1735 copy is in the Henry F. Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif. It is believed that some two or three million copies of other editions of the Primer were printed, although not more than 3,000 are known to exist today.

The list of textbooks for the UMC Library collection was compiled from a rare book bibliography and a list from the Missouri Department of Education. This list of approved Common School textbooks was in the Report of the Superintendent of Commons Schools (1841-1913). Some of the authors familiar to educators are McGuffey, Ray, Murray, Webster, Pinneo, Tracy, Monteith, and McNally.

Col. and Mrs. Lewis H. Kensinger of Palo Alto, Calif., UMC alumni, are representative of many friends of the University who have developed the hobby of hunting and purchasing historic textbooks for the collection.

For persons interested in contributing to the collection, the Library has available a list of approved books which are desired.

Command Sergeant Major Chevron

Insignia Adopted for Top NCOs

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Command sergeants major now will wear distinctive chevrons identifying them as the senior noncommissioned officers in the U.S. Army.

The new insignia has been created from the chevron currently worn by all sergeants major by adding one marking — a gold laurel wreath surrounding the star.

Army Chief of Staff General Harold K. Johnson introduced the new insignia by presenting the first one to Sergeant Major of the Army William O. Wooldridge in a ceremony at the Pentagon March 22.

A command sergeant major is the principal enlisted assistant and chief enlisted advisor to commanders at levels from battalion through Headquarters, Department of the Army. Other sergeants major, who will be called staff sergeants major, will continue to wear the regular insignia.

The command sergeant major program was initiated last summer to centralize the selection, assignment and career management of these top NCOs at Department of the Army level.

Army officials estimate that there are some 1,500 command sergeant major positions in the Army. Men in these slots are being brought under the new program in three stages.

Already 192 men in these positions at combat brigade level and higher have been selected for the program. By July 30, 1968, it is expected that sergeants major in the top positions in all commands at battalion level and above will be in the program.

To qualify for the program, a sergeant major must be nominated by his commander to fill a command sergeant major position. All sergeants major are eligible, regardless of military occupational specialty (MOS).

A DA selection board reviews the records of men nominated, and those accepted are awarded a distinctive command sergeant major MOS, OOZ. Command sergeants major carry their dates of rank as E-9s.

'A Lawful Society'

Law Day, U.S.A., is among the newest of America's annual days of celebration. It was marked first on May 1, 1958, yet in only 10 years it has become a significant national event, reaffirming each year the country's dedication to the rule of law and the heritage of freedom.

Throughout the nation, Law Day, 1968, will be celebrated with local ceremonies and observances. In the U.S. Army, activities within each major command will mark the day. For Law Day has a special significance to men in uniform. As both citizens and protectors of the United States, military personnel have a dual responsibility under the law.

In his proclamation setting aside May 1 as Law Day, 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson emphasized the citizen's role. He urged all Americans to join in the observance of Law Day by making a personal commitment to:

- Obey the law.
- Respect the rights of others.
- Aid law-enforcement officers.
- Uphold the judgments of the courts.

This personal commitment is in keeping with the theme of this year's celebration, "Only a lawful society can build a better society." The President explained it this way:

"The law we recognize and respect . . . is a process of continuous growth that allows the creation of new rights for all men through a deliberative, democratic process. It is a system that permits existing rights to be protected, injustices to be remedied and disputes to be resolved, without recourse to self-defeating violence."

Here the serviceman's other role enters. For he is dedicated to the preservation of a society in which the rule of law can thrive. (ANF)

Hayti Congregation to Send Minister Abroad

HAYTI — The congregation of the First Baptist Church is sending its pastor, the Rev. A. W. Clodfelter, on a three-week tour of the Near East which will begin June 9.

B. A. Cross, Hayti merchant and chairman of the committee planning the trip for the pastor, reports, "Events in the past year have drawn the attention of every nation. Since these events have deep Biblical significance, First Baptist Church is sending its pastor on this study tour which will include nine countries. The members of this church feel that this study is comparable to at least a full year in a Bible school and we consider this an investment in the present and future service of our pastor."

A native of Southeast Missouri, the Rev. Mr. Clodfelter was graduated from Advance high school; earned a bachelor of arts degree from Howard Payne College, Brownsville, Tex.; received his bachelor of divinity from Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City and his Masters in Theology at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Most of his pastoral service has been in the Bootheel where he has served two years as assistant pastor of First Baptist church, Cape Girardeau; two years at First Baptist church, Chaffee; and is now in his ninth year as pastor of Hayti's First Baptist church.

He is married to the former Miss Vira Louise Sanders of Lytle, Tex., who is a graduate of Howard Payne College and also holds a master of religious education degree from the Louisville Seminary. They have four children.

Volunteers to Study On Organization Need

Volunteers from Scott, Mississippi and Stoddard counties were picked to gather information on the need and feasibility of establishing a tri-county mental health association in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Dr. Emmett Hoctor, former superintendent of state hospital number four at Farmington, who is in charge of outpatient care at the hospital was the principal speaker.

The organization, if effected, will aid in establishing community acceptance for emotionally disturbed persons. Emotionally disturbed persons are not mentally retarded, but have thought disorders to the degree that it hinders their ability to hold a job or be reasonably happy.

The volunteers are charged with gathering statistics on the need for psychiatric care in the three counties, the resources available now, and how problems involving emotionally disturbed persons are handled now.

A mental health association is now serving Dunklin, New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

The volunteers are expected to report their finding in another called meeting in a month, or more. If the need for such an organization is apparent from their findings, an organization will be established and board members will be elected in following meetings.

Also mentioned as a possible need in the area is an outpatient psychiatric clinic, which might function one day a week. Such an arrangement is now serving Cape Girardeau and other area towns, but not Sikeston or Charleston.

Dr. Hoctor said the trend in treating emotionally disturbed persons today is toward community psychiatry. Instead of committing these persons to institutions, he suggested they be treated in their own community and that leading members of the community be educated to their needs.

About 40 persons attended. Volunteers to aid in the survey include, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gemeinhardt, Sikeston, and Agnes Cunningham, Mississippi county.

Former Eichmann Associate Sentenced

BAMBERG, Germany (AP) Franz Rademacher, a former associate of Adolf Eichmann, was sentenced today to five years in prison for aiding in the murder of 3,300 Jews in World War II.

But Rademacher was set free after a Bamberg criminal court credited the 62-year-old former Third Reich legation councillor with four years and two months he already had served in pre-trial custody and in postwar internment by the Americans. The remaining 10 months of the sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for four years.

Both the defense, which had asked for acquittal, and the prosecution, which had demanded a 15-year prison term, announced they would appeal.

The former diplomat represented the Foreign Ministry at conferences at which the Jews' fate was decided, according to the evidence at the trial.

Mildewed Tile Floor Is Worrisome for Her

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Years ago we added a den to our very nice house and just recently extended this room to make it longer. I had white-and-gold cushion tile put down by the yard. In a matter of a month the floor started to mildew and now it is nearly all black. I am heartsick and the floor man said there was nothing I could put down as the slab is sweating from the bottom up. Surely someone among your many readers will have an answer for me.—EDNA

DEAR POLLY—We have glass doors over our fireplace opening and I always dreaded cleaning them. One day I decided to try oven cleaner on them. The one I used is a foam cleaner that is sprayed on and left for a few minutes. Wipe with paper towels, and what an easy job it is. Before I used this, if I let the doors go for two or three weeks, I often had to use a razor blade to remove the baked-on soot.—MRS. N. T.

DEAR GIRLS—Mrs. C. L. M. wrote concerning Marion's Pointer about curing her child of biting anything and everything by having her bite into a cake of soap. She said that years ago her father was warden in a penitentiary and rebelling prisoners would make themselves sick by chewing soap and then taking water so as to appear to be frothing at the mouth. Once they had serious consequences following such an episode.

Washing a child's mouth out with soap has been a punishmen for many of us, when children, for telling a lie but a manufacturer of soaps says that because of the many types of soap on the market, it could be harmful if they were EATEN and a child might vomit from eating PURE soap. Perhaps you mothers might substitute the following cure that came from a reader who sent no address.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Marion another way to cure her child of biting. Whenever the child starts to bite someone or something, try biting them back. I know this works—when I was little I bit another girl because she carrying me and I wanted to walk. She told my father and he bit me back. After that I never bit another person.—DEBBIE

To Preserve Family Next Move Up to Mother-in-Law

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my husband's father passed away. My mother-in-law, who had always treated him like dirt, suddenly became the most grief-stricken woman of the 20th Century. She cried, screamed, fainted, fasted, threw herself on everybody --- especially her eldest son, my husband.

The biggest mistake of his life was saying to her at the funeral, "Don't worry, Mother, you will never be alone. You can count on us." She took him up on it right there and then and moved into our home the following week.

She couldn't bear to part with her dining room set so mine had to go. Her new freezer and refriegerator, which we could have used, went to her daughter. She had such strange sentimental attachments to her pictures, vases, throw rugs, and other assorted pieces of trash that she had to bring them along. Our once lovely home now looks like a second-hand junk shop.

I could stand it if all she ruined was the looks of our home, but she is ruininy my health and my marriage and our relationship with our children. Although this woman has a lovely large room she is never in it. She sits in on every conversation and voices her opinion on matters which do not concern her.

When I call my husband, SHE answers. When I call my children, SHE answers. When I speak to her she doesn't hear me. Please tell me what to do. My mother-in-law is driving me nuts. --- SINKING FAST

Dear Sinking: It doesn't sound like a drive to me, lady. It sounds like a putt. And small wonder. Two years is a long time to be imprisoned in your own home.

There is only one solution to your problem -- find your mother-in-law another place to live. And don't say you can't afford it. It's cheaper than sending you to a mental hospital -- or maintaining separate roofs for you and your husband after you've filed for a divorce.

Dear Ann Landers: My 20-year-old daughter is expecting her husband back from Vietnam in May. She has not seen him in over a year. Unfortunately, she is pregnant and the baby is due just about the time her husband is scheduled to come home. He knows nothing of his wife's condition.

For financial reasons Maryanna is getting her maternity care at a military base. I understand from what I have read in the papers that the Red Cross notifies the men overseas when they become fathers. I have begged my daughter to write her husband and tell him of her condition but she refuses to do so. I just hate to have the Red Cross representative tell my son-in-law he is a father when he knows the child can't possibly be his.

Is there any way we can stop the Red Cross from relaying the message? Thank you for your assistance. --- TROUBLE IN THE FAMILY

Dear Family: Your daughter ought to discuss this problem with the chaplain of the hospital where she will have the baby. She sould explain the circumstances and ask him to intercede on behalf of the young man. It would be a shattering blow if he received the news in that manner.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Horns Not Only Mark of Buck Deer

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Mark went deer hunting and shot the biggest deer he had ever seen. His joy was short lived, however, when he was collared by a game warden for breaking the law by shooting a fawn.

"You're mad," Mark screamed with disbelief. "That's no fawn. That's the biggest buck you ever laid your eyes on."

"Size has nothing to do with it," was the game warden's quiet and businesslike answer. "While it may be a buck in all other regards, it has no horns. That makes it a fawn since, under the law, a fawn is specifically defined as a deer with horns less than three inches long. Therefore, you legally shot a fawn unlawfully."

Haufed into court, Mark and the deceased animal were presented to the Judge.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mark to the letter of the law and convict Mark of shooting a fawn?

This is how the Judge ruled: NO! The Judge held that the game warden was making a tiny tempest in a tinier teapot; that besides embarrassing Mark, the game warden had slandered the buck which was equipped with all the accountrements of virile masculinity and, in strictly female company, would have had to bow to no critic.

Despite the absence of horns, concluded the judge, the fallen deer was biologically a full grown buck and was neither a baby nor a sissy. (Based upon a 1956 U. S. District Court Decision)

The Prayer from The Upper Room

As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God. (John 1:12)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, help us to have faith that we may be blessed with Thy power to become Thy children. So fill us with Thy spirit that we may be Thine ambassadors in this world. Amen.

Award-Winning AP Columnist Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) - James Marlow, who for 25 years wrote the award-winning column "The World Today" for The Associated Press, died Thursday. He was 64 and had been in poor health for some time.

Marlow, a newspaperman for 41 years, wrote his column from Washington. It was an unusual one.

The column did not predict. It did not pretend to pass on "inside" information. It was neither pretentious nor pontifical.

Instead, the writer tried to explain events, to put them in context in an interesting and factual way. This required exhaustive research; Marlow read more than 45 books for a series analyzing Winston Churchill's impact on history.

He pioneered in interpretive writing.

Marlow was born in the Hell's Kitchen section of New York on Aug. 2, 1903, of Irish workingclass parents. He had barely a brush with college, attending Fordham in the Bronx for less than a year. He was a relentless reader, beginning as a boy when tuberculosis kept him out of school two years.

He went to work for the AP in New Orleans in 1937 after 10 years on newspapers there. He began his career as a police reporter and his favorite stories were always of those days.

Marlow's Washington column ran five days a week, a pace few columnists attempt. Because he tried to be current he wrote at the last moment, but invariably he kept his deadline.

This was late at night.

He claimed the pressure did not bother him. "You get used to it," he said.

Earlier in the day, Marlow paced the floor of the AP office, tested his ideas on editors and copy boys, read, researched and paced some more. He was an easy conversational mark for anyone, especially the young.

Lunch was always chopped beefsteak, apple pie and coffee and always in the same cafeteria. It is not the kind of place that attracts politicians, lobbyists, public relations men or executives.

He read and fished for relaxation. He worked hard for the American Newspaper Guild, was a leader in the successful drive to unionize AP editorial employes in the late 1940s.

Marlow's highly stylized writing emphasized an eye-catching opening paragraph. When India invaded tiny Portuguese Goa in 1961 Marlow began his column this way:

India's Prime Minister Nehru, who made himself the world's No. 1 holier-than-thou moralizer and man of peace, can no longer act as the conscience of mankind.

Marlow worked for the editorial freedom to write this way.

President Johnson said of the death:

"Mrs. Johnson and I were saddened to learn of the tragic death of James Marlow. He was a friend of more than 30 years. He earned my respect and that of his profession as a good, honest reporter. Journalism has lost a man who distinguished his profession. We will all miss him."

Wes Gallagher, AP general manager, said:

"The loss of Jim Marlow is a severe one, not only to The Associated Press, but to the profession of journalism as a whole. He was a superb craftsman with one of the most difficult jobs in Washington journalism, which he performed as no one else could."

Marlow is survived by his widow, the former Hannah Hartling; a daughter, Mrs. William Cherwek; and a grandson, Dean Cherwek, 5. Cremation and private services are planned.

New Credit Service Outlined

A new service to both retailers and customers in the form of a more universal Bankmark credit card was explained in the Community Room of the Security National Bank.

The bank will be affiliated with Boatman's Bank in St. Louis in the Bankmark system.

The card allows the holder to charge purchases costing $35 or less. The merchant sends the ticket of the sale with the credit card number on it to the bank and is credited the following day for the sale either to his account, or he is paid by check. Collection of bad debts is the responsibility of the bank.

Rex Sedwick, representing Boatman's Bank, explained to an audience of 40 that by mid-summer this year they expect one million Bankmark cards to be in the hands of customers in Missouri and Illinois. The cards will be issued between mid-July and early August.

The bank here will select persons to receive the cards based on credit references. The card is free to the customer and the service costs him nothing if he pays within 25 days of his purchases. If not he pays 1½ per cent monthly on the unpaid balance at a minimum of $10 per month on his bill.

Sedwick said the system offers at least six advantages to retailers: immediate cash credit, credit losses diminish, better utilization of capital, increased competition, increased customer base and simplification of accounting.

In addition $1 million will be spent to promote the system, of which at least $25,000 will be spent in the Cape Girardeau and Sikeston areas, Sedwick said.

The system also offers advantages to consumers: One card does the job of many; there are no annual dues or fees; it offers possibilities to save money by taking advantage of special sales; it has provisions for revolving credit; it eases bill paying problems and has instant cash loan provision.

Further advantages of the system to the retailer include elimination of the accounts receivable, creation of impulse sales, increased working capital, and simplification of the Jackson Funeral Home.

Bees Swarm, Get Sprayed

Hundreds of bees swarmed on the inside visor and outside window of a car owned by Mrs. Jean Delaney Thursday afternoon in Sikeston.

The car was parked on New Madrid Street near Front near Falkoff's Men and Boys Wear.

Virgil Burks, lineman for the Board of Municipal Utilities, and a part-time beekeper, attempted to move the bees, but reportedly was stung. He rolled up the windows in the car and sprayed them with an insecticide.

Hospital Bonds Favored in Pemiscot County

HAYTI — "Wonderful, wonderful!" said Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Tipton when he was asked what comments he had on the bond issue that was passed in a special election Tuesday. The bond issue was for $250,000.

Pemiscot County Clerk Harold Jones reported early Wednesday morning that out of 30 polling places, 28 had reported. Out of those 28 precincts 862 were for the proposed issue while 176 voters were against. Gobler and Tyler were those left unaccounted for.

It was announced earlier that the proposed bond issue would mean a second floor to the first floor already under construction. By adding a second floor at this time, while the first floor was under construction, 60 to 70 per cent of the cost would be saved. "The new floor will mean 30 more beds," says Tipton, "and they are really needed."

It was also pointed out earlier that a .05 cents hospital tax increase per one hundred dollar assessed valuation would be necessary to pay off the bond issue. This will mean a rise from 10 cents to 15 cents.
